

WHO PAYS COUNSEL In Case of Reinstated Police and License Board?

The Lawrence License Board Puts Bill for Counsel Fees in to the City—Lawyer Bent Non-Committal

Will the city be obliged to pay the counsel fees of Messrs. Bent, Johnson and Burke, in addition to the $4000 bill of the stenographers as the result of the recent police board hearing? If so, this year's administration will have proven to be one of the most expensive in many years.

According to the decision of Judge Dana, the city erred in its action against the commissioners, the mayor representing the city, and the question arises: "Should Messrs. Stearns, Hanson and Boulger be obliged to bear the expense of a hearing that should not have been brought in the first place?"

The police commissioners of Lawrence already have given notice that they shall call upon the city to pay their counsel fees as the result of their restoration to office after the mayor had removed them, as the following dispatch announces:

LAWRENCE, Oct. 18.—The approval and payment of the bills for services of attorneys, engineers and stenographers employed by the committee in the street department investigation has been followed by the presentation of other claims.

Following the example of Supt. Needham, the police officials who were deposed by Mayor White at the beginning of his term of office and restored by order of the supreme court, have given notice that they will present bills for legal services.

There are other city officials who have been obliged to pay for legal services, and the present administration who may ask the city to reimburse them for their outlay. It is hardly probable that the mayor will approve any of these bills, court proceedings will undoubtedly follow.

A Sun reporter called upon Messrs. Bent and Burke, the two local counsel in the case, this morning, and questioned them relative to the matter of collecting counsel fees, but in response to the reporter's question, "Will the commissioners make a demand upon the city for the expense of counsel fees?" both were smilingly non-committal. The decision in the Lawrence case may be awaited, however.

Judge King, in addressing a jury in the superior court recently, relative to the acceptance of testimony, informed the jurors that the attitude and appearance of a witness is often more convincing than the spoken word and from the attitude of counsel when asked the question the unspoken word might be translated as an intimation that there may be something doing on long.

On the other hand, it would seem that the position of the mayor, relative to the employment of counsel in such cases is clear, and that the mayor cannot expect the city to pay his counsel in the case.

IN POLICE COURT Striking Object Lesson on Drunkenness

A living example of what liquor will do to wreck a man's life was witnessed in police court this morning in the person of Frank McCabe, a middle aged man, who appeared in a pitiable condition.

The man was sentenced to jail for 20 days, but while he was waiting to be taken downstairs he collapsed and was carried into one of the ante-rooms, where after considerable difficulty he was revived.

As the man was being led downstairs Judge Hadley said: "That is a terrible object lesson. Few of us realize it, however, and still every day finds new recruits to the army, not the Salvation Army, but the army of desolation."

Struck His Mother

Dana Saunders pleaded guilty to striking his aged mother and blackening one of her eyes. It was evident that he did not realize the position he was in, for he appeared to be very sullen and indifferent. The woman explained to the court that her son had been drinking heavily and was abusing her. She told him that a dog would not use her the way he did and he, thinking she called him a dog, struck her in the face.

Despite the fact that the woman had had the warrant sworn out against her son, she pleaded with the court to place him on probation, feeling sure that he would do better in the future. "Your mother is anxious to have me place you on probation," said Judge Hadley. "What do you think about it?"

"Sut yourself about it," said Saunders, indifferently.

That answer came near resulting in the court sulking itself and the chances are that it would mean a jail sentence, but the plea of the woman caused the judge to pass over the son's remark and gave him a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Stole Tar Paper

John O'Dowd and John D. Burke, two young men, were arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on complaints charging them with the larceny of a roll of tar paper valued at $1.35 and the property of James F. Monney.

They admitted their guilt and said that they had sold the roll for 50 cents. They were fined $10 each.

Drink Did It

George B. Flanagan, a former well known merchant of Hingham, was before the court this morning charged with being drunk. His clothing was covered with mud, his eyes were red and his face was flushed and it was evident that he had either got into a fight or had fallen in the gutter. He was given a suspended sentence of three months in jail and placed in the care of the probation officer in Fitchburg.

Arrested On a Capias

Daniel Donohoe, who had been on probation, but failed to call on the probation officer, as he had promised to, was arrested on a capias. This morning, however, after promising to do better, he was given another chance.

Charles E. Cahill promised to leave off drinking and he was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Other Offenders

John McFadden and Louis Lambert, parole men from the state farm, will be returned to that institution. Thomas Egan was given a direct sentence to the state farm.

William Collins was the only Sunday drunk and he was assessed the usual $5.

Thomas Shea was under a suspended sentence of three months in jail but he broke the rules of his probation and the suspension of his former sentence was revoked and he was committed to jail.

Frank A. Hallowood will spend the next four months in jail.

Joseph M. Cary, Eric Patty, Peter Hoey, George B. McGann, John E. Carroll and Thomas F. Murray, charged with being drunk, were each fined $5.

Two first offenders were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were dealt before the opening of the court.

SEVERAL LIVES SAVED Yachts Were Disabled by the Brisk Gale

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—All day long yesterday the United States lifesaving crew at Point Allerton were busy rescuing small fishermen, whose frail craft were overturned by the brisk gales that swept along the Hull shores, and towing disabled yachts to safety. The crew started in their work at 7 a. m., when they were notified of the capsizing of a small sloop.

Arthur Mueller, Charles Johnson and William Jensen, all of Quincy, had started out for smelt in a small boat, when one of the men climbed the mast to adjust the sail. A sudden gust of wind sprang up, overturning the vessel. The sloop Lucy of South Boston, Capt. Wells, was passing at the time and dragged two of the men from the water, while the power boat of the life saving crew, under Capt. Sparrow, reached the scene in time to rescue the third.

The men had been in the water for forty minutes, and had nearly died from shock and exhaustion. The crew sent to the station for medical supplies but it was over an hour and a half before the men recovered. They were taken to their homes in Quincy.

On the return trip the life saving crew noticed that the large sloop Cadet, in charge of Capt. Jack Leonard of the Chelsea Yacht club, had lost a mast and was in trouble in the strong wind. They towed the sloop to harbor off Hull hill, where it anchored.

At 3 p. m. the crew noticed a small sloop going through Hull Gut at a fast clip, headed for the sea, although no sails were up. They started out after it and succeeded in getting a line to the boat. The yacht was the Agnes, in charge of its builder, A. E. Thayer of Quincy, employed by the Fore River Engine company. He had started for sail, but finding the gale too strong for his frail craft had lowered his sails, but in spite of every effort the vessel was being carried out to sea by the strong winds.

While fishing for smelt off Winde- mere station, Hull, Charles H. Paine of Conwell avenue, West Somerville, letter carrier at Medford, and William J. Blaisdell, a painter, of 25 1-2 Summer street, Somerville, were thrown into the water by the overturning of their boat. Blaisdell was hampered by his overalls, which were strapped to his shoulder, and though the distance to the shore was not far, did not dare to hazard the swim, so Paine stayed with him.

Another boat, in which were two fishermen, rowed over and took Blaisdell to the shore, where he was unable to stand for some time on account of exhaustion and the shock of the icy water. Although there were a score of boats at hand, Paine was compelled to remain in the water for twenty minutes until another boat put out on the float and came to his assistance. Both men were provided with a change of clothing by a resident near the float and went home. Neither suffered any ill effects from the accident.

SEARCH FOR HEAD Of Murdered Girl Resumed by the Officials of Tiverton

FALL RIVER, Oct. 18.—Every bit of evidence possible is being gleaned by the police of this city today in an effort to strengthening their case against Wilfrid Thibault, the chauffeur, and "Prof." Frank Hill, the herb doctor, whom they charged murdered Miss Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R. I., and then distributed her body along the Bulger marsh highroad in the town of Tiverton, R. I.

Meanwhile the Tiverton police authorities began another week by continuing their search for the head of the girl whose body was found in the thickets. They spent much of the day in the vicinity of Mill road, a short thoroughfare connecting Bulgermarsh and Fish roads.

It is the theory of Chief of Police Manchester that the torso found on Bulger marsh road near the head of Fish road was the last piece of the body thrown from the vehicle used in the distribution of the dismembered parts. This theory was materially strengthened yesterday when a box was found a short distance down Fish road with unmistakable signs of blood about it and with a round red ring on the inside of one end, indicating the place where the top of the neck of the girl rested. The torso measured 23 inches and the inside of the box 24.

The report of Prof. Whitney of the Harvard Medical school on the autopsy of the stomach of the Tiverton victim was eagerly awaited today by the officials of both Fall River and Tiverton. Prof. Whitney was also to report on his examination of the shoes of Thibault upon which the police of Fall River thought they noted blood stains.

The matter of just where the corpse was committed had not been definitely settled when the wheels of the police department of the city and the adjacent town began to move this morning. One inspector expressed the theory on Saturday evening that when the operation upon the St. Jean girl was unsuccessful the body was taken to the shore of Mount Hope bay, dismembered and the head thrown into the water at that point on the shore. This would make the affair a Rhode Island crime. Another official thinks that the scene of the murder was right here in Fall River, while still another has a theory that the dismembering took place down on Bulgermarsh road.

Inspector Medley stated late this afternoon that he felt confident that the box found off Fish road yesterday at the residence of the police office of "Prof." Hill, a Greek who keeps a small store nearby was taken to the Tiverton police. He said he was almost positive that the box came from his store. A close inspection of the box today revealed the presence of several long hairs. This discovery strengthens greatly the police say, the theory that the head was thrown away in the vicinity of the Bulgermarsh road. Although at no time the missing head appeared to feel confident that it would be located before the day is over. Their opinion was that the arms and legs were packed in the telescope bag and that the torso and head were put into the pine box. Either just before or just after the torso was disposed of the head was thrown into the thicket.

The medical examiner of Tiverton came up to the city today and held a long conference with Acting City Marshal John Fleet at the local police station. Shortly after William E. Fuller, Jr. and William C. Gray, counsel for Thibault, went into an executive session with Justice John J. McDonough of the police court. The conference prolonged for over an hour.

It is the opinion of Mr. Fuller that his automobile could not have been taken from his garage during the night without his knowledge.

The indications of the speedometer and the quantity of the gasoline which he has noted carefully would also, he feels, disprove this theory advanced against Thibault.

TAXICABS UPSET

And Their 10 Occupants Injured

APRONAUG, R. I., Oct. 18.—Two taxicabs were badly damaged and their 10 occupants injured, although not seriously, in two accidents on the Apronaug road, yesterday. The occupants of both machines formed one party which was bound for East Greenwich from Providence. The leading machine became caught in the car tracks entering Apronaug road and was overturned down an embankment, being badly broken and precipitating those inside to the ground. The machine following, in order to avert crashing into the overturned taxicab, was headed sharply to the left where it ran up an embankment and then down again, overturning like the other.

PEOPLE TO DECIDE Metodists Refer Question of Pastorate Limitation to Churches

This, the sixth and last day of the sixth general conference of the Primitive Methodist church being held in the Primitive Methodist church in Gorham church, is a busy one for the delegates.

The forenoon session opened with devotional exercises at 8.30 o'clock. The exercises were led by Rev. Joseph Sutcliffe. There was a meeting of the Preachers' Benevolent society and at 9 o'clock the conference got down to business.

Limitation of Pastorate

The question of limitation of pastorate, as to whether it should be settled on the conference floor or sent back to the churches, was resumed, the question being under discussion when the conference adjourned at noon on Saturday.

Some were in favor and others opposed to referring the question back to the churches.

Under the present system the stay of a minister at one and the same church is unlimited and the proposed system would limit pastorate to five years.

All of the laymen were in favor of referring the matter back to the churches.

"Is our form of government Congregational and Presbyterian?" asked a clergyman delegate.

"Presbyterian," answered the chair.

"Then why should we have to submit to talk to every question?"

A layman answered this question by saying: "I am a layman, a delegate from Pennsylvania and I want the ministers to understand that we are the people."

Another layman said he was surprised at the attitude taken by so many of the ministers.

"A very small majority of the people of my conference," he said, "knew any thing at all about this question coming up at this time and if you gentlemen, you ministers, want to be fair, why don't you refer the matter back to the churches and give the people a chance to discuss it and vote upon it. As Christian gentlemen you should do that."

Mrs. W. T. Blackaby

The first woman delegate to speak at the conference was Mrs. W. T. Blackaby, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and she spoke to the question of limitation of pastorate. She was in favor of referring the matter back to the churches.

There were groans of disapproval when one clergyman said the question should be settled "right here and now." He said that the cream of the intelligence of the churches was represented at the conference and he allowed that the people would be satisfied with whatever action is taken at the conference.

The question was finally put to a vote. The vote was by yeas and nays and the secretary called the roll. The conference voted to refer the matter back to the churches by a vote of 37 to 22.

That there was a little bitterness of feeling among delegates was made manifest when the votes were taken. The Pennsylvania delegates could not seem to pull together very well. Some of them declared that their annual conference had instructed them in the matter of limitation of pastorate and that their instructions were not to refer the matter back to the churches, and the delegates made this explanation upon registering their "nays."

There were other delegates from the Pennsylvania conference who declared they had not been instructed in the

RED FLAG RAISED

SOCIALIST DEMONSTRATION IN TRAFALGAR SQUARE IN LONDON YESTERDAY.

London Police Drove Back Mob Moving on Spanish Embassy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The red flag was raised in London yesterday afternoon, and a large mob moved upon the Spanish embassy to make a demonstration of its disapproval of the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the convicted revolutionist, at Barcelona, a few days ago.

Several bodies of police were stationed at the approaches to the embassy and they drove off the crowd. But considerable excitement and unpleasantness pervaded the neighborhood.

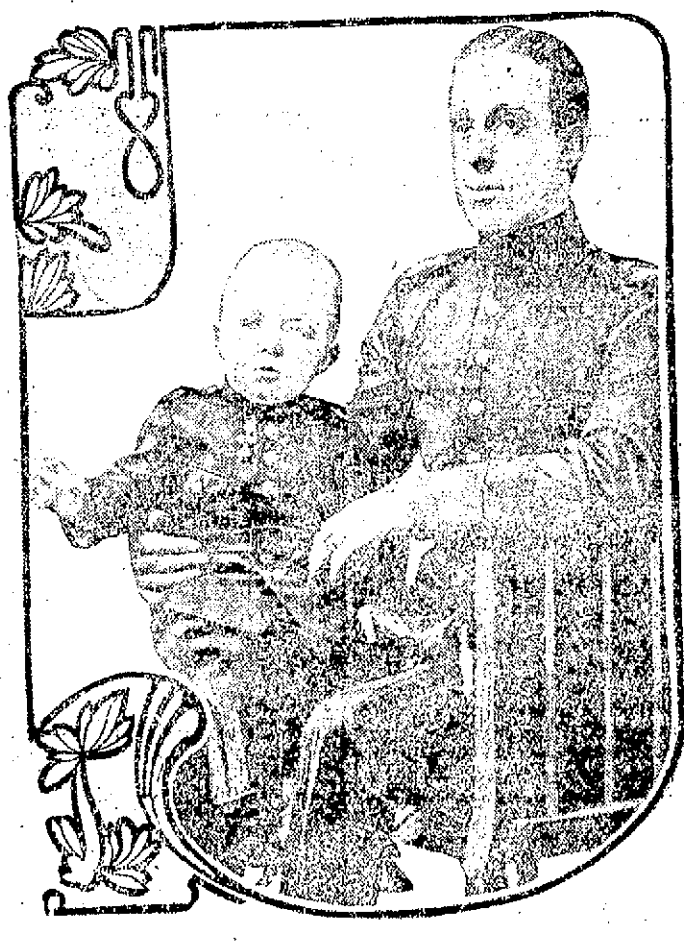

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The latest doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, Box 599, Willimantic, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the remedy for female ills, and many women owe it to themselves to try this medicine a trial. It is so simple, and why should it not?

KING ALFONSO AND HIS WIFE VICTORIA

THE POLICE

PREVENTED A FERRER MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 18.—Attempts to hold a monster memorial meeting in this city last night to protest against the recent execution in Spain of Ferrer were frustrated by the police. They refused to allow a large hall near the center of the city to be opened, although those in charge of the proposed meeting had paid the rent in advance and held a lease of the property. The speakers and many of their friends at Spanish Consulate, and the meeting to order. He read a telegram from the Consulate of Warburg, saying: "No words are too strong to express Europe's horror at the murder of Ferrer."

Several laborite members of parliament delivered strong orations. Victor Grayson of Manchester, the socialist member, declared that if the head of every king of Europe was torn from his body it would not pay half the price of Ferrer's life. He called the Russian emperor "the great monster" and said that King Edward, who could have prevented the execution, was responsible for whatever might happen in England as a result of it. He demanded the expulsion of the Spanish ambassador.

Strong resolutions were adopted before the meeting ended. Several thousand persons met in the square, most of them attracted by the same curiosity that would take them to the suffragette demonstrations. The socialist societies, carrying their banners, then marched in good order to the Spanish embassy, singing revolutionary songs and hooting King Alfonso. A great rabble accompanied them, filling the streets.

It was dark when they reached the open square in front of the embassy, and they found that the square was filled with platoons of police. The embassy windows were dark and there was no sign of life there. The police would not let the procession enter the square or even stop. The crowds were turned back and kept moving up Victoria street toward the parliament building, singing, shouting and groaning. The reserves were then brought up, and they drove the mob into the side streets dispersing it without serious trouble.

RED FLAGS

WERE CARRIED BY MOB IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 18.—A disorderly mob of several thousand, including a majority of the university students and many Spaniards, made a demonstration yesterday afternoon in honor of Francisco Ferrer. They marched in procession through the principal streets of the city, carrying red flags and cheering for an anarchy.

Two outdoor meetings were held, in which violent orations were made by Maj. Gen. Enrique Joyas Del Castillo, who recently was appointed envoy extraordinary to the South American republics; Jose Plinio, and other extremists. Resolutions were passed to boycott all Spanish goods and to accept the offer of the Stevedores union to refuse to unload Spanish ships until Spain rescinds the order confiscating Ferrer's estate.

The mob attempted to approach the Spanish consulate and the bishop's palace, but was driven back by the police. The line of march was then taken up to the church, which was assailed with showers of stones, on which the police charged the rioters. A sharp fight ensued and several of the police and many of the rioters were hurt. A large number of men were arrested.

The men then started to attack the offices of the Diario de La Marina, but were again driven back by the police and mounted rural guards, the latter using the backs of their machine-guns. The mob was speedily dispersed and there was no further disorder.

A REVOLUTION

IS PREDICTED BY CHIEF OF REPUBLICANS

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Alphonse Lerroux, chief of the republicans at Barcelona, who is now in Paris, in an interview yesterday predicted a revolution in Spain and the establishment of a republic. He considered the execution of Ferrer the outcome of the personal vengeance of King Alfonso, who, he said, always was convinced of Ferrer's complicity in the outrage against the king on his wedding day.

In the room where the meeting was held in a hall in the Italian section of the city, about 500 people heard an address by Dr. De Sottman, editor of the Frer. Arbeiter Zeitung, and Voltaire DeClare. A monograph by Emma Goldman, an appreciation of Ferrer and his work, and a denunciation of those responsible for his death was also read.

CHURCH WINDOWS SMASHED
BRUSSELS, Oct. 18.—Big Ferrer demonstrations were held in the principal cities of Belgium yesterday. At Liege rowdies smashed the windows of churches and religious establishments.

FREE MASONS

SAID TO BE DIRECTING ANTI-CLERICAL CAMPAIGN

ROME, Oct. 18.—All indications point to the extremists in Italy being determined on an anti-clerical campaign more vigorous even than that in France. This is being directed by the Free Masons, whose grand master has issued a most violent manifesto in behalf of Ferrer, recently executed, and against the church.

CARICATURE OF KING

GENOVA, Oct. 18.—A pro-Ferrer procession, in which many of the marchers carried flags draped with crepe, one of them having a caricature of King Alfonso with the inscription "Alfonso is a Monster," caused a fight with the police yesterday. The police succeeded in capturing the offending flag, but little injury was done on either side. The procession was prevented from approaching the Spanish consulate.

STONED SPANISH FLAG

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 18.—Ten thousand people gathered yesterday in one of the public squares and stoned the Spanish flag and portraits of King Alfonso. Resolutions to carry out a boycott on Spanish products were adopted. Similar meetings were held in many of the towns in the interior.

EXPLORERS' CLUB

To Investigate Ascent of Mt. McKinley

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, by request, appeared yesterday before a special committee of the Explorers' club, of which he is a member. The club is conducting an investigation of his ascent of Mount McKinley. He was accompanied by his lawyer. The committee informed him that no charges had been preferred against him by the club, but that the investigation was undertaken only to put his ascent of Mount McKinley officially on the records and to do this a thorough inquiry was deemed best.

Dr. Cook considered this fair, but explained that he was leaving town next night. He said he would return to the city within 10 days when a date for his appearance before the committee could be fixed. This was agreed upon.

Anthony Piana, who was a member of the committee, took occasion yesterday formally to decline Dr. Cook's invitation to participate in an expedition to recover the records said to have been lost on Mount McKinley's summit by Dr. Cook. Piana explained that he was not an experienced mountain climber. Prof. H. C. Parker, of Columbia university, who received a similar request, was also present yesterday. He, too, formally declined the invitation, saying that he was going to try to scale the peak himself next spring with Belmont Browne.

Merrimack Street

Preached by Rev. S. R. Chubb
at P. M. Church

The conference sermon of the sixth quadrennial conference of the Primitive Methodist church of America, was preached at the Primitive Methodist church in Gorham street, Sunday morning. The preacher was Rev. S. R. Chubb of Kewanee, Ill., a delegate to the conference, and he found his inspiration in the Second Chronicles, third chapter and sixth verse: "And he garnished the house with precious stones for beauty; and the gold was gold of Parvaim." In part, he said: "The man who builds worthy things has his own self respect. Wherever or in whatever circumstances we live or die, God grant that we have our own self respect. I would rather go down into my grave respecting myself than have a monument a mile high erected through the love and respect of others."

"We hear a good deal about the self-made man. There is no such thing as the self-made man. If I should see one I shouldn't want to look at him twice. We inherit. We are instructed. We learn this or that from another. God is the greatest architect in the world, and he instructed Solomon how to build the temple. God lays the foundations and his handwork is used by man. In the magnificent Garden of the Gods the great spire and piles are God's work."

HON. WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

W. I. Buchanan Probably a Victim of Apoplexy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Wm. I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., American ex-minister to the Argentine Republic and Panama, who has been closely identified with several important American diplomatic missions, was found lying on a sidewalk in Park lane, near the American embassy, in a dying condition a few minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night, was carried to St. George's hospital a short distance away, but life was extinct when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The cause of death is not known, but it is supposed that it resulted from heart disease or apoplexy. There were no marks of violence on the body nor had robbery been committed.

The identity of the dead man was discovered yesterday afternoon through inquiries sent out by the management of the hotel where Mr. Buchanan was staying.

On Venezuelan Mission

Mr. Buchanan, who had come to London on a mission for the U. S. government in connection with the Venezuelan claims, had been here several weeks. He previously had visited Berlin and Paris. He took up quarters at Cleridge's hotel, one of the most fashionable in the city, which is about half a mile from Park lane. He left the hotel Saturday night for dinner early in the evening, attired in evening dress. No one has yet been found who knows where he spent the evening, but it is supposed that he was walking home when stricken.

Park lane is a particularly quiet street on Saturday nights when most of the residents are out of town. A passerby found the diplomat lying on the sidewalk. A policeman was summoned, and he quickly called an ambulance, but it was too late for medical aid.

American Embassy Identifies

The name "W. I. Buchanan" was found on the clothing which was recognized to be of American make and his initials were engraved on the jewelry. There was no other means of identification. The police circulated these particulars and the manager of the hotel and officials from the American embassy called at the hospital and identified the body.

The American embassy and the coroner took charge of Mr. Buchanan's effects at the hotel, which are supposed to include papers of great value. It is customary in such cases in England to perform an autopsy, but the American embassy has requested that this be waived.

The hotel management says that Mr. Buchanan usually dined out frequently, returning at midnight or later. Therefore, his failure to return was not noticed until yesterday morning.

in heaven who would wish for a little old lug hut. The had better take their love up with them. God has builded better and more beautifully than man can conceive. Shall it be a reproach then that these people here have erected a church to the worship of God as beautiful as this in which we meet? The hearts of the people who worked for it and saw that it was built and beautified, worked for God and with God."

There was a conference prayer meeting at 9 o'clock led by Rev. W. H. Holter of Westmorland City, Pa., and Rev. W. H. Shaw of New Bedford. The morning service began at 10:30. Concomitance communion was conducted at 9:30 by the delegates. Rev. H. G. Russell of Wilkesbarre, Pa., presided at the public service. Rev. James Isley of Pittsburg, Pa., offered the prayer and the others occupying seats on the pulpit platform were Rev. Elijah Humphries of Fall River, Mass., Rev. Robert W. Wilson of Youngstown, Ohio, and Rev. N. W. Matley of Lowell. A chorus choir sang the magnificent "Gloria in Excelsis" by Mozart, and Mrs. J. W. Willman sang a solo. A baptism was a feature of the service.

A CHEMIST'S DISCOVERY
A New Drug for All Forms of Eczema and Other Skin Troubles

The most remarkable feature about Cadum, the new remedy for skin diseases, is that its beneficial action is seen in every case where it is applied. So far not a single instance has been found where it failed to stop the terrible itching of eczema at once. People who have been afflicted with eczema for years, and have tried everything they heard of without being relieved, should take fresh courage, for this new remedy Cadum is altogether different from all other so-called skin cures. It is the discovery of a chemist, who felt for years that the world needed a cure for eczema and other skin diseases, and as a result of his studies and experiments Cadum was the outcome. It is reassuring to be told that this new preparation, while possessing such remarkable powers in overcoming all forms of skin troubles, contains no dangerous ingredients. When applied over unsightly sores on the face and hands it forms a thin, almost invisible coating, so that the disease is covered up while the healing process is going on. The 10c size is intended for trial purposes by those who wish to test its wonderful virtues. It contains a sufficient quantity of the new remedy to treat minor skin troubles, such as itchy rash, pimples, eruptions, itch, ringworm, scaly skin, acne, herpes, psoriasis, etc. It should always be borne in mind that Cadum is an entirely new remedy. Nothing like it was ever before offered to the public. Cadum has so thoroughly demonstrated that eczema is now a curable disease that there is no excuse whatever for any man, woman or child suffering from it. The discovery of this new remedy is surely one of the great achievements of the century. Cadum is sold by druggists at 10c and 25c a box.

JACK JOHNSON

Knocked Out Ketchel in Twelfth Round

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Jack Johnson yesterday retained the heavyweight pugilistic championship by knocking out Stanley Ketchel in the 12th round of their fight at Cohna.

The end came so suddenly that when Ketchel rolled on the floor and referee Welch counted him out, the 10,000 persons crowding the arena were absolutely quiet for a full minute.

Even Johnson, who leaned against the ropes half dazed by his own fall a moment before, did not seem to know what had happened.

The climax of the fight was crowded into 34 seconds. At the beginning of what proved to be the last round there had been little in the preceding rounds on which to forecast the winner. The men in the center of the ring clinched and wrestled to Johnson's corner. The negro broke away, and posing himself dashed at Ketchel, who sprang to meet him.

Ketchel drove his right at the black's lowered head. Johnson ducked and the blow landed behind his ear. He stumbled, fell and stretched out on the floor, landing heavily. Ketchel backed toward the ropes with a faint smile on his battered, blood-streaked face. Johnson rose slowly, as though bewildered.

BOXING GOSSIP.

There is great speculation among the local boxing fraternity as to the ability of Jimmie Moriarty, the boxing blacksmith, to get a decision over George Loucroft of Billerica in their bout at the Gladstone club on Tuesday evening next, owing to their difference in weight. But those who have seen Moriarty boxing in private lately are confident that his cleverness and ability to deliver the wallop will overcome the handicap in weight. Loucroft is training at his farm in Billerica and is reported in fine condition. A preliminary that will be an event in itself is the six round bout between Young Sullivan of this city and Young Luke of Lawrence at 116 pounds. Young Sullivan, who has been sparring with Moriarty, is regarded as a corner. Freddie Maguire and Billy Russell, the two clever bantams, will be seen in an eight round bout and from this distance the program looks like one of the best ever put on here. The meeting as usual will be for members only.

The bouts this week are:

SAYS JEFFRIES WILL DEFEND THE TITLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The defeat of Stanley Ketchel by Jack Johnson at Cohna Saturday will not cause Jim Jeffries to alter his plans to meet Johnson for the championship, according to Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager. Berger telegraphed from San Francisco to William Morris, a vaudeville manager of this city yesterday as follows:

"Result of Johnson-Ketchel contest is all I have been waiting for, before making positive and final announcement that Jeffries will defend his title as world's champion. After seeing Johnson's exhibition yesterday I am absolutely confident that Jeffries will have little difficulty in defeating the colored man in less than 12 rounds."

Won the Deciding Game From the Tigers

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—What is believed to be the largest crowd that ever saw a baseball game in Detroit went to Bennett park Saturday to witness the seventh and decisive game of the world's championship series between Pittsburgh and Detroit. The weather was cold with the thermometer registering between 35 and 40. The sky was clear though the weather forecast promised snow flurries.

Detroit turned out en masse for the final game of the series. The great majority of the crowd was confident of victory for the American league champions. Many wagers were made at even money and several were recorded with Detroit a slight favorite at 4 to 5, or 5 to 10.

The three Detroit players who were injured in the ninth inning of Thursday's game were all in the lineup during the practice. Tom Jones was apparently none the worse for his collision with Wilson and worked snappily around first base. Schmidt was behind the bat and showed no ill effects of the spiking he had received while Moriarty's sore knee did not appear to cause him any trouble.

The regular Pittsburgh team was in the field and practiced in brilliant style. The infield worked well with Wagner making some clever steps and catches.

O'Loughlin was the umpire behind the bat with Johnstone on the bases and Klem and Evans along the outfield foul lines.

Big Crowd Present

The crowd which gathered at Bennett park was something of a disappointment, as it was expected at least 23,000 or 24,000 people would be present, but when the game opened it was estimated that not more than 20,000 people were present to witness the final game. The weather had moderated a trifle, but was still a bit chilly for perfect baseball. The thermometer hovered around the 50 mark and a brisk wind from the west whipped across the field. It was really a better day than Detroit had offered yet during the series.

Umpire O'Loughlin worked behind the plate. He announced the batteries as Adams and Gibson for Pittsburgh, and Donovan and Schmidt for Detroit.

Play was started sharply at 2 o'clock. The play by detail:

First Inning

Pittsburgh: Byrne was hit by a pitched ball. Leach bunted to Donovan, who had plenty of time to get Byrne at second, but no one covered the base, and Donovan threw Leach out at first. Leach got a sacrifice hit. On a hit and run signal, Clarke failed to hit and Byrne was caught at third. Schmidt to Moriarty. The men collided and both were knocked out. It is apparent that Moriarty is hurt, as O'Leary is warning up to take his place. Neither man has gotten up and both appear to be seriously hurt. The game was stopped and the doctors are working over each of them. Moriarty arose and a great cheer went up from the crowd. Byrne is being carried off the field. Umpire O'Loughlin announced that Abstein would play third base for Pittsburgh. Moriarty will continue at third base for Detroit.

Umpire O'Loughlin then made another announcement, that Leach would play third for Pittsburgh. Hyatt centerfield and Abstein first base. Clarke drew a base on balls.

The physician who attended Byrne said he had sprained his ankle. Clarke stole second. Wagner drew another base on balls. Miller hit to Bush, who forced Wagner at second. No runs.

Detroit: D. Jones fouled to Leach. Bush was hit in the back by a pitched ball. Cobb died to Clarke. Bush was caught stealing. Gibson to Miller. No runs.

Second Inning

Pittsburgh: Abstein drew a base on balls. Wilson missed on a hit and run but "Ab" stole second on Schmidt's high throw. Wilson bunted in front of the plate and Schmidt threw to third too late to get Abstein. Wilson getting credit for a sacrifice. Gibson fled to Bush but the fly was too short to give Abstein a chance to score from third.

Adams drew a base on balls, filling the bases. Hyatt sent a sacrifice fly to Crawford scoring Abstein. Leach drew another base on balls and the bases were filled again. Clarke walked forcing home Wilson. Wagner fled to Cobb. Two runs.

Detroit: Crawford grounded to Abstein and was out at first. Abstein unassisted. Delehanty was hit by a pitched ball but Umpire O'Loughlin said he had stepped into it and would not allow him to go to first. Delehanty walked. Moriarty smashed a two-bagger into the right field crowd and hobbled to second base, his injured leg apparently bothering him greatly. Delehanty taking third. Time has been called and O'Leary went in to run for Moriarty. T. Jones popped to Wagner. Schmidt in trying to dodge allowed his bat to be hit and the ball rolled fair, Adams throwing him out to Abstein. No runs.

Third Inning

Pittsburgh: O'Leary now playing third for Detroit. Miller singled over second base. Abstein doubled along left field foul line, sending Miller to third. Wilson hit to Bush, who threw to the plate and Schmidt, largely Miller. Schmidt then threw to Delehanty who caught Abstein off second, making a double play. Bush to Schmidt to Delehanty. Gibson forced Wilson at second. Bush to Delehanty at second. No runs.

Detroit: Mullin batted for Donovan and will continue as pitcher. A great cheer went up when Mullin walked to the plate. Mullin lined to Miller. D. Jones beat out a bunt to Adams. When D. Jones slid into first base he tore the bag from its fastening and the game was delayed while it was being replaced. Bush out. Adams to Abstein; D. Jones going to second. Cobb out, Adams to Abstein. No runs.

Fourth Inning

Pittsburgh: Mullin now pitching for Detroit. Adams fled to D. Jones. Hyatt drew base on balls. Leach singled over Bush's head and Hyatt went to second. Clarke sacrificed Mullin to T. Jones. Hyatt going to third and Leach to second. Wagner was purposely given a base on balls filling the bases. Miller singled to right scoring Hyatt and Leach and sending Wagner to third. Miller stole second and Schmidt made no attempt to get him for fear Wagner would come home. Abstein struck out. Two runs.

Detroit: Crawford out. Leach to Abstein. Delehanty singled to right. O'Leary popped to Wagner. T. Jones singled to right, sending Delehanty to second. Schmidt hit to Leach, who forced Delehanty at third, unassisted. No runs.

Fifth Inning

Pittsburgh: Wilson fled to Crawford. Gibson out. Bush to T. Jones. Adams out. Delehanty to T. Jones. No runs.

Detroit: Leach made a great overhanded stop of Mullin's grounder and threw him out to Abstein. D. Jones struck out. It has stopped to rain.

Sixth Inning

Pittsburgh: Hyatt out. Delehanty to T. Jones. Leach doubled into the left field crowd. Clarke drew a base on balls. Wagner sent a three-base hit to left field, scoring Leach and Clarke and Wagner scoring on D. Jones' bad throw to third. Miller sent a long fly to Crawford. Abstein popped to Bush. Pittsburgh three runs.

Detroit: Cobb out. Adams to Abstein. Crawford fled to Clarke. Leach made a star catch of Delehanty's foul. No runs.

Seventh Inning

Pittsburgh: Wilson sent a high fly to D. Jones. Gibson doubled to center. Adams put a hot liner to O'Leary and the latter knocked it down. Bush got it and threw Adams out to T. Jones. Gibson went to third on the play. Hyatt out. Delehanty to T. Jones. No runs.

Detroit: O'Leary fouled to Gibson. Wagner made a star stop on T. Jones' grounder and threw him out to Abstein. Schmidt doubled into the left field crowd. Clarke made a great catch of Mullin's hard drive. No runs.

Eighth Inning

Pittsburgh: Leach out. Mullin to T. Jones. Clark drew a base on balls, making his fourth walk during the game. Clarke stole second. Wagner sent a long fly to Crawford. Clarke didn't try to go to third. Crawford made an error by dropping Miller's fly. Clarke scoring and Miller going to second. D. Jones made a great running catch of Abstein's fly near left field crowd. One run.

Detroit: D. Jones popped to Miller. Wagner made a good catch of Bush's foul. Clarke came in and caught Cobb's short fly. No runs.

In the ninth neither team scored.

POLICE FIND BOX

That Was Used in Hiding Murdered Girl's Body

FALL RIVER, Oct. 18.—The box in which the decapitated head of the murdered girl, who figures in the "Tiverton" murder mystery, was transported from the place where the body was found yesterday by Deputy Sheriff King of Newport. He discovered it on the Hamby farm, on the east side of the Fish road, some distance from the place where other searches had been made.

In addition a handkerchief saturated with blood and perforated as if by the teeth of a saw was picked up by Mr. King off the road. The initial "T" appears in one corner.

The securing of the box was the most important incident of the day. It is of seven-eighths inch stock, and its dimensions are 15x24x14. King took the box and handkerchief to the Tiverton police station.

Mrs. Lamoureux yesterday identified as those worn by her niece, Miss St. Jean, the corsets and a skirt which two weavers found several days ago at the end of Bay street. One of the weavers had taken them home, and they had been worn by his wife until yesterday.

Search Offices of Hill Inspector Medley last night made another visit to the office of "Prof. Hill" and took back to the station various articles. Among the effects secured was a telescope bag, similar to that which contained parts of the murdered girl's body, a grape basket, a jack-knife, a corkscrew and a pair of pliers.

Suits and Coats

THAT HAVE DISTINCTIVE STYLE FEATURES

CAN'T WE SELL THEM TO YOU ON CREDIT?

Serge Suits at $18.50
In black and blue, they're real $19 value, silk lined, 45 inches long, plaited skirt. A suit worth looking at carefully.

Lymansville Worsteds Suits $19.50
In black, blue, smoke and raisin shades, long coats, guaranteed satin linings, yoke, plaited skirts. $22.50 would be a fair price for these suits.

Blue Serge Suits $24.50
Look all over the city and then buy this suit and save $5. A beautiful blue, medium weight, collar inlaid with moire and trimmed with jet buttons.

Broadcloth Suits $26.50
All the fall shades. Think of a Skinner satin lined suit, 45 inches long, with a plaited skirt, at the price advertised. They're here now but they won't stay long.

The body of the girl, which was found yesterday, was very far advanced in decomposition, would definitely decide the identity of the victim and give the police a firm basis for their case.

That supposition may greatly err, as shown in the case of Miss Grace Edwards, who was originally thought to be the victim. That young woman has been located in Pittsburg, where formerly she lived.

IVINS ATTACKED

Statement Given Out by Henry George, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Taken from the graveyard of forgotten campaigns, a political skeleton covered with the dust of 23 years was rattled in New York last night, adding intensity to the three cornered struggle for the mayor's chair of Greater New York between William J. Gaynor, Democrat; William R. Hearst, Independent, and Otto T. Bannard, Republican.

The nominees rested yesterday and last night, but the fight centered around Hearst produced a new issue of the campaign, the political record of William J. Gaynor, Hearst's ardent republican supporter, albeit his opponent four years ago.

The fresh phase came in the form of a statement issued last night by Henry George, Jr., son and biographer of the famous single taxer, who charges in effect that Ivins went to his father in 1885 and offered him inducements to withdraw from the mayoralty race against William R. Grace. As a matter of history, Mr. George refused to be sidetracked and entered the contest only to meet defeat.

In a formal statement given out on Saturday night, Ivins, apparently expecting an attack on his alleged connection with the George-Grace campaign, denied that he ever made any offer to Henry George to retire. As opposed to this, Henry George, Jr., said last night:

"In his prepared statement, published in the newspapers this morning, Mr. William M. Ivins, denies a story that in behalf of Richard Croker he offered to Henry George, my father, $25,000 to withdraw from the mayoralty contest in 1888.

"In response to a statement made in the newspapers by Abraham S. Hewitt, relative to the 1888 campaign, my father toward the close of the 1887 campaign and just a few days before his death, issued a statement, which, with the attendant circumstances, may be found on pages 462-3 of 'The Life of Henry George' by me. The statement is as follows:

"Before my nomination had formally taken place (in 1886) I received a request from Mr. William M. Ivins, then chamberlain of the city, and a close political friend and representative of Mr. Grace, to privately meet him. I do so at Seligman's on Lafayette place. We sat down in a private room, unattended, and smoked some cigars together. Mr. Ivins insisted that I could not possibly be elected mayor of New York, no matter how many people might vote for me; that the men who voted knew nothing of the real forces that dominated New York. He said that I could not possibly be counted in. He offered me a large sum of money, and the county democracy that if I would refuse the nomination for mayor, they would run me for congress, select a city district in which nomination was equivalent to election; that I should be at no expense whatever, but might go to Europe or anywhere I wished, and when I came back should receive a certificate of election to the house of representatives. He said to him finally: 'You tell me I cannot possibly get the office. Why, then, if I cannot possibly get the office, do you want me to withdraw?'

"His reply was 'You cannot get elected, but your running will raise hell.'"

"I said: 'You have relieved me of embarrassment. I do not want the responsibility and the work of the office of mayor of New York, but I do want to raise hell. I am decided and will run.'"

In reply to Henry George, Jr., Ivins issued the following statement last night:

"The quotations which Dr. Henry George, Jr., now alleges is, if my recollection serves taken from the gentleman's life of his father. My own memory is in no respect faulty with regard to my relations with Henry George, senior, but that is no issue in the present campaign.

"In 1897 I denied that I had ever offered Mr. George a nomination in behalf of Tammany Hall and I also denied that any such conversation as that here given took place between us; I still deny it. Mr. George is dead, and I care to say nothing further of the matter. Even the courts will not permit one to testify to a conversation with parties deceased.

"It will be noted that Mr. George does not repeat the accusation which was made yesterday, that I attempted to bribe his father."

MAY LOSE AN EYE

Hunter Victim of a Strange Accident

MARLBORO, Oct. 18.—Charles Clancy, about 20 years old, living on Devens street, this city, met with a serious accident under peculiar circumstances, while hunting in the Robin Hill district, about two miles out of town, Saturday, with two companions.

At noon the trio sat down to eat their lunch in the woods, two of the men depositing their guns on the ground, while Mr. Clancy propped his against a tree about 75 feet away.

While the men were eating, Mr. Clancy's dog, which was frolicking about, upset the gun that was leaning against the tree. It was discharged and the charge of shot went into Mr. Clancy's face, and it is feared destroyed the sight of one of his eyes.

He was taken by his companions to a doctor, and then sent to the Marlboro hospital. The doctors will not undertake to predict the outcome of the injury, beyond expressing fear that one eye is destroyed. Clancy is employed as a shoe cutter here.

PRESIDENT

Compliments Work of Regular Army

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 18.—President Taft's travels brought him to the far south yesterday. After 21 hours of continuous journeying from El Paso, he arrived in San Antonio at 7.30 o'clock last night, and, despite the fact that it was Sunday, he received a cheering welcome.

A big crowd was gathered at the station and the streets leading to St. Anthony hotel were lined with people. After he was received by city officials, the president was driven to the hotel with an escort of cavalry.

Later in the evening the president went to Fort Sam Houston, where he assisted in the dedication and accepted on behalf of the government a chapel erected at the famous old army post by the citizens of San Antonio.

He will leave this afternoon for Gregory, Texas, near Corpus Christi, to spend four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. The latter passed through San Antonio Saturday to prepare a welcome for the president.

The president's train yesterday passed through the fully settled western part of Texas and made a few stops.

At Del Rio, Sanderson and one or two places the president made brief speeches to station throngs which were made up in part of Mexicans, residents of the community and farmers who had driven many miles in their best Sunday clothes.

The sage brush and cactus gave way as the day advanced to mesquite bushes and finally to the pasture lands and cotton fields for which the state is famous. In some of the fields the fleecy staple was breaking in white tufts from the bolls.

The president's train was one of 14

specials running into San Antonio 70 minutes apart yesterday. Most of the trains were filled with troops returning to Fort Sam Houston from duty at the meeting of Presidents Taft and Diaz Saturday.

Secretary of War Dickinson is the only cabinet officer with the president. It is his purpose to remain until the president returns to Washington on November 25, making the entire southern trip with Mr. Taft.

The president spent much of the day in resting.

The president heard with deep gratification from Washington yesterday morning that Mrs. Taft had returned to Washington and was so much improved in health that she went to church with her sister.

The president accepted and dedicated the chapel at Fort Sam Houston last night in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army. In doing so he preached his fourth sermon of the trip. Among those who participated in the ceremonies were Bishop Johnson of the Episcopal church, Bishop Forest of the Catholic church, Rabbi Samuel Marks and Rev. J. B. Cleaver, president of the Ministers' association at San Antonio.

The president took this as a further indication of the view he has repeated several times, that the churches of the country are growing closer together on the ground of the fatherhood of the God and the brotherhood of man. The president also paid his compliments to the work of the regular army.

The democratic party is unalterably opposed to special privileges. It harbors no hostility to wealth, but demands equal opportunities for all; for the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and the consumer, freedom from unjust discrimination and the oppression of monopolies; for the working man, wages, conditions and hours of labor, and prices for the necessities of life, consistent with the development of faculties, the preservation of health, the maintenance and education of children, and the attainment of American ideals in citizenship.

The republican organization has placed itself in open antagonism to the most progressive elements of its own party. The democratic party has become by force of circumstances, the only means of expression of popular reform and of the enlightened sentiment of the people. Where there is a party of progress there should be a community of action; and all good citizens should regard it as their patriotic duty to subordinate party regularity to the public good.

COOK AND HIS CRITICS.
It seems that there were a great many people who did not see Dr. Cook reach the summit of Mt. McKinley. It remains for the doctor to find somebody besides himself who did see him. Otherwise the people who didn't see him will carry the day.

NEW BEAM HOUSE PROPOSITION.
Any attempt of the American Hide and Leather company to locate a beam house on Perry street will arouse more stubborn opposition than was shown to the Howe street plant. To locate such an industry there, would not only injure property in the vicinity but would drive out the Rogers Hall school and leave Fort Hill park deserted. We do not believe the board of health would permit such a state of affairs.

EXTEND THE SMOOTH PAVING OUTWARD.
When the Merrimack street paving job will have been finished that street will be an ideal thoroughfare. It will then be the duty of our city government to see that this form of paving is extended outward and to all streets whereon there is heavy traffic. By this means we should have in due time a majority of our streets not only smooth and clean but paved in a way that will last for a great many years.

CHAUFFEUR GOES TO PRISON.
Twelve months to prison for the involuntary manslaughter of a pedestrian is the sentence of a reckless chauffeur at Stamford, Conn. That will help to make others cautious; but as we have remarked before there will never be security from such accidents on the highways until the automobilists are made responsible for all accidents in which they appear, whether they are to blame or not.

BOX OF DYNAMITE FOR BAGGAGE.
The man who is found traveling with a box of dynamite as baggage should be punished as if he had attempted to wreck a train. As it was, the man found so equipped at the North station in Boston put the lives of between five hundred and six hundred passengers in jeopardy. The box containing a number of sticks of dynamite, a quantity of powder and other explosives broke open when banged among trunks and baggage of various kinds. It was really surprising that the dynamite did not explode, and there was enough of it to blow up the entire train. The owner was bound for Italy, and there is no telling whether he intended to blow up some building or to assassinate some of the sovereigns of Europe.

THE TIVERTON TRAGEDY.
The Tiverton murder mystery seems to be assuming a more serious aspect. The police authorities are now inclined to believe that two girls were murdered instead of one. The parents of one girl have identified the clothing as that of their daughter, but they have practically decided that the body found is not that of their daughter. They reached this conclusion from the absence of a scar that marked the left hand of their daughter and does not appear on the hand of the body found. Should this prove to be the case the tragedy is much more serious than at first supposed. The mystery probably will remain unsolved until the woman's head shall have been found. That will at least help to clear up the mystery so far as one woman is concerned.

THE CAMPAIGN ISSUES.
In the campaign now progressing Eugene N. Foss is presenting strong arguments, showing the need of reciprocity with Canada and exposing the defects in the tariff bill recently passed. He emphasizes the necessity of more freedom in our intercourse with Canada for the exchange of products and particularly to secure the advantage of Canadian lumber which could be had at such a moderate price if the tariff were removed. Mr. Foss shows that many important items in the necessities of life could be had more cheaply if we were free to purchase them from Canada or if Canada were allowed to compete in the American market.

Mr. Vahey is exposing in a forcible manner the extravagance of the republican administration in this state while at the same time showing that republican legislation at the state house is dominated by the lobby which the democratic party would abolish. The underhand work of Senator Lodge as supreme boss of the party in Massachusetts is also being exposed and many measures introduced in the legislature as necessary for the public welfare have been defeated through the influence of Senator Lodge on the ground that they would injure the republican party. With the assistance of the labor unions of the state it seems that Messrs. Vahey and Foss should be able to overcome the republican majority. If the voters of this state were alive to their own interests they would elect the democratic ticket as a protest against the action of the republican party in breaking its pledges on the tariff, against the general policy of extravagance and against the domination of the legislature by Senator Lodge. The campaign now in progress is one of education in which the people are being enlightened on how to protect their own interests. The question is will they get out of the rut and vote for a change in the government?

An interesting sidelight was incidentally thrown on the methods of some titled fortune hunters in the recent announcement that two royal princes were about to set sail to lay their titles at the feet of George Gould's daughter. The etiquette of such expeditions, in many cases, is that commercial "outfitters" supply the fortune hunter with an assortment of clothes and haberdashery on the basis of double the regular trade prices of the goods. This is "banded." This form of industrial speculation must be very prevalent, for it is heralded as a radical departure from the usual thing that "Prince Romanski, one of the two modern Jansons who are hunting the golden one to be fleeced, actually paid $20,000, in cash for his "outfit." This statement created considerable of a sensation in the quarters. All the leading makers of shirts, clothes, jewelry, hats, socks, etc., were summoned to meet the prince at the leading Paris hotel, and there they were given orders to make him a sartorial paragon whose suit—or suits—it would be hard to resist. Thus accoutred, he is now, the report goes, about to move on the sun of the starry wizard of Wall street and ask the hand of his daughter in marriage. George Gould has upheld most worthily the honor of the family, and has gained the respect of his fellow countrymen generally by his simple and unostentatious Americanism, says the Kansas City Journal. He has his talent warnings in the domestic history of his "house," both foreign and at home, but his own immediate family has been unimpaired thus far. It is his own business and that of the prospective bride whether the record shall stand, but it is generally hoped that he will kick the prince over the transom. In any event, none of the expeditions against American fortunes has been fitted out with quite the frank commercialism displayed by the suitors for the hand of the latest nominee for princely rank.

One of the prisoners at the prison at Tellico, Tenn., has just been caught with a telephone in his cell. life. It is truth itself. It is without such three-word melodramatic elements as a deep-dyed villain, a persecuted heroine, an old maid and murder, and a peculiar fact. It is constructed out of a popular song. The story it tells is of every day people in a New England hill town with the sentiment and homely humor abounding in this community. The sermon it preaches is that of temperance in physical indulgence and liberality in religion. The danger of alcoholic intemperance, the weakness of hypocrisy and the saving grace of sincere religious profession and strictly moral conduct are all properly shown.
The wonderful church scene pronounced by experts to be the "exact reflex of the sacred edifice" in conjunction with the gifted choir boys who in this scene sing the beautiful hymn "The Holy City" and "The Palms," seemingly lift its beholders into the realms of the most holy.
Never in the history of dramatic works was an artist endowed with a more fascinating character than Miss Marion Kerby, who plays the part of the young wife in Charles Klein's masterpiece, "The Third Degree," which comes to the Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 21, for four performances. The play has established her so well in the eyes of the public and her manager, Henry B. Harris, that he has engaged Mr. Klein to construct another play, along potent lines, that will give her another opportunity to display her wonderful powers of emotion. The new play in all probability will touch along some theme of public interest, such as her present vehicle, or "The Lion and the Mouse," which Mr. Harris also produced and which is from the pen of the same author, and is ordered to be in readiness for Miss Kerby immediately after her tour in "The Third Degree."

Is Your Appetite Always Good?
Why can't you eat as you used to? Simply because your liver doesn't do its work properly. Its business is to take bile out of the blood, which acts as Nature's cathartic, but your liver is sluggish and the bile accumulates too fast, and you feel worn out, tired and lifeless, and each succeeding day brings no relief. The use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will regulate your bowels, stimulate your liver, and promote a healthy, vigorous appetite.
Mr. RAY W. DIXON, of Sanford, Me., writes: "I have gained ten pounds. I can now eat all kinds of food."
Try them and you will be convinced that these little vegetable pills are indeed a tonic and stimulant to the functions of the liver. Then your brain will be active, your mind clear, and health conditions again established and you can eat anything. Get your liver right. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills act gently but surely on the liver. Physicians use and recommend them. They form a habit. You should always keep them on hand. These little Vegetable Pills will ward off many ills.

THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST. which is offered at the Opera House tonight for a three days' engagement, is a delightful sentimental play from the pen of William B. Gray and well known to our theatre-goers. It possesses the power to appeal to that which is good within us and adds yearly legions to its multitude of admirers.
The story of the drama is simple and is blended with genuine comedy and exceptional pathos. There is not a dull moment throughout the play and the plot is never permitted to flag in the quaintness of the characters presented and in the realism of its reproduction of phases of Vermont life.

Miss Helen Donovan, formerly of Rochester, has been elected by the 115-vaudeville board of education to take charge of the new trade school for girls soon to be opened. For the last few years Miss Donovan has been teaching dressmaking in the State Agricultural college at Ames, Ia. At one time she was at the head of the dressmaking department of the Mechanics Institute of Rochester.
Miss Elizabeth Goldstein, who has just been appointed sanitary inspector in Boston, is the first woman to hold such an office in New England, and excepting Jane Addams, the only one in the country. Miss Goldstein had been engaged in settlement work for several years before receiving her appointment and declares that the problems that she has to face in both occupations are very similar.

To be Built by Chicago Packer
NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—J. Ogden Armour, the Chicago financier, is behind the scheme to build a freight subway system in New York city. The plan is to construct tubes under the Hudson and East rivers from New Jersey to Long Island and to tunnel under Broadway from a point near the Battery to Harlem with collateral tubes. The tubes will be only fifty-four inches in diameter, and the tiny freight cars will be operated by electricity. The franchise under which Mr. Armour and his associates hope to build the subways was granted in 1868. The matter is now before the New York transit commission.

They render a number of new and catchy songs. Douglas A. Flint, prince of light comedians, and a selected company will present the sparkling one-act comedy "The Alchemist" by Herbert Hall Winslow. The plot relates to various mixes in which the Alchemist and a friend of the family become involved, and abounds in bright lines and absurdly comic situations. Al Yoder is an expert on the bounding wire, and his exhibition of skill will afford one of the most remarkable and interesting performances of the kind ever seen at the Hathaway. Williams, Thompson & Co. are a merry coterie who offer a laughable sketch, the characters in which are a telegraph operator in a railroad station, his chum, and a "barney" who is waiting for a girl. The station is supposed to be haunted, and the operator and his friend play upon the darkey's superstitions with comic results. The blackface "mommy" grimaces are a study in expression, and several good songs help out the bright dialogue. Stuart and Keely, a man and woman, who make a novel entrance as passengers in a practical automobile, offer a jolly "society" of singing and dancing. The usual series of up-to-date moving pictures closes the bill.

Large Gathering at Club House Saturday Evening

Cricket Prizes Presented and Interesting Address Made by President Henry Robertshaw

The 16th annual banquet of the United States Bunting Cricket club was held Saturday evening at the club house in South Lowell with an attendance of over 150 members and guests. The feast was held in the hall of the new club house, which is located on a knoll overlooking the bowling green. The Page company catered and the exercises were presided over by Henry Robertshaw, president of the club, who in opening the postprandial exercises made a speech of welcome and introduced as toastmaster Mr. Joseph Ellis. The latter then introduced the mayor, who spoke on "The City of Lowell."

Major Robert J. Crowley was next introduced and he gave an interesting sketch of the growth and development of the water department.

Hon. Joseph H. Hubbard responded to the toast "The Commonwealth," and Lawrence Cummings spoke on "The Frigate." George Emelle, president of the Merrimack Valley league, spoke for that organization. Other speakers were Henry J. Draper, Alderman John W. Walcott, John W. Daly, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, Horbert L. Chapman, Thomas J. Fitzgerald and William Gail.

There were songs by Bert Ellis, Chas. Fairbrother and Thomas Poole. The address of the evening was made by President Robertshaw, who, in responding to the toast "The Bunting Club," spoke in part as follows:

"Every organization has an object. The striving for and the attainment of that object determines the right of the organization to its existence. And that is the standard by which the Bunting club wishes to be measured. The club had its commencement in the different departments of the Bunting mills challenging each other to play a game, then challenging other local clubs, such as Forge Village and North Billerica. In 1897 the old Lowell club disbanded and the Buntings organized, taking their schedule and played all their games and were so successful that the club gained a standing in cricket circles that it has maintained to the present time. Their object at this time was the promotion of cricket and other athletic games, such as bowling on the green, trap shooting, quoits, football, etc. In cricket we have won two pennants and held the Nicholson cup for one year, always having a team in the field; oftentimes two and if not winners have finished the season in a creditable position."

"From there, being only one club in Lowell and vicinity there are now five. I think we have attained our object and are still entitled to your continued support and encouragement. Three years ago last spring we decided to become incorporated and add another object to our organization, namely, to encourage social intercourse and improve the physical and moral qualities of the members. To accomplish that object we were confronted with the inadequate accommodations we had for the purpose and 18 months ago, with $200 in the treasury, we decided to build a new club house and I wish you to take what we have done as a measure of what the Bunting club is capable of accomplishing when it starts to do anything. Your committee relying on the support and generosity of members and friends plunged boldly into debt. But as boldly determined to maintain the credit of the club. We have worked so that we now possess our present club house free from debt and also have more than doubled our membership and improved its morale. This proves we are fulfilling a public need that it is not only legitimate but beneficial and the time is fast approaching if we have not already attained this position of Lowell's most representative club."

The cricket prizes were then presented. The first prize for batting was won by J. R. Hoyte, and the second prize by Hugh Rudden. The first prize for bowling was won by Hugh Rudden, and the second by Brook Southam.

The success of the banquet was due to President Robertshaw and Secretary Fred G. Humphries.

ALIENS PROTEST

Turks and Others Want to be Citizens

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The naturalization bureau of the department of commerce and labor is being flooded with protests from Massachusetts and other states against its ruling that Turks and other persons who were formerly able to become American citizens are no longer eligible for naturalization.

There are many thousand persons throughout the country who are anxious about the department's decision and it will require the decision of the supreme court of the United States to settle the matter. There is a case now pending before the court involving the issue raised.

For years Turks and some Asiatics were naturalized by the courts. In some cases they are still being naturalized, a southern court having recently issued the necessary citizenship papers to 20 Chinese at one time. The naturalization bureau admits that these cases exist, but says the situation is due to ignorance of the law on the part of many judges.

"Thousands of aliens have been naturalized after residing here only three months," said Acting Chief Clerk of the bureau, "but that fact does not make their naturalization legal, nor is it to be accepted generally as the correct interpretation of the law."

"The naturalization law was passed in 1906 and since then an attempt has been made to construe it strictly. It is not our fault if the local courts issue naturalization papers to persons who are not entitled to them. U. S. district attorneys are charged with the duty of appealing from the decisions of local courts which do not agree with the department's interpretation of the naturalization law."

Siberians Are Eligible

Under the department's ruling no Asiatic can hope to become an American citizen unless he is a Siberian. This ruling goes even farther than that. It excludes members of the Turkish race which has been established in Europe for 500 years. There the department ruling stops, however, for Poles, Hungarians and other Europeans whose races emigrated from Asia can become American citizens.

Hebrews, who are admittedly of Asiatic origin, can become naturalized, but Syrians and Armenians, who hail from the neighborhood of Palestine, cannot. Asked about these apparent discrepancies, Mr. Crist said:

"We are interpreting the law as it was meant to be interpreted. While a Turk may be a resident of Europe, he belongs to an Asiatic race. His ideals, religion, laws, politics and customs are Asiatic in character. He is not a white man in the general acceptance of that term."

"As for Hebrews, they have no nationality as such. They take the nationality of the country in which they reside."

If the department went back far enough it would find that the European race originated in Asia, but Europeans have lived in Europe so long and have changed so greatly in character that practically speaking they now constitute a separate and distinct race. A Parsee or a Hindu may be white in color, but that is his only resemblance as a race to the European."

DO NOT BE FORGERY HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Town Treasurer's Office Placed Under Police Guard

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 18.—Confronted with two notes for $25,000 each, one held by a Boston savings bank and the other by a trust company, both of which are purported to have been drawn by John B. Lombard, town treasurer, and purporting also to be approved and countersigned by William H. Walsh, chairman, and Frank B. Stockwell, a second member of the board of selectmen of last year, issued on October 23, 1908, and maturing last Friday, the present board of selectmen, William H. Walsh, Roger H. O'Brien and Herbert W. Damon, held a long session in the town officers' rooms Saturday night, after which a policeman was ordered to duty in the town treasurer's office to guard the books, papers and other documents of the town.

In addition the town officials have been informed that a Boston national bank also holds a like note for $25,000, making a total of $75,000 worth of alleged unauthorized paper outstanding.

The neighborhood of the Lombard home, corner of Clinton and Freeman streets has been patrolled by a policeman, while Mr. Lombard has been in a physical and mental collapse, according to his physician, since Sept. 20.

On a certificate signed by Dr. Lewis M. Palmer, Mr. Lombard's physician, certifying that Mr. Lombard was unable either physically or mentally to discharge the duties of town treasurer further, the selectmen before adjourning, voted to appoint temporarily Arthur M. Platts town treasurer, and he has accepted and will enter upon the duties today.

HYLAN IS WINNER

Lowell Boy Carried Off the Honors at Golf

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—John B. Hylan, the young Vesper Country club golfer, came through the final match yesterday for the Country club cup in sensational golf. He defeated P. W. Whittemore, the crack Country club player, by 1 up, after having eliminated Walter J. Travis of Garden City in the semi-finals by 2 up. Both defeated golfers were favorites over the young finalist, and to have disposed of two such players not only recorded the most surprising chapter in Clyde Park open amateur tournaments, but was glory enough for any American amateur in one day.

Travis went into the semi-finals with the halo of a glorious past, and three times has Whittemore won Country Club cups in such events. Hylan never before has occupied any such prominent position in Country Club meetings. That Hylan was a player of splendid possibilities every one admitted, but in the same breath his most conservative critic would add that his command of his strokes was anything but precise.

A large gallery was on hand to watch the final. Hylan was at least 20 yards away on the drive to the first hole, Whittemore having got a perfect shot for distance and being straight for the pin. The Country Club player made a dismal failure of his second for distance, having topped, and took three to the green. Hylan was at the right of the green in two and 10 feet from the cup in three. He needed the putt to win the hole, and he got it down. Hylan might have won the second, for the same thing happened to Whittemore's second going to that hole, but ordinary approaching gave him a half in five. Hylan took the third hole, Whittemore having topped his second, and the fourth was squared in bogey four.

Hylan was on the fifth green in two, Whittemore in three, and the Vesper player got a four for the hole, winning it. At the sixth Hylan had a perfect three, one under bogey, and won the hole. The short seventh Hylan was on the green on his tee shot, about 25 feet from the cup. It was a most difficult putt to get down, but he went straight for the cup, and the win of the hole gave the Vesper player a lead of 5 up and a medal of one under fours for seven holes.

They halved the eighth in 55, and poor putting cost Hylan the long ninth, the first hole thus far in the match won by Whittemore. With a 6 for his hole, Hylan was out in 35. At the 10th Whittemore was lucky to halve a half in 4 after his tee shot failed to reach the green. Hylan was on from the tee and looked a sure winner, but three putts was the best he could do. Hylan put his drive out of bounds going to the 11th, and his second was sliced so badly that he was barely out of the woods in 3. He took 4 to the green and Whittemore, who played his tee shot as long and as straight as a die, was on in 2, whereupon Hylan gave up the hole. Hylan was in trouble at the 12th, having over-approached and took 6 to Whittemore's 5 and the win of the

Played a Tie Game With Boston Latin School Eleven

By playing a tie game with the Boston Latin eleven Saturday afternoon at Spalding park the Lowell High school football team showed that hereafter it has got to be classed in the same category as are the crack school teams in Greater Boston. That the game ended with a score of 5 to 5 demonstrated the fact that the local team has shown wonderful improvement and those who thought that they would get trounced Saturday are now willing to acknowledge that there is splendid timber in the lineup and that under the careful direction of the coaches the team should give an excellent account of itself before the close of the season.

The work of the Lovells both on the offense and defense, came as a surprise to the followers of the game, and the visitors, who thought that they were going to have an easy time in capturing the game, showed their discomfiture and surprise before the game had progressed many minutes.

The game started with Lowell kicking to Boston, but the latter failed to make the required ten yards and had to resort to a punt. Lowell then with the ball worked down towards Boston's goal. Forced to punt, Lowell lost the ball to the left and forward passes the Latin school men at last obtained possession of the ball on Lowell's 25 yard line.

Logan, the Boston quarterback, then threw a forward pass. McMahon, the high end, instead of blocking the Boston man and allowing the ball to fall to the ground, tried to catch the leather and just touched it. The ball fell into the arms of Gorman, who hastened across the line for the first score of the game. Pendergast failed to kick the goal, and the half ended soon after.

When Lowell came onto the field in the second half it secured possession of the ball. Gargan carried the ball nearly the length of the field, but lost it when near the Latin goal line. A kick sent it out of danger, and again Lowell started her second march down the field.

With good team work and line plunges by Gargan, Canney and Donovan, the ball was carried to Boston's five yard line. Here the visitors put up a strenuous battle and on the first down but one yard was gained. The ball was pushed two yards nearer the goal on the next down. On this down there was an awful scrimmage. Gargan was on top of the ball, while 21 players were doing their best to keep on top of Gargan.

When the referee pulled the players off, the ball was resting on the right side of the goal line and Lowell had scored a touchdown and tied the score. Rooney missed the kick for the goal.

The lineup of the teams was as follows:

AN OPEN SWITCH

Caused a Bad Railroad Accident

LA FRANCE, Texas, Oct. 18.—The "Katy Flyer" on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, southbound, ran into an open switch at Halstead, six miles east of here, yesterday, crashing into a freight train. Engineer Crawford, of the freight train, and Fireman R. Stutsman, of the passenger train, were killed, and several passengers were injured. Both engines were badly wrecked and the baggage and mail cars were demolished.

$1,000,000 LOSS

Was Caused by Fire in Quebec

QUEBEC, Oct. 18.—The loss from the fire which swept Quebec's waterfront late Saturday night and early yesterday will exceed $1,000,000. Besides the Canadian Northern railway elevator, where the fire originated, the Redford line steamer sheds, the harbor commissioner's sheds, a cold storage building and the customs house were burned. All of the buildings were full of grain and goods awaiting shipment on ocean going vessels.

FIREMEN INJURED

Fire in Baltimore Did $400,000 Damage

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—Fire yesterday in the large six story double Frederick building at Baltimore and Eastway streets did damage approximately $400,000. By the falling of a large section of one of the walls upon an adjoining building six firemen were slightly hurt.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., October 18.—Mrs. Mary Sansone, 40 years old, and her daughter Emma, 10, are dead, and a son, Harry, 13, is dying, and the father and another child are seriously ill from eating toadstools. The toadstools were gathered by the father, who mistook them for mushrooms.

THE PRESIDENT COKE

Says We Cannot Afford to Reduce Army

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18.—President Taft last night dedicated a new chapel at Fort Sam Houston. Speaking of the army and religion, he said:

"I would desire to say that an exceptional circumstance has contributed toward the erection of the army post here and one that speaks wonders to the people of San Antonio and for the army of the United States stationed in this beautiful city. It has not always been so at every post as it is here where you love the army and where the army loves you."

At this point the choir in which Mayor Callaghan was seated broke with a crash, the mayor narrowly missing a fall to the floor. Turning quickly when he heard the noise and seeing the cause, President Taft smiled and remarked:

"I am delighted, my friends, that I am standing at this time."

"Under our constitution we do not unite the church and the state. Some say this is a coldness on the part of our government toward religion. You know and I know that such is not the condition. The government encourages morality and religion in every department of its people."

"To house, clothe and discipline from 60,000 to 100,000 men is a great task, and certain restrictions must be thrown around them. In order that the men may have the opportunity to worship God, the government employs chaplains at salaries paid by the government."

"The army has not received the praise it deserves. Sometimes certain people at Washington take what you call a fall out of the army."

"The supporters of the army do not come quick enough or often enough to the defense of the attacks. They do not defend that army of devoted men as they should."

"I do not think we can afford to reduce the army at all. Some statesmen see a threat when the talk is made to increase the army. I will leave it to the people of San Antonio to say if they fear that the free institutions of our country are endangered by an efficient army of 100,000."

THE NEW PASTOR

Preached First Sermon at Paige St. Chusce

Large congregations gathered at the Paige Street Free Baptist church Sunday morning and evening to listen to the sermonizing of the new pastor, Rev. B. B. Harris. In the evening he spoke from the fifth chapter of Kings II, telling the story of Naaman, who was cleansed of leprosy by Elisha the prophet. He said that Naaman was in a high position and had been rewarded by his king again and again for victories, but he was a leper, and accordingly his attainments were valueless. He had to face the fact that he had the terrible disease, leprosy.

Accordingly in every day life, it is possible to say that a man is a good fellow—but he is a sinner unless he has confessed Christ and been baptized into the faith. Mr. Harris said that he did not believe in secret Christianity, and that there could not be any secret Christian, for to be a Christian the act must be avowed.

It was not so cold at the army aviation field this morning and the aviators displayed more enthusiasm than they had during the past few days.

LOWELL GAS LIGHT CO.

3000 IN LINE KILLED HERSELF

Catholic Societies of Lawrence Parade

LAWRENCE, Oct. 18.—The observance of the 50th anniversary of the coming of the sisters of Notre Dame to this city began yesterday, when a mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in St. Mary's church in the morning and a parade of Catholic societies held in the afternoon, followed by religious services.

There were about 3000 in line in the parade, which was made up of three divisions. Rev. James T. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Mary's church, under whose direction, assisted by the officers of St. Mary's school alumni association, the celebration was arranged, was chief marshal.

As the procession passed St. Mary's church selections were played on the chimes. From the convent the paraders were reviewed by the sisters. A number of business houses, St. Mary's parochial residence, the convent, St. Mary's school buildings and Hilbernian hall were decorated in honor of the occasion.

Rev. Fr. O'Reilly, O. S. A., was celebrant of the mass, which was attended by the sisters and members of the religious communities. He was assisted by Rev. Daniel J. Kelleher, pastor of St. Peter's church, Lowell, as deacon and Rev. Eugene Dorgan, O. M. L., as sub-deacon. Rev. John A. Whelan, O. S. A., was master of ceremonies.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college. He spoke of the efficient work of the sisters and commented upon the foresight of Rev. Fr. O'Donnell, through whose efforts the first group was sent to this city, in appreciating the possibilities of the growing community as a parochial school field.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man and Woman Were Found Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Surrounded by broken furniture and smashed crockery that the couple evidently had thrown at each other while a quarrel was in progress, the bodies of Mrs. Maurice Harpham, 42 years, and her husband, aged 44, were found by the police yesterday morning in their home, 3447 North Hutchinson street.

In the right hand of the woman was a revolver. Two bullet wounds were in the man's chest, and lying beside him, shot through the head, was the wife. The police believe that the woman killed her husband and then turned the weapon on herself. Harpham was a son of Police Sergeant Harpham.

Neighbors say a fearful struggle took place. Several times men aroused by the sounds of breaking glass and the smashing of a chair went to the front door of the Harpham home and rang the bell. No attention was paid to the summons, but each time the interruption came the couple quieted down to renew their fight later.

SAN FRANCISCO'S PORTOLA FESTIVAL

NICHOLAS A. COVARRUBIAS.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE NEW SAN FRANCISCO.

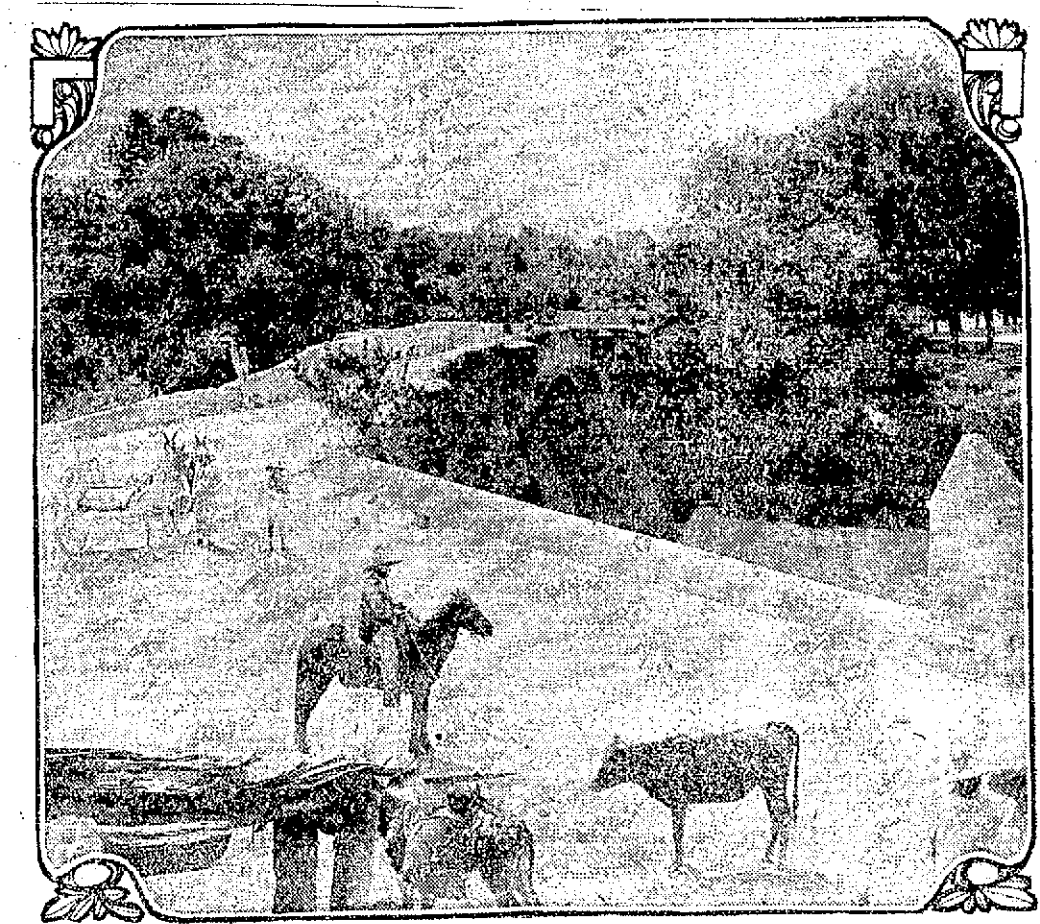

VIRGILIA BOGUE.

It is a year of pageants. The next United States event in this line is the Portola festival. It opens in San Francisco Tuesday, Oct. 13, and closes on the Saturday following. It is to commemorate the discovery of San Francisco harbor by Don Gaspar de Portola, the first Spanish governor of California, in 1768, and the rebuilding of San Francisco three years after it was made desolate by earthquake and incidental calamities. President Taft will be there. England, Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Mexico, China and Japan will be represented. An American fleet of cruisers, torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers and monitors, and cruizers from China and Japan, on which will be princes of those empires, bearing messages of good will and peace from their sovereigns to the people of the United States, and San Francisco in particular, will maneuver and anchor in the bay as the occasion calls for. They will be welcomed by the great guns that guard the Golden Gate. The pageantry in the city will be accentuated by the appearance of picked divisions and squadrons of United States infantry and cavalry. The initial number of the series of events will occur on the opening day, when President Taft will propose a toast to San Francisco. Following that, other toasts will be given by the representatives of the crowns of Europe and President Diaz of Mexico. By a clever contrivance of telegraphy the school children of the United States will tender a salute to San Francisco. Then the festival proper will be declared open. The first vista of pageantry will be the entrance into the city of Don Gaspar de Portola, as king, and his queen. The king will be impersonated by Nicholas Covarrubias of Santa Maria, Cal., and the queen by Miss Virgilia Bogue, daughter of Virgilia Bogue, chief engineer and vice president of the Western Pacific. Miss Bogue is one of the beauties of the Pacific slope. She will be accompanied by a number of young women of San Francisco, who will be arrayed in befitting manner. These maids of honor have been selected from the wealthy families of the west on account of their social standing and acknowledged comeliness and grace. The king and queen attendants will be escorted by the Portola dragons. The organization comprises representative young business men of the city. They will be uniformed in the correct costumes of the period at the time Portola first saw the bay. Each dragon will have for his mount a fine specimen of black horse drawn from the United States cavalry service. This escort will consist of a hundred, each six feet in his boots, and will carry glittering Damascus blades. The trappings will be unique and carry the spectator back in the days of knight hood. The escort will also be the bodyguard of President Taft while he is in the city. In the days of old the monarchs chose for their personal guard the handsomest and most loyal members of the nobility. The idea will be carried out by the king of the Portola festival. For a week at least the dragons will be prices of the blood. Following closely upon the heels of this cavalcade will be the flower of the army and navy, of the California military divisions and the jacksies of all the foreign navies represented. Uniformed branches of all the civic societies of the state, including the crack drill teams of each, will have their place in the line. All these will welcome Portola to the city. Other parades will occur during the week, and they will illustrate the civic, industrial, state and international phases of life. Every city and town in California will be represented in some, if not all, of these parades. Decorations and Color Scheme. Nearly all the buildings of San Francisco are fresh from the hands of the artisan, and this fact will enhance the beauty of the decorations which have been put in place by the generosity of the men of the city who within three years have transformed the western metropolis of the continent from smoldering ruins into a city of marble and splendor. Descriptions of these decorations warrant the statement that they will be entirely different from anything of the kind ever attempted by any composite of wealth and pride. The night spectacle of the festival promises to surpass all other attempts in that line. The topography of the city, the formations of the bay and its picturesque contour lend to any plan of magnificence undertaken by man. More money will be expended on the night spectacle than on any other for this reason. A striking feature of the Portola festival will consist of a color scheme to be observed by the citizens. Every man, woman and child of the rebuilt city will wear a decoration of red and yellow—carnival colors—in order that they may be identified with the affair and thus invite visitors to apply to them for any information concerning the festival or the history of the city. In order to perfect this plan a school of instruction was opened by the city for its inhabitants wherein they learned the story of the discovery by the first Spanish governor of California and the losses entailed by the last earthquake and the rebuilding of the city. Spanish dress and mannerisms figured in the early history of San Francisco, and it has been suggested that as far as possible there shall be some reproduction of the customs and habits of the early settlers. The dress of Spanish women was particularly picturesque in the olden times, and the women of San Francisco will contribute as much as possible to a reproduction of the Spanish atmosphere. This will bring in the sombrero, the jaunty mantilla, the corbata and any other touch of Spanish days that will add to the spirit of the occasion which the festival will represent. Such a scheme will make the theater particularly impressive and add to the gaiety of the streets. In order that foreigners who are not able to be present during the festival may have some conception of the extent of the affair illuminated posters giving details of the event have been sent broadcast over the world. Some of these have been duly forwarded to all potentates, and one was sent to President Roosevelt. The posters are twenty-seven inches long and it placed end to end would form a ribbon twenty-one inches wide that would, if one were placed every quarter of a mile, encircle the globe. Athletics, Aeroplanes and Motorcars. While the festival will represent these touches of days that are gone, it will embrace all the modern phases in the line of athletics and games of every description. Champions of these games will be present from every quarter. There will be sport for every lover of sports, from the regatta to the foot race, and boxing and wrestling matches will occur at stated times, at which "classy talent" will appear. Of course, the automobile feature will be a telling event, for every model known will be represented both for exhibition and for speed. Finally, visitors will have an opportunity of witnessing aeroplane flights.

To this end all of the noted aviators of the world have received special invitations to be present, and some have signified their intention of being at the festival for the purpose of exhibiting the various types of flying machines. In order that the scope of the event might be correctly understood abroad Charles C. Moore, formerly president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, visited other countries, armed with credentials from the state department at Washington. Not only was he cordially received, but wherever he explained the object of his visit he received assurances that all the countries that heard him would be represented in some capacity in the unique spectacle. The Rehabilitated City by the Sea. Fortunately there is little in the San Francisco of today to suggest to the visitor the devastation that befell it in the spring of 1906, but it is not out of place to recapitulate briefly the extent of that disaster and that which has grown up in its path in the last three years. Three thousand acres of the business center of the city was a smoldering ruin after the awful earthquake grasped it, ruined its commerce and left desolate thousands of its inhabitants. Twenty-eight thousand buildings were laid level or thrown one upon the other in twisted heaps, the loss being reckoned at $300,000,000. There were no churches, no schools, no public buildings. The courts met in private residences that were outside of the belt of ruin, and ministers stood up in whatever vacant places they could find, knee deep in the ashes and dust of the squares and parks. Most of the money was in vaults that were heaped over with hot earth and debris, so that it was useless. There was no merchandise, and there were no buildings in which to place it if there had been. As is always the case in such conditions, ghoulies in human shape pillaged and plundered day and night. People accustomed to plenty, hourly starved, and women and children as well as men shivered from cold because of lack of clothes. But there was one thing which the calamity did not touch—the indomitable spirit of the people. All sorts and conditions stood shoulder to shoulder in the work of making streets and erecting temporary shelters and establishing and maintaining order. The work went on every hour. This is literally true, for torches and the few electric lights that could be arranged lightened the darkness so that the work of the day went on without interruption. In forty months the earthquake was a recollection. The city emerged from the downfall and took its place as the metropolis of the western continent. The building permits show that structures have been erected costing more than $30,000,000 in excess of the total value of the buildings destroyed. BERNARD LYLE.

TAFT AND DIAZ IN TEXAS AND MEXICO

Military and Civic Jubilee and Banquet to Mark the Meeting of the Two Presidents in El Paso and Juarez.

THE only international incident, President Taft will be received at the in the 13,000 mile journey of Chamber of Commerce by the Ohio society and by the Yale alumni. Time, weather and inclination permitting, the president will inspect the El Paso golf course. At 5:30 he will return to Juarez as the guest of President Diaz, who will preside at the banquet. President Taft and his party will return to El Paso at 8 o'clock and at once begin the trip through Texas, and President Diaz will start at the same hour for his return to his capital. This is only a dash of the program of the day. The incidents that will crowd the occasion will make the event one never to be forgotten by those who will be there and form a bit of international history for all time. When the grizzled chief of Mexico pays his respects to the president of the United States in El Paso 3,000

United States troops will be drawn up in line. The gorgeously arrayed and famous military band from Fort San Houston, Tex., will be there, mounted on iron gray horses that have been so trained that they wear no bridles. The bands of the Ninth and Nineteenth regiments of infantry will play their part. The army will be represented by the Third cavalry, the Ninth infantry and three batteries from Fort San Houston, augmented by the first battalion of the Nineteenth infantry under command of Colonel J. F. Houston. All will be under the command of General Albert A. Myer of the department of Texas. Mexico will be represented by a regiment of cavalry, a regiment of infantry, three batteries and three bands, including the band of President Diaz and the bodyguard of the Mexican president. After the formal greeting between the presidents the military and civic societies will accompany them through the streets of El Paso to the International bridge spanning the Rio Grande. At the Texas end of the bridge the United States escort will halt. The two executives will cross the bridge without any escort except the mayor of El Paso and the mayor of Juarez. On the Mexican side the Mexican troops will be in line and precede the presidents to the federal building, where the president of the United States will become the guest of the president of Mexico. After the exchange of greetings in

HARRY WHITNEY, GENTLEMAN SPORT

Sudden Publicity of a Hitherto Unknown Young Man Caused by the North Pole Controversy Between Peary and Cook

WHEN Harry Whitney sailed from New Bedford with Peary on the Roosevelt July 9, 1908, to hunt polar bears and any other game in which he might become interested he did not foresee that he would become a factor in the story of the dash for the north pole. Had he done so he would have saved a whole lot of people considerable trouble, for in that case he would have left some records about himself that would be interesting reading matter just now. But Harry Whitney at the time of his departure never thought he would be "wanted" as a writup. He was what thousands of other young men of rich families are. He was out for a good time in the line of sport—a "good fellow" in a certain set, with enough wanderlust in his nature to send him scurrying hither and yon by land and sea, with no definite goal on his gridiron of expectation. For awhile after Peary had sailed Whitney was lost to the world. As soon as Dr. Cook returned he put Whitney on the map; then Peary, back from his discovery, put northern lights about the young man from New Haven, Conn. The discussion as to who found the pole first was temporarily hung up to await the coming of Harry Whitney from his bear hunt. "Wait for Whitney" was passed along the wires and through the air. Well, Whitney is back from the chase, and what he has said has not settled the controversy. Ranchman and Sport. The Whitney family record containing the birth of the young man who has been thrust into the light of publicity has not been opened to the public. It is known, however, that he is the elder of the two sons of Stephen Whitney of New Haven, Conn. He is still a young man. His brother was graduated from Yale only last June. The statement has been made that Harry Whitney received considerable property from the late Bradish Johnson, his grandfather, a rich man of New York city. Harry is not college bred. When he left high school he went at once to learn the copper manufacturing business. After three years at this in Ansonia, Conn., he quit and sailed from New York city for Australia and engaged in raising sheep. He was not successful in this venture. He returned to this country and bought a ranch in Arizona. He divided his time between the ranch and prospecting, and while engaged in the latter he nearly found his finish. While riding a munting a winged insect peculiar to that country flew into his ear. He was unable to remove it. He was a hundred miles from the nearest town, but he put down to his mount and reached Tucson. When he arrived he was raving mad. Fortunately for him, he wore the insignia of the Elks, and members of while waiting there for the explorer he superintended the building of two power boats of the whaleboat model, and these he presented to Peary on the latter's arrival at New Bedford. The first picture of Whitney that the public saw was the one taken of him while he was standing in one of these boats. He has the distinction of being the first young American to go to the far north in search of game. He spent the long winter night in that remote land in sledging, and when he returned to civilization he had twenty-one musk oxen and arctic deer to his credit, but the polar bear had kept out of his range. Harry Whitney inherited his love of sport from his father, who was known in New York city and in New Haven as a "thoroughbred." The older Whitney was a splendid type of the sport loving gentleman. The family consists of two sons and two daughters. The latter are Mrs. Charles Dickey of New York city and Mrs. William Blodgett of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. Harry's mother was the daughter of Bradish Johnson of New York city and Long Island, and he was a country gentleman of distinction and wealth. The father and mother of Harry Whitney are dead, but his stepmother is still living. The young man who has been shoved into notoriety without any effort of his own fills the definition of all round sport. He has the spirit of adventure and has the faculty of recording what he sees and hears in a happy vein, for he loves to write. He has a vein of humor and tells a story well. MILLER WOODSON.

SHOE WORKERS MEET

For the Purpose of Organizing a Union

Employees Were Addressed by Organizer Robinson and Supt. Shanahan on Federal Company Difficulty—Organization Will be Perfected at Meeting Friday Night

A meeting of the last of the Federal Shoe company, together with representatives of all the different departments of the shoe shops in Lowell, was held at the Leather Workers' hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a branch of the shoe workers' union, the total number of shoe workers in this city being 2800. There were about 50 present and they were addressed by Organizer Robinson of Lynn, who spoke on the benefits of organization, and stated that on Friday another meeting will be held for the purpose of perfecting the organization.

The differences at the Federal Shoe Co. were then discussed and Supt. Daniel Shanahan of the local branch of the company, who was present on invitation, was given the floor. Mr. Shanahan addressed the gathering on the situation as far as the employers' side of the case was concerned, and when he had finished, Organizer Robinson suggested that the matter be taken before the state board of arbitration for a settlement. Mr. Shanahan stated that there was nothing in the case that called for arbitration, and the suggestion was not adopted.

The local plant of the Federal company opened in all departments at the usual hour this morning. Mr. Kingsley, general manager of the company, made the following statement to a reporter of The Sun: "Everything is running smoothly at the plant today, though of course, not exactly as a few days before. We have filled the places of most of the lasters who are not working, but have not filled all. The situation is peculiar. It is not exactly a strike and I think the state statistician might call it a lock-out, though it is hardly that. We are paying our help more than any other shoe shop in Lowell is paying for the same class of work and that is not all, but our help are earning more than the employees in other local shops on the same class of work. We are not only paying the prices, but we are giving our employees a chance to earn money. Now when we suddenly received a demand for more pay from the lasters we shut down for two days to think the matter over. Suppose in your business you were paying your compositors more than any other Lowell newspaper, and they should come to you with a demand for more pay, you would immediately stop and think it over. After two days' shut down we announced that we would reopen at the same rate of wages, regretting that we could not grant what they demanded. The lasters did not return and we started to fill their places. That is the situation. We cannot do differently."

KING ALFONSO

Said to Have Had Violent Quarrel With Spanish Premier

PARIS, Oct. 18.—A special from Madrid says that King Alfonso had a violent quarrel with the premier because of the latter's failure to give his majesty an opportunity to exercise the royal prerogative of pardon in the case of Ferrer. The despatch says that the unpleasant interview followed when the king learned of the tempests that had been raised abroad by Ferrer's death.

FALL OF PREMIER PREDICTED

MADRID, Oct. 18.—The fall of Premier Maura is anticipated if former Premier Moret announces in the chamber of deputies today, as an article in the Diario Universal intimates that he will do; that the liberal party must be newly constituted. The Diario Universal makes a sensational attack upon the government in an article headed: "Not one hour longer."

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGED

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—Dr. George Fritch was arraigned today on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Maybelle Millman whose dismembered body was found in cement sacks in Fecoroe creek. Dr. Fritch stood mute when Justice Jeffries asked him to plead to the charge. Bail was fixed at $15,000 with two sureties and the physician was remanded to the county jail. His examination was set for October 22.

COL. ROOSEVELT

Had a Narrow Escape From Being Killed by Elephant

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Friday, Sept. 15.—Mr. Cresswell, a government engineer in the public works department at Nieri, came into Nairobi today and brought word that Mr. Roosevelt had a very narrow escape when shooting his first elephant bull. When shooting elephants it is often necessary to creep into the herd and shoot the selected bull at a range of from 15 to 20 yards.

Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Mr. Cunningham, followed this procedure and killed his elephant at the second shot. Suddenly before Mr. Roosevelt could reload, another elephant charged him at close range from the herd. Both Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Roosevelt got behind trees and Mr. Cunningham fired, turning the bull from Mr. Roosevelt, just in time. Other reliable sources confirm the account of Mr. Roosevelt's narrow escape.

LARCENY CHARGE WHO PAYS COUNSEL

Against Boys Arrested in This City

The three boys who were arrested in Palmer street, Friday afternoon and sent to the police station on suspicion that they had committed larceny and who were sent back to Manchester Saturday were wanted in that city for the larceny of $42 in money from a house about six miles outside of Manchester.

The boys when brought to the local station gave their names, ages and addresses as Donald Dupont, 16, 55 Pearl street; Arthur Houle, 14, 498 Carlier street and Lester Pineault, 14, of 13 Hollow street, Manchester. They said that after drawing their pay they went to Nashua and later came to this city for the purpose of spending the money.

The Manchester police were notified and an inspector came to Lowell and took the boys back to Manchester. This morning the local police were informed that the boys were wanted in the Queen City for larceny.

MGR. O'CONNELL

Visited This City This Afternoon

Archbishop O'Connell, accompanied by Rev. Fr. Coppinger of Boston, passed through Merrimack square this afternoon in the archbishop's limousine on an informal visit to this city, a brief stop being made at St. Peter's church.

The archbishop was readily recognized and was kept busy acknowledging the salutes of passersby along the sidewalks.

THE DICK LAW

Worked Well According to Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—January 21 next will be a critical date in the history of the national guard, for thereafter no portion of the money appropriated by congress for the support of the militia can be paid to any organization which fails to conform to the standards of the regular army.

The Dick law of 1903 originally prescribed a period of five years for bringing about the considerable changes necessary to place the guardsmen in uniformity of organization and equipment with the regular soldier. But as that time limit approached it was found that very few of the states had been able to conform and an extension was granted until Jan. 21, 1910.

Through its system of inspection of militia organizations by regular officers the war department is in possession of information regarding conditions. The detailed results will be made public in the forthcoming annual report of Colonel F. M. Weaver chief of the division of militia affairs.

On the whole, the war department expresses great satisfaction in the prospect, and the apparent success of the workings of the Dick law. Next year for the first time in its history, the militia or as much of it as remains under the captain of the national guard, will be found armed with the latest pattern of military rifles, clothed from head to foot in regular army gear, supplied with all regular equipment and with ranks filled to the requirements of the law.

PETITION IS DENIED
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The petition of the Delaware & Hudson R. R. Co. for a writ of certiorari bringing to the supreme court of the United States for review the case of the Albany & Saratoga railroad company vs. the Delaware company, was denied today by the supreme court of the United States.

In Case of Reinstated Police and License Board?

The Lawrence License Board Puts Bill for Counsel Fees in to the City—Lawyer Bent Non-Committal

Will the city be obliged to pay the counsel fees of Messrs. Bent, Johnson and Burke, in addition to the $4000 bill of the stenographers as the result of the recent police board hearing? If so, this year's administration will have proven to be one of the most expensive in many years.

According to the decision of Judge Dana, the city erred in its action against the commissioners, the mayor representing the city, and the question arises: "Should Messrs. Stearns, Hutton and Boulger be obliged to bear the expense of a hearing that should not have been brought in the first place?"

The police commissioners of Lawrence already have given notice that they shall call upon the city to pay their counsel fees as the result of their restoration to office after the mayor had removed them, as the following dispatch announces:

LAWRENCE, Oct. 18.—The approval and payment of the bills for services of attorneys, engineers and stenographers employed by the committee in the street department investigation has been followed by the presentation of other claims.

Following the example of Supt. Needham, the police officials who were dismissed by Mayor White at the beginning of his term of office and restored by order of the supreme court, have given notice that they will present bills for legal services.

There are other city officials who have been obliged to fight to retain their positions under the present administration who may ask the city to reimburse them for their outlay. It is hardly probable that the mayor will approve any of these bills, court proceedings will undoubtedly follow.

A Sun reporter called upon Messrs. Bent and Burke, the two local counsel in the case, this morning, and queried them relative to the matter of collecting counsel fees, but in response to the reporter's question, "Will the commissioners make a demand upon the city for the expense of counsel fees?" both were smilingly non-committal. The decision in the Lawrence case may be awaited, however.

Judge King, in addressing a jury in the superior court recently, relative to the acceptance of testimony, informed the jurors that the attitude and appearance of a witness is often more convincing than the spoken word and from the attitude of counsel when asked the question the unspoken word might be translated as an intimation that there may be something doing long.

On the other hand, it would seem that the position of the mayor relative to the employment of counsel in such cases is clear, and that the mayor cannot expect the city to pay his counsel in the case, inasmuch as the city provides a law department and a city solicitor for such purposes while the mayor saw fit to go outside and engage Messrs. Murphy and McEvoy.

WOMAN MORTALLY WOUNDED

JUVISY, France, Oct. 18.—A few minutes before Count Delambert returned to the aviation field here from his flight to Paris, Alfred M. Blanc, the French aeronaut, attempted his first flight in a Bleriot machine. Shortly after ascending the monoplane, as the result of a false shift of the rudder, turned into the tribune and fell, mortally wounding a woman and injuring a dozen other persons.

18 WERE ARRESTED

The rioters were headed off by strong bodies of police who charged them. Eighteen members of the crowd were arrested and held for trial.

PEOPLE TO DECIDE

Methodists Refer Question of Pastorate Limitation to Churches

This, the sixth and last day of the sixth general conference of the Primitive Methodist church being held in the Primitive Methodist church in Gosham church, is a busy one for the delegates.

The forenoon session opened with devotional exercises at 8.30 o'clock. The exercises were led by Rev. Joseph Sutcliffe. There was a meeting of the Preachers' Benevolent society and at 9 o'clock the conference got down to business.

Limitation of Pastors.
The question of limitation of pastorate, as to whether it should be settled on the conference floor or sent back to the churches, was resumed, the question being under discussion when the conference adjourned at noon on Saturday.

Some were in favor and others opposed to referring the question back to the churches.

Under the present system the stay of a minister at one and the same church is unlimited and the proposed system would limit pastorate to five years. All of the laymen were in favor of referring the matter back to the churches.

"Is our form of government Congregational and Presbyterian?" asked a clergyman delegate.

"Presbyterian," answered the chair.

"Then why should we have to submit to the people?"

A layman answered this question by saying: "I am a layman, a delegate from Pennsylvania and I want the ministers to understand that we are the people."

Another layman said he was surprised at the attitude taken by so many of the ministers.

"A very small majority of the people of my conference," he said, "knew anything at all about this question coming up at this time and if you gentlemen, you ministers, want to be fair, why don't you refer the matter back to the churches and give the people a chance to discuss it and vote upon it as Christian gentlemen you should do that."

Mrs. W. T. Blackeby
The first woman delegate to speak at the conference was Mrs. W. T. Blackeby of Brooklyn, N. Y., and she spoke to the question of limitation of pastorate. She was in favor of referring the matter back to the churches. There were groans of disapproval when one clergyman said the question should be settled "right here and now."

He said that the cream of the intelligence of the churches was represented at the conference and he allowed that the people would be satisfied with whatever action is taken at the conference.

The question was finally put to a vote. The vote was by yeas and nays and the secretary called the roll. The conference voted to refer the matter back to the churches by a vote of 37 to 22.

That there was a little bitterness of feeling among delegates was made manifest when the votes were taken. The Pennsylvania delegates could not seem to pull together very well. Some of them declared that their annual conference had instructed them in the matter of limitation of pastorate and that their instructions were not to refer the matter back to the churches, and the delegates made this explanation upon registering their "nay" vote.

There were other delegates from the Pennsylvania conference who declared they had not been instructed in the

JOHN LOG SHEE

WORCESTER, Oct. 18.—John Log Shee, a Milbury street laundryman, has just returned from China with a heavy heart, for the stern father of his sweet heart, had the young lover return to America, and await the time that his daughter was old enough to marry.

Shee, who is an Americanized Chinaman, speaks excellent English. For years he has toiled early and late to accumulate enough money to claim his bride. Six months ago he started for China.

Shee is of the opinion that his sweetheart will be old enough to wed in two more years. Then he will bring her to Worcester.

SUPREME COURT

To Review Findings of Lower Courts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The supreme court today announced its determination to review the findings of the lower courts in the case of McCue vs. the Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. This case involves the question as to whether the ordinary life insurance policy insures against hanging under sentence of the law. McCue is one of the heirs of the late Mayor McCue of Charlottesville, Va., who was hanged a few years ago on the charge of murdering his wife. The insurance company refused to make payment on a policy amounting to $15,000. The United States circuit court for the western district of Virginia decided in favor of the company, holding that death on the gallows was not one of the risks against which McCue was insured, but the court of appeals for the fourth circuit reversed the finding and held in favor of the McCue policy. The supreme court will go over the entire record and decide the case upon its merits.

SENSATIONAL FLIGHT

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Count Delambert, the French aviator, made a remarkable and sensational flight in a Wright biplane this afternoon. Leaving the Juvisy aviation field he flew, to Paris, circled about the Eiffel tower, at times reaching a height of about 1000 feet above the city and then returned to Juvisy.

AMERICAN ICE CO.

Placed on Trial on Charges of Illegal Monopoly

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The American Ice Co., which is said to control half of the ice trade in New York and vicinity, and its officers, were on trial today on charges of illegal monopoly. The result of this case, according to its own lawyers, means life or death to the corporation. After many days, an investigation, begun by State Attorney General Jackson nearly two years ago, culminated in this trial before Supreme Court Justice Wheeler of Buffalo, specially assigned, and a special jury. The ice company was allowed this jury a week ago because its attorney pleaded that the public mind was so inflamed against the corporation that a jury chosen in the ordinary way could not render justice.

The action is on four indictments found against the company in 1908. They charge that the company sought to prevent competition in the sale of ice and violated the so-called Donnelly anti-trust act. Deputy Attorney General Osborne, who has charge of the prosecution, said that the state could prove its case by documentary evidence. But attorneys for the ice company declared that the points of law involved are intricate and that the decision will be momentous to every corporation in the state. It is probable that most of today's session will be taken by the selection of a jury from the special panel of one hundred talesmen.

THE MORSE CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Martin Littleton said that the application to the United States supreme court for a writ reviewing the decision of the lower federal court sentencing Charles W. Morse, the former banker, to fifteen years' imprisonment probably would be made within two or three days. When Mr. Morse's sentence was sustained a week ago by the United States circuit court his attorneys secured a stay of forty days in which to make this final appeal.

TWO CAPTAINS KILLED

MELILLA, Oct. 18.—Three regiments and a mounted battery of the Spanish forces while reconnoitering yesterday west of Nador engaged and defeated the enemy. The Spanish then retired, having lost a commander and two captains killed and fourteen men wounded. The Moorish losses were heavy.

PUBLIC PROTEST ENTERED

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—A public protest against the execution of Ferrer and which it is designed to transmit to the Spanish government at Madrid is being circulated here. The paper expresses horror at what is termed "a legal murder," and among the signers are Prof. Harekel, the author and naturalist, formerly a member of the faculty at Jena university; Gerhard Hamptmann, Max Liebermann and Richard Dehmel.

U. S. OFFICIALS

Watching Progress of Nicaragua Revolution

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The progress of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua is being watched with keen interest by this government. The officials of the department of state declined to discuss the situation and present an attitude of diplomatically correct neutrality, but it is nevertheless well understood here that this government is in full sympathy with the Estrada movement against the Zelaya government. Those familiar with the government records regarding Central American affairs with the monopolies by which it is alleged President Zelaya has for years crippled the commerce of his country with the intrigues which have kept all Central America in a ferment and practically stifled republican institutions in Nicaragua and with Zelaya's evidence of disregard for the Washington convention could not but assume that foreign governments and foreign public opinion would welcome any change in Nicaragua. This would be especially true, it was said today by persons familiar with conditions, if the movement for a change were headed by a man like Juan Estrada, who has a reputation here crediting him with qualities of justice and character. The following statement was issued today by the state department:

"The leader of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua, Juan J. Estrada, has addressed the secretary of state announcing that he is holding the Atlantic coast from Greyton to Cape Gracias a Dios and has assumed the provisional presidency of the republic and asking recognition. He has also announced his appointment of Dr. Salvador Castillón, Jr., as agent to the government of the United States and requested that this government in turn accredit a diplomatic representative. It is understood that the wages of the United States government for many years has been to withhold recognition from the revolutionary parties in foreign countries unless they are in practical control of the machinery of government of the state, notwithstanding the fact that the United States has been in order to assist the acquisition of the people and a position in full responsibility and obligations of treaty and international law."

AT NOTRE DAME

Egan, Lowell. TWO MILITANT ENGLISH SUFFRAGISTS WHO COME TO AID CAUSE IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—All American woman suffragists who are really interested in the cause are looking forward to the coming of Mrs. Emmeline G. Pankhurst, the militant English suffragette, who is to lecture and otherwise spread the propaganda in the United States and Canada. She is militant in every sense of the term. She is a brave woman of large mold, a born leader and gifted with powers of oratory that any stump speaker would be proud to possess. Her able second and lieutenant is her daughter, Christabel, who bears the distinction of being one of the first women sent to prison in England for the cause of equal suffrage. The young woman was taken to jail six years ago for asking Sir Edward Grey what he intended to do about the suffrage movement. Mrs. Pankhurst will preside at a big suffrage meeting in Brooklyn, after which she will go to Troy to the suffrage convention. Then she probably will tour the country.

RIVALS CLASH

In Matter of Aviation Dates

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Oct. 18.—The fifteenth century rivalry which made York and Lancaster historic names seems to have been revived by the clash of aviation meeting dates here and at Doncaster and the qualification of Lancastrians at the somewhat depressive opening of the Yorkshire events, is poorly disguised. Certainly the conditions here and the presence of a number of the more famous flying men promises something nearer to the spectacular exhibition witnessed at Rheims than Doncaster offers and a large portion of the public interested in aviation has arrived here. The French aviators Farman, Paulhan, Bouguer and LeBlanc are here while Latham, Fournier and Fernandez are on their way. The rush of English competitors has surprised everyone as it was not realized that so many were prepared to attempt flights. No fewer than fourteen entrants are announced for the opening competition. All the machines are monoplane with the exception of two biplanes and one triplane. Today's competition will consist of a long distance flight with a first prize of $10,000, a speed contest for three circuits about the aerodrome with a first prize of $2000 and a special novel prize of $1000 for the aviator taking the longest time to circle the course.

COAL SHORTAGE

May be Caused by the Strike

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 18.—The protracted strike of the Cape Breton coal miners is beginning to show its effect on the coal supply in the maritime provinces. The dealers say there is every likelihood of a shortage on the bituminous product for the local mines and are making large importations from the mines of the United States and Scotland to meet their demands. Prices are also going up and it is claimed that Scotch coal can be sold here almost as cheaply as the Nova Scotia product. Recent shipments are arriving all the time from the United States.

BANK CASHIER KILLED HIMSELF

MINERAL POINT, Wis., Oct. 18.—F. E. Hanscomb, cashier of the wrecked First National bank of Mineral Point, shot and killed himself at 10 o'clock last night. Hanscomb's body was removed to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Grey, and at sight of the body Mrs. Grey dropped dead. Since the failure of the bank Hanscomb has been working night and day and was despondent.

BATONYI TRIAL FIRE DEPARTMENT

Began in New York City Ald. Adams Favors Important Changes

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The second trial of Mrs. Francis Burke Roche Batonyi's divorce against Aurel Batonyi, the noted whip, began here today. In outlining her case Mrs. Batonyi's attorney told the judge that two of the questions to be decided related to the defendant's alleged unfaithfulness. Batonyi was on hand when the case was called, but his wife had not appeared by the time a jury was obtained. Mrs. Batonyi's first suit was discontinued last June when her attorney walked out of court after failing to get a delay to secure important witnesses. The horseman pressed his counter suit for a separation and won it, but his victory did not interfere with the present action. Four women were mentioned in Mrs. Batonyi's complaint, but her counsel announced today that the charges involving two of them would be withdrawn. The first witness was Eugene Arcourt, a chauffeur. He said that in March, 1908, he drove Batonyi and a woman whom he did not name in his taxicab as far north as 156th street and then they returned. The taxi trip is the basis of one of Mrs. Batonyi's charges. Arcourt said that he did not see anything wrong in the actions of the defendant or his companion that night.

DID QUICK WORK

Special Rail Laid in Merrimack Square

The last piece of special rail work in connection with the improvement of Merrimack square was placed in position this afternoon by a corps of workmen of the Boston & Northern and Boston & Maine. The piece in question weighed about four tons and was a combination double rail electric and single rail steam railroad track which was placed near the canal bridge. Electric car traffic was held up for several hours as was steam railroad traffic but it was one of the quickest pieces of work from a railroad standpoint that has ever been done in Lowell. The work was done under the direction of Assistant Roadmaster Seymour of the Boston & Northern and Assistant Roadmaster Woodman of the Boston & Maine.

BIG FIRE WAGON

Fell Through a Bridge While Responding to an Alarm

BROCKTON, Oct. 18.—While responding to an alarm of fire from box 436 at 11:45 last night the aerial truck which was recently purchased for the fire department plunged through the East Ashland street bridge to Trout creek, ten feet below, injuring Driver Harris R. Weatherbee so severely that he is not expected to live and breaking several ribs and the right foot of John Casey, a call man. The alarm was rung in for a fire in the barn of Walter Pratt on North Quincy street, which resulted in the loss of a horse and cow and a total loss of the barn. The truck, with Driver Weatherbee leaning far out, the three horse hitch pounding along at full speed, swung around the corner of East Ashland street. There is a fair piece of road and Weatherbee urged his horses to a still faster clip to take advantage of the good ground. He knew that the East Ashland street bridge was in the course of construction, but saw the red light and a clear lane on one side. A few feet from the bridge Weatherbee saw where the boards ought to be a black gap yawning in front of him. He jammed the brake and threw himself back on the reins, but the momentum of the huge truck was too great, and without a perceptible slackening of speed, horses, truck and men plunged headlong into the gulf. Weatherbee was hurled head first under the horses, which, frightened into a fury, thrashed about in the shallow creek, their hoofs striking the prostrate man. The other four men were hurled into the stream and Casey sustained several broken ribs and his right foot was broken. It was a tangled mass of horses, men and harness that confronted Chief Harry L. Marston, who was closely following the truck to the fire. Leaping out of his automobile and disregarding the fire for the more pressing work of rescue, Chief Marston succeeded with the aid of the uninjured men in extricating Weatherbee from the horses and harness. Placing the driver and Casey in his automobile the chief hustled them to the hospital, where after examinations it was found that Weatherbee was hurt so badly that he is not expected to recover. The horses were taken out of the creek later, and were found to be badly bruised, scratched and stiff from their awful plunge. The truck was wrecked and will have to be entirely renovated before it is fit for further use. Chief Marston learned that whoever left the red light burning placed it on the wrong side of the bridge and led Driver Weatherbee into the trap.

SAILOR SAVED

By Means of a Novel Air Chamber

CRISFIELD, Md., Oct. 18.—One of the most remarkable escapes from death in marine annals is that of James O'Donnell, one of the crew of the schooner George W. Collier, which was wrecked in Chesapeake Bay on Friday. When the George W. Collier was wrecked it turned turtle. O'Donnell was caught in the forepeak of the vessel, and the rest of the crew, except one, was drowned. They were rescued after clinging for hours to the upturned boat. Hours afterward O'Donnell was found alive in a little chamber of air forced into the forepeak by the rush of water. When a big wave hit the schooner broadside she rolled heavily and before she had time to recover another roller sent her over. O'Donnell was below and did not have time to get out. The other men and Captain Webster leaped into the water and grasped the side of the craft. Just before morning broke the steamship Virginia picked up the crew, and Capt. Webster and his men were put ashore at Deals Island. When the boat turned turtle there was a rush of water which swept him far into the forepeak. Then the sailor found that his body was submerged in the chilling water; his head and shoulders were in a sort of air chamber. This compressed air not only kept him alive, but served to hold up the schooner. Captain Webster, his strength renewed, gathered several of his men and started out to see what could be done with his craft about noon Saturday. O'Donnell had then been a prisoner fully 18 hours. The schooner was towed into a shipyard and after considerable effort was turned over. To the amazement of the men O'Donnell, barely conscious, rolled out.

6 O'CLOCK SEVERAL LIVES SAVED Yachts Were Disabled by the Brisk Gale

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—All day long yesterday the United States lifesaving crew at Point Alderton were busy rescuing small fishermen, whose frail craft were overturned by the brisk gales that swept along the Hull shores, and towing disabled yachts to safety. The crew started in their work at 7 a. m., when they were notified of the capsizing of a small sloop.

Arthur Muelier, Charles Johnson and William Jansen, all of Quincy, had started out far from in a small boat, when one of the men climbed the mast to adjust the sail. A sudden gust of wind sprang up, overturning the vessel. The sloop Lucy of South Boston, Capt. Wells, was passing at the time and dragged two of the men from the water, while the power boat of the life-saving crew, under Capt. Sparrow, reached the scene in time to rescue the third.

The men had been in the water for forty minutes, and had nearly died from shock and exhaustion. The crew sent to the station for medical supplies, but it was over an hour and a half before the men recovered. They were taken to their homes in Quincy.

On the return trip the life-saving crew noticed that the large sloop Canoe, in charge of Capt. Lennox of the Chelsea Yacht club, has lost a mast and was in trouble in the strong winds. They towed the sloop to harbor off Hull hill, where it anchored.

At 3 p. m. the crew noticed a small sloop going through Hull Gut at a fast clip, headed for the sea, although no sails were up. They started out after it and succeeded in getting a line to the boat. The yacht was the Agnes, in charge of its builder, A. E. Thayer of Quincy, employed by the Fore River Engine company. He had started for a sail, but finding the gale too strong for his frail craft had lowered his sails, but in spite of every effort the vessel was being carried out to sea by the strong winds.

While fishing for smelt off Windermere station, Hull, Charles H. Paine of Conwell avenue, West Somerville, letter carrier at Medford, and William J. Blaisdell, a painter, of 25 1-2 Summer street, Somerville, were thrown into the water by the overturning of their boat. Blaisdell was hampered by his overalls, which were strapped to his shoulder, and though the distance to the shore was not far, did not dare to hazard the swim, so Paine stayed with him.

Another boat, in which were two fishermen, rowed over and took Blaisdell to the shore, where he was unable to stand for some time on account of exhaustion and the shock of the lev water. Although there were a score of boats at hand, Paine was compelled to remain in the water for twenty minutes until another boat put out from the front and came to his assistance. Both men were provided with a change of clothing by a resident near the boat and went home. Neither suffered any ill effects from the accident.

IN POLICE COURT Striking Object Lesson on Drunkenness

A living example of what liquor will do to wreck a man's life was witnessed in police court this morning in the person of Frank McCabe, a middle-aged man, who appeared in a pitiable condition.

The man was sentenced to jail for 20 days, but while he was waiting to be taken downstairs he collapsed and was carried into one of the ante rooms, where after considerable difficulty he was revived.

As the man was being led downstairs Judge Hadley said: "That is a terrible object lesson. Few of us realize it, however, and still every day finds new recruits to the army, not the Salvation Army, but the army of desolation."

Struck His Mother

Dana Saunders pleaded guilty to striking his aged mother and blackening one of her eyes. It was evident that he did not realize the position he was in, for he appeared to be very sulen and indifferent. The woman explained to the court that her son had been drinking heavily and was abusing her. She told him that a dog would not use her the way he did and he, thinking she called him a dog, struck her in the face.

"Despite the fact that the woman had the warrant sworn out against her son she pleaded with the court to place him on probation, feeling sure that he would do better in the future. "Your mother is anxious to have me place you on probation," said Judge Hadley. "What do you think about it?"

"Suit yourself about it," said Saunders, indifferently.

That answer came near resulting in the court suiting itself and the chances are that it would mean a jail sentence, but the plea of the woman caused the judge to pass over the man's remark and gave him a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Stole Tar Paper

John O'Dowd and John B. Burke, two young men, were arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on complaints charging them with the larceny of a roll of tar paper valued at $1.00 and the property of James F. Mooney.

They admitted their guilt and said that they had sold the roll for 50 cents. They were fined $10 each.

Drink Did It

George B. Flanagan, a former well-to-do merchant of Fitchburg, was before the court this morning charged with being drunk. His clothing was covered with mud, his stiff hat broken and his face badly cut, and it was evident that he had fallen into the gutter. He was given a suspended sentence of three months in jail and placed in the care of the probation officer in Fitchburg.

Arrested On a Capias

Daniel Donohoe, who had been on probation but failed to call on the probation officer as he had promised to, was arrested on a capias. This morning, however, after promising to do better, he was given another chance.

Charles E. Cahill promised to leave off drinking and he was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Other Offenders

John McEadden and Louis Lambert, parole men from the state farm, were returned to that institution. Thomas Egan was given a direct sentence to the state farm.

William Collins was the only Sunday drinker and he was assessed the usual $5.

Thomas Shea was under a suspended sentence of three months in jail but he broke the rules of his probation and the suspension of his former sentence was revoked and he was committed to jail.

Frank A. Hallowood will spend the next four months in jail.

Joseph M. Cary, Urie Patty, Peter Hoey, George L. McGinnis, John E. Carroll and Thomas P. Murray, charged with being drunk, were each fined $5.

Two first offenders were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released before the opening of the court.

TAXICABS UPSET And Their 10 Occupants Injured

APPONAUG, R. I., Oct. 18.—Two taxicabs were badly damaged and their 10 occupants injured, although not seriously, in two accidents on the Apponaug road, yesterday. The occupants of both machines formed one party which was bound for East Greenwich from Providence. The leading machine became caught in the tracks entering Apponaug road and was overturned down an embankment, being badly broken and precipitating those inside to the ground. The machine following, in order to avert crashing into the overturned taxicab, was headed sharply to the left where it ran up an embankment and then down again, overturning like the other.

He is survived by a wife and ten children. The remains were removed to his home by Undertaker A. Archambault.

TWO VIEWS OF DR. ROLLER, WRESTLER, WHO IS ON TRAIL OF FOREIGN MAT ARTISTS

ARCADE BLDG., SEATTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Bernard F. Roller, physician, wrestler, pugilist and all around athlete of Seattle, Wash., is now hot foot after the foreign mat artists who recently arrived in this country in search of fame and the coin. Roller says he is willing to take on any one of "em—Pat. Rooney, the Irish champion; Giovanni Raleovich, the Italian giant, or Zbyseo, the Polish mountain of flesh. The doctor also announces that he will bet anything from a toothpick up to a thousand simoleons that he can take the measure of any one of the foreign grapplers mentioned. Since his debut into the wrestling game several years ago Roller has met with considerable success, having only two defeats chalked up against him, those by Gotsch, the world's champion. The latter stated some time ago that Roller gave him the hardest tussle of his career. It is more than likely that the

HEART FAILURE KILLED BY TRAIN Caused the Death of The Victim a Former Buchanan Magazine Writer

LONDON, Oct. 18.—An inquest into the death of W. I. Buchanan, the American diplomat, whose body was found in Park lane late Sunday night, will be held on Wednesday. The official papers and personal property found in the rooms occupied by Mr. Buchanan at Claridge's hotel, have been turned over to the American embassy. Investigation thus far has failed to throw any light on the movements of the diplomat during the few hours preceding his death. Friends who had seen him during the day say that he appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. He left his hotel just before the dinner hour on Saturday, but where or with whom he dined, or how he spent the evening had not been learned today. There were no evidences upon the body of assault or robbery, and it is supposed that death was due to heart trouble or an apoplectic stroke. Mr. Buchanan was formerly American minister to Panama and later a special commissioner from the United States to Venezuela.

An autopsy upon the body of Mr. Buchanan was held this afternoon and although the official report has not as yet been given out, it is understood that death was found to be due to heart failure following a stroke of apoplexy. The body will be embalmed and sent to America at once.

PRINCESS LOUISE CONFIRMED 'IN THE CHURCH OF PEACE'

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Princess Victoria Louise, daughter of the German emperor and empress, was confirmed today in the church of Peace at Potsdam. The ceremony which marks the separation of childhood from womanhood, was conducted by Dr. Dryander, the favorite court preacher.

The princess, who was dressed in white, was led to the altar by the emperor and empress and other members of the imperial house. Many princes and princesses from the royal houses throughout Germany were present. The princess, who was born Sept. 13, 1892, is a pleasant faced girl, and described by foreigners who have talked with her as amiable and unaffected, and giving every evidence of the careful education which she has received. She is regarded as competent to make one of the best matches in Europe and it is thought likely that she will be married soon, probably to a member of a minor royal family of Germany, as the imperial policy appears to be the union of the Hohenzollern family with as many of the lesser German ruling houses as possible.

FOR WOMEN GOLFERS

BROOKLINE, Oct. 18.—An open tournament for women golfers was held at the Country club today as the concluding feature of the annual fall meeting. Many of the players who participated in the late national championships at Philadelphia were entered for today's events, including the British golfer, Miss Dorothy Campbell of North Berwick, who won the American championship and who carries the title across the water. Nearly all of the strongest local exponents of the game were also on the list, including two former champions, Miss Harriet and Miss Margaret Curtis of the home club. Players were also expected from New York and Philadelphia.

Nelson took place yesterday afternoon from his residence, 81 Lane street, and was largely attended by his many friends and relatives, as well as delegations representing Lowell commandery, Knights of Malta, and Lowell lodge, Knights of Pythias, of which the deceased was a member. CHINESE POST

Has Been Offered to Stuyvesant Fish

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Stuyvesant Fish, when asked today about the report from Shanghai, that he is to become minister to China, said:

"It is true that the Chinese mission was offered to me, but that happened last spring while I was in Europe. Needless to say, the offer was at once declined. I did not mention the fact then and should not do so now were it not for the persistence of the baseless rumors of my going there."

TRAFFIC TIED UP

Because of Jack Johnson's Victory

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18.—Jack Johnson, the fighter, has tied up traffic on the Mississippi river in this section. Big steamboats are docked at several points owing to scarcity of labor with which to supply a crew and river men blame Johnson's victory over Ketchel for prevailing conditions as all the roustabouts are celebrating. The James Lee, one of the largest Mississippi boats, is tied up here, although she was to leave Friday. Deckhands, picked up exclusively from the negro race, refused to enlist in order to remain ashore and hear the returns from the battle, and the festivities have continued since the victory of one of their race.

SEARCH FOR HEAD Of Murdered Girl Resumed by the Officials of Tiverton

FALL RIVER, Oct. 18.—Every bit of evidence possible is being gleaned by the police of this city today in an effort to strengthening their case against Wilfrid Thibault, the chauffeur, and "Prof." Frank Hill, the herb doctor, whom they charged murdered Miss Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R. I., and then distributed her body about the Bulger marsh highroad in the town of Tiverton, R. I.

Inspector Medley stated late this afternoon that he felt confident that the box found off Fish road yesterday afternoon came from the office of "Prof." Hill. A Greek who keeps a small store nearby was taken to the Tiverton police. He said he was almost positive that the box came from his store. A thorough search of the box today revealed the presence of several long hairs. This discovery strengthens greatly, the police say, the theory that the head was thrown away in the vicinity of the Bulgermarsh road. Although at noon today the detectives appeared to feel confident that it would be located before the day is over, their opinion was that the arms and legs were packed in the telescope bag and that the torso and head were put into the pine box. Either just before or just after the torso was disposed of the head was thrown into the thickets.

The medical examiner of Tiverton came up to the city today and held a long conference with Acting City Marshal John Fleet at the local police station. Shortly after William E. Fuller, Jr., and William C. Gray, counsel for Thibault, went into an execution with Justice John J. McDonough of the police court. The conference prolonged for over an hour.

It is the opinion of Mr. Fuller that his automobile could not have been taken from his garage during the night without his knowledge.

The index taken from the speedometer and the quantity of the gasoline which he has noted carefully would also, he feels, dispel this theory advanced against Thibault.

GLENN CURTISS

Made Two Flights in His Biplane

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Glenn H. Curtiss made two flights in his biplane yesterday in a wind averaging 15 miles an hour. The first flight was made at 3:15. Aviator Curtiss started at the southwestern edge of the rack, infield, and circled the lake. He flew directly over the rail at the three-quarter post and landed sliding at the home stretch. He had flown about half a mile in less than a minute. His height averaged thirty feet.

Curtiss circled the track on his second trip. This maneuver was a risky one and full of dips and lifts that startled the crowd, but it coerced at the cool control of the aviator.

SEVERAL HELD

Until the Departure of Pres. Taft

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 18.—

Preceding the arrival of President Taft here several "undesirables" were arrested to be held during the visit of the president, they being in detention by the local authorities. No threats were made by anyone relative to the president but the same tactics are being adopted here as in other large cities. A committee representing the local organization of socialists last night reported to the police and county officers that a member of the political Refugee Defense league who has been residing on Main plaza is missing.

The members of the committee were also alarmed about the disappearance of another local socialist. They learned that he was in the city jail. The members of the committee sent a telegram last evening to the Chicago socialist headquarters reporting the disappearance, saying: "Think he is incommunicado."

JACK JOHNSON

Knocked Out Ketchel in Twelfth Round

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Jack Johnson yesterday retained the heavy-weight pugilistic championship by knocking out Stanley Ketchel in the 12th round of their fight at Colma.

The end came so suddenly that when Ketchel rolled on the floor and referee Welsh counted him out, the 10,000 persons crowding the arena were absolutely quiet for a full minute.

Even Johnson, who leaned against the ropes half dazed by his own fall a moment before, did not seem to know what had happened.

The climax of the fight was crowded into 24 seconds. At the beginning of what proved to be the last round there had been little in the preceding rounds on which to forecast the winner. The men in the center of the ring clinched and wrestled to Johnson's corner. The negro broke away, and posing himself dashed at Ketchel, who sprang to meet him.

Ketchel drove his right at the black's lowered head. Johnson ducked and the blow landed behind his ear. He stumbled, fell and stretched out on the floor, landing heavily. Ketchel backed toward the ropes with a faint smile on his battered face. Johnson rose slowly, as though bewildered.

Believing he had the champion almost out, Ketchel rushed forward to score a knockout. Johnson, however, was apparently only playing possum. As Ketchel came within reach his right fist shot to the white man's jaw. His left landed on his stomach and the right swung again with the speed of lightning, catching Ketchel's head as he reeled back from the onslaught. Ketchel dropped in a heap, and Johnson, unable to stop his rush, sprawled across his beaten rival's legs and fell full length himself. The negro sprang to his feet with a bound, but Ketchel was out. Once, as the seconds were counted over him, he feebly moved his arms and rolled his head. He gave no other sign of life and his second picked him up from the floor barely conscious.

SAM BERGER

SAYS JEFFRIES WILL DEFEND THE TITLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The defeat of Stanley Ketchel by Jack Johnson at Colma Saturday, will not cause Jim Jeffries to alter his plans to meet Johnson for the championship, according to Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager. Berger telegraphed from San Francisco, to William Morris, a vaudeville manager of this city yesterday as follows:

"Result of Johnson-Ketchel contest is all I have been waiting for before making positive and final announcement that Jeffries will defend his title as world's champion. After seeing Johnson's exhibition yesterday I am absolutely confident that Jeffries will have little difficulty in defeating the colored man in less than 12 rounds."

BOXING GOSSIP.

There is great speculation among the local boxing fraternity as to the ability of Jimmie Moriarty, the boxing blacksmith, to get a decision over George Loucroft of Billerica in their bout at the Gladstone club on Tuesday evening next, owing to their difference in weight. But those who have seen Moriarty boxing in private lately are confident that his cleverness and ability to deliver the wallop will overcome the handicap in weight. Loucroft is training at his farm in Billerica and is reported in fine condition. A preliminary that will be an event in itself is the six round bout between Young Sullivan of this city and Young Luke of Lawrence at 115 pounds. Young Sullivan, who has been sparring with Moriarty, is regarded as a corner. Freddie McGuire and Billy Russell, the two clever bantams, will be seen in an eight round go out from this distance. The program looks like one of the best ever put on here. The meeting as usual will be for members only.

The bouts this week are:

Billy Griffiths vs. Kid Ashe, Cincinnati.

Won the Deciding Game From the Tigers

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—What is believed to be the largest crowd that ever saw a baseball game in Detroit went to Bennett park Saturday to witness the seventh and decisive game of the world's championship series between Pittsburgh and Detroit.

The weather was cold with the thermometer registering between 35 and 40. The sky was clear though the weather forecast promised snow flurries. Detroit turned out en masse for the final game of the series. The great majority of the crowd was confident of victory for the American league champions. Many wagers were made at even money and several were recorded with Detroit a slight favorite at 4 to 5, or 3 to 1.

The three Detroit players who were injured in the ninth inning of Thursday's game were all in the lineup during the practice. Tom Jones was apparently none the worse for his collision with Wilson and walked snappily around first base. Schmidt was behind the bat and showed no ill effects of the spiking he had received while Moriarty's sore knee did not appear to cause him any trouble.

The regular Pittsburgh team was in the field and practiced in brilliant style. The infield worked well with the regulars.

Umpire O'Loughlin worked behind the plate. He announced the batter as Adams and Gibson for Pittsburgh, and Donovan and Schmidt for Detroit. The play by Detroit:

First Inning

Pittsburgh: Byrne was hit by a pitched ball. Leach batted to Donovan, who had plenty of time to get to the plate. Leach was caught at third. Schmidt hit Moriarty. The men collided and both were knocked out. It is apparent that Moriarty is hurt, as O'Leary is warming up to take his place. Moriarty man has gotten up and both appear to be seriously hurt. The game was stopped and the doctors are working over each of them. Moriarty arose and a great cheer went up from the crowd. Byrne is being carried off the field. Umpire O'Loughlin announced that Abstein would play third base for Pittsburgh. Moriarty will continue at third base for Detroit.

Umpire O'Loughlin then made another announcement, that Leach would play third for Pittsburgh. Hyatt centerfield and Abstein first base. Clarke drew a base on balls.

The physician who attended Byrne said he had sprained his ankle. Clarke stole second. Wagner drew another base on balls. Miller hit to Bush, who forced Wagner at second. No runs.

Detroit: D. Jones fouled to Leach. Bush was hit in the back by a pitched ball. Leach batted to Clarke. Bush was caught at third base for Detroit. No runs.

Second Inning

Pittsburgh: Abstein drew a base on balls. Wilson missed on a hit and run but "M" stole second on Schmidt's bunt throw. Wilson batted in front of the plate and Schmidt threw to third too late to get Abstein. Wilson getting credit for a sacrifice. Gibson flied to Bush but the fly was too short to give Abstein a chance to score from third.

Wagner making some clever stops and catches.

O'Loughlin was the umpire behind the bat with Johnson on the bases and Kline and Evans along the outfield foul lines.

Big Crowd Present

The crowd which gathered at Bennett park was something of a disappointment, as it was expected at least 25,000 or 26,000 people would be present, but when the game opened it was estimated that not more than 20,000 people were present to witness the final game. The weather had moderated a trifle, but was still a bit chilly for perfect baseball. The thermometer hovered around the 30 mark and a brisk wind from the west whipped across the field. It was really a better day than Detroit had offered yet during the series.

Umpire O'Loughlin worked behind the plate. He announced the batter as Adams and Gibson for Pittsburgh, and Donovan and Schmidt for Detroit. The play by Detroit:

First Inning

Pittsburgh: Byrne was hit by a pitched ball. Leach batted to Donovan, who had plenty of time to get to the plate. Leach was caught at third. Schmidt hit Moriarty. Umpire O'Loughlin then made another announcement, that Leach would play third for Pittsburgh. Hyatt centerfield and Abstein first base. Clarke drew a base on balls.

The physician who attended Byrne said he had sprained his ankle. Clarke stole second. Wagner drew another base on balls. Miller hit to Bush, who forced Wagner at second. No runs.

Detroit: D. Jones fouled to Leach. Bush was hit in the back by a pitched ball. Leach batted to Clarke. Bush was caught at third base for Detroit. No runs.

Second Inning

Pittsburgh: Abstein drew a base on balls. Wilson missed on a hit and run but "M" stole second on Schmidt's bunt throw. Wilson batted in front of the plate and Schmidt threw to third too late to get Abstein. Wilson getting credit for a sacrifice. Gibson flied to Bush but the fly was too short to give Abstein a chance to score from third.

Adams drew a base on balls, filling the bases. Hyatt sent a sacrifice fly to the bat with Johnson on the bases.

Crawford scored Abstein. Leach drew another base on balls and the bases were filled again. Clarke walked forcing home Wilson. Wagner flied to Cobb. Two runs.

Detroit: Crawford grounded to Abstein and was out at first. Abstein unassisted. Delahanty was hit by a pitched ball but Umpire O'Loughlin said he had stepped into it and would not allow him to go to first. Delahanty walked. Moriarty smashed a two-bagger into the right field crowd and hobbled to second base. His injured leg apparently bothering him greatly. Delahanty taking third. Time has been called and O'Leary went in to run for Moriarty. T. Jones popped to Wagner. Schmidt, in trying to dodge allowed his bat to be hit and the ball rolled fair, Adams throwing him out to Abstein. No runs.

Third Inning

Pittsburgh: O'Leary now playing third for Detroit. Miller singled over second base. Abstein doubled along left field foul line, sending Miller to third. Wilson hit to Bush, who threw to the plate and Schmidt tagged Miller. Schmidt then threw to Delahanty who caught Abstein off second, making a double play. Bush to Schmidt to Delahanty. Gibson forced Wilson at second. Bush to Delahanty at second. No runs.

Detroit: Mullin batted for Donovan and will continue as pitcher. A great cheer went up when Mullin walked to the plate. Mullin lined to Miller. D. Jones beat out a hunt to Adams. When D. Jones slid into first base he tore the bag from its fastening and the game was delayed while it was being replaced. Bush out. Adams to Abstein. D. Jones going to second. Cobb out. Adams to Abstein. No runs.

Fourth Inning

Pittsburgh: Mullin now pitching for Detroit. Adams flied to D. Jones. Hyatt drew base on balls. Leach singled over Bush's head and Hyatt went to second. Clarke sacrificed Mullin to T. Jones. Hyatt going to third and Leach to second. Wagner was purposely given a base on balls filling the bases. Miller singled to right scoring Hyatt and Leach and sending Wagner to third. Miller stole second and Schmidt made no attempt to get him for fear Wagner would come home. Abstein struck out. Two runs.

Detroit: Crawford out. Leach to Abstein. Delahanty singled to right. O'Leary popped to Wagner. T. Jones singled to right, sending Delahanty to second. Schmidt hit to Leach, who forced Delahanty at second, unassisted. No runs.

Fifth Inning

Pittsburgh: Wilson flied to Crawford. Gibson out. Bush to T. Jones. Adams out. Delahanty to T. Jones. No runs.

Pittsburgh three runs.

Detroit: Cobb out. Adams to Abstein. Crawford flied to Clarke. Leach made a star catch of Delahanty's foul. No runs.

Seventh Inning

Pittsburgh: Wilson sent a high fly to D. Jones. Gibson doubled to center. Adams put a hot liner to O'Leary and the latter knocked it down. Bush got it and threw Adams out to T. Jones. Gibson went to third on the play. Hyatt out. Delahanty to T. Jones. No runs.

Detroit: O'Leary fouled to Gibson. Wagner made a star stop on T. Jones' grounder and threw him out to Abstein. Schmidt doubled into the left field crowd. Clarke made a great catch of Mullin's hard drive. No runs.

Eighth Inning

Pittsburgh: Leach out. Mullin to T. Jones. Clark drew a base on balls, making his fourth walk during the game. Clarke stole second. Wagner sent a long fly to Crawford. Clarke didn't try to go to third. Crawford made an error by dropping Miller's fly. Clarke scoring and Miller going to second. D. Jones made a great running catch of Abstein's fly near left field crowd. One run.

POLICE FIND BOX

That Was Used in Hiding Murdered Girl's Body

FALL RIVER, Oct. 18.—The box in which the decapitated head of the dismembered torso of the girl who figures in the "Tiverton" murder mystery was transported from the place where the body was cut was found yesterday by Deputy Sheriff King of Newport. The box was found on the Hambley farm, on the east side of the Fish road, some distance from the place where other searchers had made finds.

In addition a handkerchief saturated with blood and perforated as if by the teeth of a saw was picked up by Mr. King off the road. The initial "T" appears in one corner.

The securing of the box was the most important incident of the day. It is of several inches in length, and its dimensions are 18x24x14. King took the box and handkerchief to the Tiverton police station.

Mrs. Lamoureux yesterday identified as those worn by her niece, Miss St. Jean, the corsets and a skirt which two weavers found several days ago at the end of Bay street. One of the weavers had taken them home, and they had been worn by his wife until yesterday.

Search Offices of Hill

Inspector Medley last night made another visit to the office of "Prof. Hill" and took back to the station various articles. Among the effects secured was telescope bag, similar to that which contained parts of the murdered girl's body, a grape basket, a jack-knife, a corkscrew and a pair of pliers.

Wore Garments of Dead

Because of a story told by a weaver named James Burger of 260 Pleasant street, police inspectors called yesterday at a house in the eastern part of the city and secured a pair of corsets and a white undershirt of excellent material, which the man's wife had used.

Burger and one Adams had been "down the line" at the Bay street end on Saturday afternoon and were walking up the hill toward the main road when they came across the articles. The appearance of the things led Adams to conclude that they would be serviceable for his wife and he carried them home. Neither of the men was aware at that time that the skirt and the corsets were to figure in the tragedy.

As the finding of the apparel was on Saturday, it tends to dissipate the idea that the dismemberment of the corpse did not take place on Friday or possibly Thursday night.

Orders were issued yesterday by Marshal Fleet that every man should be on the alert for possible information. Anything bearing even remotely on the case was to be reported to the captains of the various stations through whom it would be transmitted to the chief. Especially were the detectives busy.

Inspector Batholomew Shea, who is responsible for the find that resulted in matching the pieces of a torn shirt, completed his inventory of the Hill offices late Saturday night. He saw enough to lead him to believe that in addition to dealing in herbs and snake oil, the prisoner was well supplied with other appliances.

Murder Hearing Oct. 25

"Prof." Frank Hill and Wilfrid Thibault spent their Sunday in cells at police headquarters. The police hope to secure more evidence to warrant the detention to which they have been subjected when the question of their connection with the murder is heard on Dec. 25.

The status of the matter of identifying the dismembered trunk and limbs as a complete body, minus the head, is still doubtful. While parents and relatives of Miss St. Jean state their belief that the body is hers, an acquaintance of the missing girl has brought out strong points against this as a fact.

The identification of the clothes found several days ago was the principal factor in the original supposition that the body was Miss St. Jean's. It is possible that the body is that of another person.

The finding of the head, which was much sought for, portion of the body, is very far advanced in decomposition, would definitely decide the identity of the victim and give the police a firm basis for their case.

That supposition may greatly err is shown in the case of Miss Grace Edwards, who was originally thought to be the victim. That young woman has been located in Pittsburg, where formerly she lived.

IVINS ATTACKED

Statement Given Out by Henry George, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Taken from the graveyard of forgotten campaigns, a political skeleton covered with the dust of 23 years was rattled in New York last night, adding intensity to the three cornered struggle for the mayor's chair of Greater New York between William J. Gaynor, democrat; William R. Hearst, independent, and Otto T. Bannard, republican.

The nominees rested yesterday and last night, but the fight centered around Hearst produced a new issue of the campaign, the political record of William J. Gaynor, Hearst's ardent republican supporter, albeit his opponent four years ago.

The fresh phase came in the form of a statement issued last night by Henry George, Jr., son and biographer of the famous single taxer, who charges in effect that Ivins went to his father in 1886 and offered him inducements to withdraw from the mayoralty race against William R. Grace. As a matter of history, Mr. George refused to be sidetracked and entered the contest only to meet defeat.

In a formal statement given out on Saturday night, Ivins, apparently expecting an attack on his alleged connection with the George-Grace campaign, denied that he ever made any offer to Henry George to retire. As opposed to this, Henry George, Jr., said last night:

"In his prepared statement, published in the newspapers this morning, Mr. William M. Ivins denies a story that in behalf of Richard Croker he offered to Henry George, my father, $25,000 to withdraw from the mayoralty contest in 1886.

"In response to a statement made in the newspapers by Abram S. Hewitt, relative to the 1886 campaign, my father toward the close of the 1887 campaign and just a few days before his death, issued a statement, which, with the attendant circumstances, may be found on page 462-3 of 'The Life of Henry George' by me. The statement is as follows:

"Before my nomination had formally taken place (in 1886) I received a request from Mr. William M. Ivins, then chamberlain of the city, and a close political friend and representative of Mr. Grace, to privately meet him. I do so at Seignior's on Lafayette place. We sat down in a private room, unattended, and smoked some cigars together. Mr. Ivins insisted that I could not possibly be elected mayor of New York, no matter how many people might vote for me; that the men who voted knew nothing of the real forces that dominated New York. He said that I could not possibly be counted on. He offered on behalf of Tammany hall and the county democracy that if I would refuse the nomination for mayor they would run me for congress, select a city district in which nomination was equivalent to election; that I should be at no expense whatever, but might go to Europe or anywhere I wished, and when I came back should receive a certificate of election to the house of representatives. I said to him finally: 'You tell me I cannot possibly get the office. Why, then, if I cannot possibly get the office, do you want me to withdraw?'

"His reply was 'You cannot get elected, but your running will raise hell.'

"I said: 'You have relieved me of embarrassment. I do not want the responsibility and the work of the office of mayor of New York, but I do want to raise hell. I am decided and will run.'

"In reply to Henry George, Jr., Ivins issued the following statement last night:

"The quotations which Dr. Henry George, Jr., now makes is, in my recollection, a verbatim report of the gentleman's life of his father. My own memory is in no respect faulty with regard to my relations with Henry George, senior, but that is no issue in the present campaign.

"In 1887 I denied that I had ever offered Mr. George a nomination in behalf of Tammany hall and I also denied that any such conversation as that here given took place between us; I still deny it. Mr. George is dead, and I care to say nothing further of the matter. Even the courts will not permit one to testify to a conversation with parties deceased.

"It will be noted that Mr. George does not repeat the accusation which was made yesterday, that I attempted to bribe his father."

THE PRESIDENT

Compliments Work of Regular Army

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 18.—President Taft's travels brought him to the far south yesterday. After 21 hours of continuous journeying from El Paso, he arrived in San Antonio at 7:30 o'clock last night, and, despite the fact that it was Sunday, he received a cheering welcome.

A big crowd was gathered at the station and the streets leading to St. Anthony hotel were lined with people. After he was received by city officials, the president was driven to the hotel with an escort of cavalry.

Later in the evening the president went to Fort Sam Houston, where he assisted in the dedication and accepted on behalf of the government a chapel erected at the famous old army post by the citizens of San Antonio.

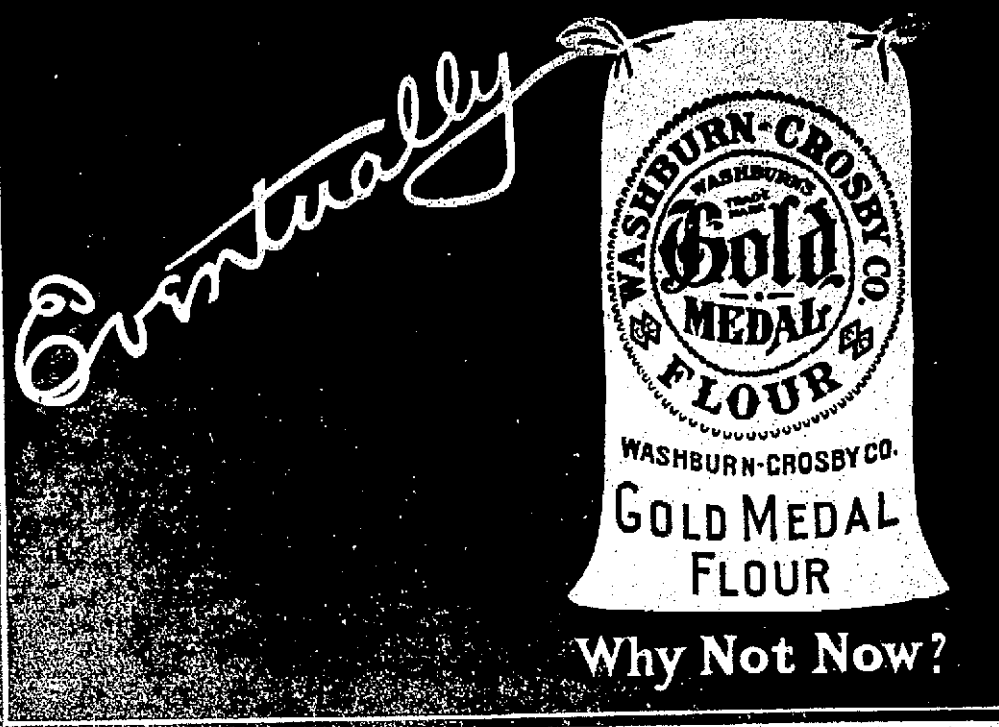

He will leave this afternoon for Gregory, Texas, near Corpus Christi, to spend four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. The latter passed through San Antonio Saturday to prepare a welcome for the president.

The president's train yesterday passed through the thinly settled western part of Texas and made a few stops.

At Del Rio, Sanderson and one or two places the president made brief speeches to station throngs which were made up in part of Mexicans, residents of the community and farmers who had driven many miles in their best Sunday clothes.

The sage brush and cactus gave way as the day advanced to mesquite bushes and finally to the pasture lands and cotton fields for which the state is famous. In some of the fields the wheat staple was breaking in white puffs from the bolls.

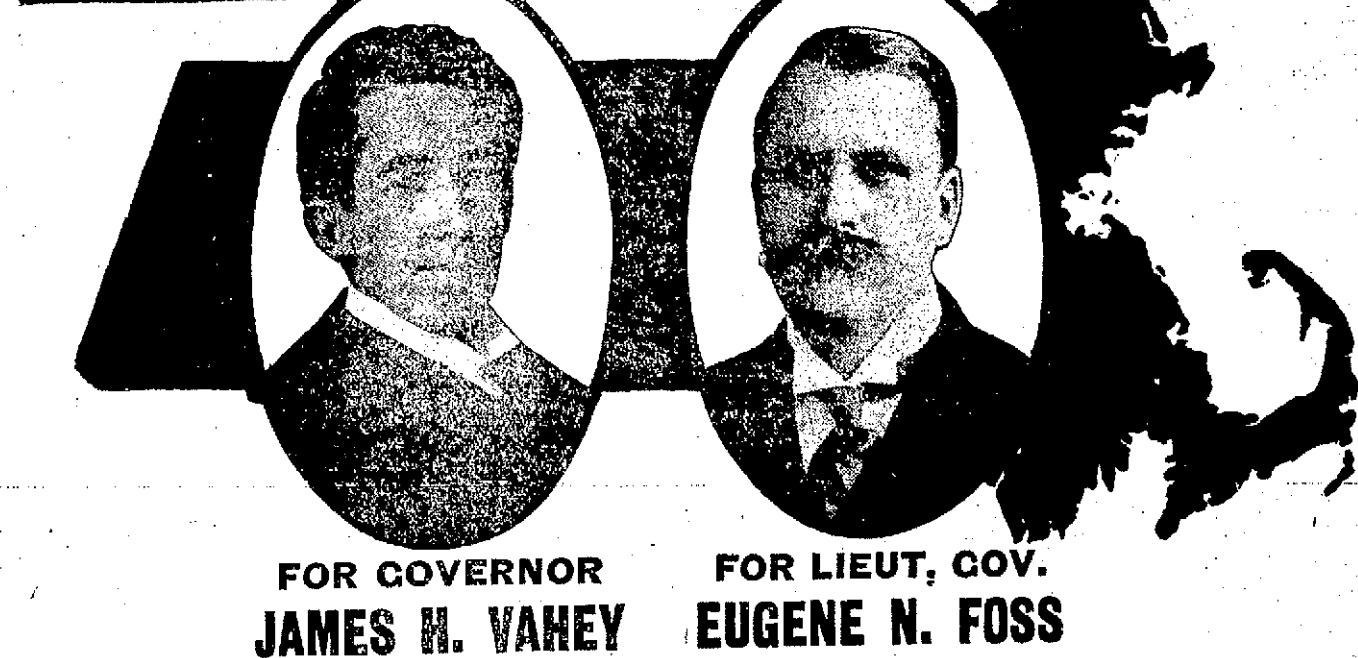

The president's train was one of 14

THIS IS THE PLATFORM THEY STAND ON

| 1 | An immediate reduction of tariff duties on the necessities of life. |
| 2 | A rebuke to the republican party for its iniquitous tariff revision humbug. |
| 3 | A comprehensive reciprocal trade treaty with Canada, not confined to non-competitive products. |
| 4 | The income tax and the election of only those candidates for the legislature pledged to the ratification of the constitutional amendment therefor. |
| 5 | Anti-imperialism. |
| 6 | The nomination of United States Senators by direct popular vote. |
| 7 | Direct nominations. |
| 8 | The extirpation of the State House lobby. |
| 9 | Effective legislation to prevent corrupt practices in elections. |
| 10 | The re-enactment into law of the eight-hour bill passed by the legislative session and vetoed. |
| 11 | Reform of injunction abuses. |
| 12 | Trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt. |
| 13 | Opposition to government by commissions. |
| 14 | A thorough investigation of the finances of the state government. |
| 15 | Home rule for the cities of the Commonwealth. |
| 16 | The establishment of agricultural schools throughout the Commonwealth. |

The democratic party is unalterably opposed to special privileges. It harbors no hostility to wealth, but demands equal opportunities for all; for the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and the consumer, freedom from unjust discrimination and the oppression of monopolies; for the working man, wages, conditions and hours of labor, and prices for the necessities of life, consistent with the development of faculties; the preservation of health, the maintenance and education of children, and the attainment of American ideals in citizenship.

The republican organization has placed itself in open antagonism to the most progressive elements of its own party. The democratic party, then, becomes by force of circumstances, the only means of expression of popular reform and of the enlightened sentiment of the people. Where there is identity of purpose there should be community of action; and all good citizens should regard it as their patriotic duty to subordinate party regularity to the public good.

COOK AND HIS CRITICS.

It seems that there were a great many people who did not see Dr. Cook reach the summit of Mt. McKinley. It remains for the doctor to find somebody besides himself who did see him. Otherwise the people who didn't see him will carry the day.

NEW BEAM HOUSE PROPOSITION.

Any attempt of the American Hide and Leather company to locate a beam house on Perry street will arouse more stubborn opposition than was shown to the Howe street plant. To locate such an industry there, would not only injure property in the vicinity but would drive out the Rogers Hall school and leave Fort Hill park deserted. We do not believe the board of health would permit such a state of affairs.

EXTEND THE SMOOTH PAVING OUTWARD.

When the Merrimack street paving job will have been finished that street will be an ideal thoroughfare. It will then be the duty of our city government to see that this form of paving is extended outward and to all streets whereon there is heavy traffic. By this means we should have in due time a majority of our streets not only smooth and clean but paved in a way that will last for a great many years.

CHAUFFEUR GOES TO PRISON.

Twelve months to prison for the involuntary manslaughter of a pedestrian is the sentence of a reckless chauffeur at Stamford, Conn. That will help to make others cautious; but as we have remarked before there will never be security from such accidents on the highways until the automobilists are made responsible for all accidents in which they appear, whether they are to blame or not.

BOX OF DYNAMITE FOR BAGGAGE.

The man who is found traveling with a box of dynamite as baggage should be punished as if he had attempted to wreck a train. As it was, the man found so equipped at the North station in Boston put the lives of between five hundred and six hundred passengers in jeopardy. The box containing a number of sticks of dynamite, a quantity of powder and other explosives broke open when banged among trunks and baggage of various kinds. It was really surprising that the dynamite did not explode, and there was enough of it to blow up the entire train. The owner was bound for Italy, and there is no telling whether he intended to blow up some building or to assassinate some of the sovereigns of Europe.

THE TIVERTON TRAGEDY.

The Tiverton murder mystery seems to be assuming a more serious aspect. The police authorities are now inclined to believe that two girls were murdered instead of one. The parents of one girl have identified the clothing as that of their daughter, but they have practically decided that the body found is not that of their daughter. They reached this conclusion from the absence of a scar that marked the left hand of their daughter and does not appear on the hand of the body found. Should this prove to be the case the tragedy is much more serious than at first supposed. The mystery probably will remain unsolved until the woman's head shall have been found. That will at least help to clear up the mystery so far as one woman is concerned.

THE CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

In the campaign now progressing Eugene S. Foss is presenting strong arguments, showing the need of reciprocity with Canada and exposing the defects in the tariff bill recently passed.

He emphasizes the necessity of more freedom in our intercourse with Canada for the exchange of products and particularly to secure the advantage of Canadian lumber which could be had at such a moderate price if the tariff were removed. Mr. Foss shows that many important items in the necessities of life could be had more cheaply if we were free to purchase them from Canada or if Canada were allowed to compete in the American market.

Mr. Vehey is exposing in a forcible manner the extravagance of the republican administration in this state while at the same time showing that republican legislation at the state house is dominated by the lobby which the democratic party would abolish.

The underhand work of Senator Lodge as supreme boss of the party in Massachusetts is also being exposed and many measures introduced in the legislature as necessary for the public welfare have been defeated through the influence of Senator Lodge on the ground that they would injure the republican party.

With the assistance of the labor unions of the state it seems that Messrs. Vehey and Foss should be able to overcome the republican majority. If the voters of this state were alive to their own interests they would elect the democratic ticket as a protest against the action of the republican party in breaking its pledges on the tariff, against the general policy of extravagance and against the domination of the legislature by Senator Lodge. The campaign now in progress is one of education in which the voters are being enlightened on how to protect their own interests. The question is, will they get out of the rut and vote for a change in the administration?

SEEN AND HEARD

Nobody ever complains about long sermons when the minister is eloquent and has something original to say.

The young husband ought always to buy his young wife a cook-book. Then she can have something to blame her failures on.

Not only does it pay to be good; but it would pay most people to be better.

People are inclined to poke fun at the man with one idea, but not after he has secured a patent on it, and is gathering in the millions.

A woman is always very particular about the dishes she uses on the dinner table, but a man never notices the dishes if the dinner is abundant and well-cooked.

If you hear it said of a man: "He has kept all the promises he made," you may know that he was wise enough to make very few promises.

When you are seasick in mid-ocean, it doesn't help a bit to think that solid land is only half a mile away, if it is half a mile straight down.

If a man gets mad when you ask him how he enjoyed his summer vacation, you have some reason for thinking that he went to a very fashionable place.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

An interesting sidelight was incidentally thrown on the methods of some titled fortune hunters in the recent announcement that two royal princes were about to get set to lay their titles at the feet of George J. Gould's daughter. The etiquette of such expeditions in many cases, is that commercial outfitters supply the fortune hunter with an assortment of clothes and a wardrobe of the latest fashions, and the regular trade prices when the heiress is "landed." This form of industrial speculation, must be very prevalent, for it is heralded as a radical departure from the usual thing that Prince Romanoff, one of the two modern jasons who are hunting the golden ore to be secured, actually paid $200,000 in cash for his "quint." This statement created considerable of a sensation in interested quarters. All the leading makers of shirts, clothes, jewelry, hats, socks, etc., were summoned to meet the prince at the leading Paris hotel, and there they were given orders to make him a sartorial paragon whose suit or suits it would be hard to resist. Thus accounted, he is now, the report goes, about to move on the son of the erstwhile wizard of Wall street and ask the hand of his daughter in marriage. George Gould has upheld most worthily the honor of the family and has gained the respect of his fellow countrymen generally by his simple and unostentatious Americanism, says the Kansas City Journal. He has had potent warnings in the domestic history of his "house," both foreign and at home, but his own immediate family has been unsullied thus far. It is his own business and that of the prospective bride whether the record shall stand, but it is generally hoped that he will kick the prince over the transom. In any event, none of the expeditions against American fortunes has been fitted out with quite the frank commercialism displayed by the suitors for the hand of the latest nominee for princely rank.

One of the prisoners at the prison at Tellingfors, Finland, has just been caught with a telephone in his cell. He connected it with some wires that passed his window in some unknown manner and had made all sorts of trouble for the prison authorities by calling them up at odd hours and sending them on wild goose chases.

Harry F. Lincoln, formerly of Denyville, Me., and a graduate of the University of Maine in the class of 1888, has the distinction of being superintendent of the $6,000,000 pulp manufacturing plant that has been established at Grand Falls, Newfoundland. In this connection, the Bangor Commercial remarks that "all over the world and other countries the United States of Maine men are doing work that reflects most creditably upon the high standing of the institution at Orono, which from small beginnings now ranks in results achieved with any similar institution in the United States."

TORTURED BY ULCERS!

August 25, 1908.

Gentlemen—For two years I suffered with Eczema on hands, feet and legs, and could not get a pair of shoes on as my feet and legs were completely covered with ulcers. Last April I concluded to go to the hospital, and on my way fortunately met a friend who was cured by your remedy, and he urged me to go and see you, which I did. I bought one set of your remedy, which gave me instant relief, and after using five sets was completely cured. I state these facts, trusting they may come under the notice of someone similarly afflicted, as from experience I know that there is no other remedy to cure this dreadful disease. J. Is Your Appetite Always Good?

Why can't you eat as you used to? Simply because your liver doesn't do its work properly. Its business is to take bile out of the blood, which acts as Nature's cathartic, but your liver is sluggish and the bile accumulates too fast, and you feel worn out, tired and lifeless, and each succeeding day brings no relief. The use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will regulate your bowels, stimulate your liver, and promote a healthy, vigorous appetite.

Mr. RAY W. DIXON, of Sanford, Me., writes: "I have gained ten pounds. I can now eat all kinds of food."

Try them and you will be convinced that these little vegetable pills are indeed a tonic and stimulant to the functions of the liver. Then your brain will be active, your mind clear, and health conditions again established and you can eat anything. Get your liver right. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills act gently but surely on the liver. Physicians use and recommend. They form no habit. You should always keep them on hand. LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"The Volunteer Organist," which is offered at the Opera House tonight for a three days engagement, is a delightful sentimental play from the pen of William B. Gray and well known to our theatre-goers. It possesses the power to appeal to that which is good within us, and adds yearly lessons to its multitude of admirers.

The story of the drama is simple and is blended with genuine comedy and exceptional pathos. There is not a dull moment throughout the play and the plot is never permitted to drag. In the quaintness of the characters presented and in the realism of its reproduction of phases of Vermont life, it is truth itself. It is without such thin, dramatic elements as a deep-dyed villain, a persecuted heroine, an old wife and murder, and a peculiar fact, it is constructed out of a popular song. The story it tells is of every day people in a New England hill town with the sentiment and homely humor abounding in this community. The sermon it preaches is that of temperance in physical indulgence and liberality in religion. The danger of alcoholic intoxicants, the wickedness of hypocrisy and the saving grace of sincere religious professions, and strictly moral conduct are all properly shown.

The wonderful church scene pronounced by experts to be the exact replica of the sacred edifice in conjunction with the gifted choir boys who in this scene sing the beautiful solos "The Holy City" and "The Palms," seemingly lift its beholders into the realms of the most holy.

"THE THIRD DEGREE"

Never in the history of dramatic works was an artist endowed with more fascinating character than is Miss Marion Kerby, who plays the part of the young wife in Charles Klein's masterpiece, "The Third Degree," which comes to the Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 21, for four performances, and which has established her so well in the eyes of the public and her manager, Henry B. Harris, that he has engaged Mr. Klein to construct another play, along potent lines, that will give her another opportunity to display her wonderful powers of emotion. The new play in all probability will touch along some theme of public interest, as her present vehicle, or "The Lip and the Mouse," which Mr. Harris also produced, and which is from the pen of the same author, and is ordered to be in readiness for Miss Kerby immediately after her tour in "The Third Degree."

One of the most pronounced novelties that the drama has known in a number of years is "The House of a Thousand Candles" that is announced to appear at the Opera House soon. It is said to be a play so different from the usual type that it has aroused widespread attention, and consequently it is proving one of the great drawing cards of the season. It is an excellent dramatization from Meredith Nicholson's novel of the same name.

FREIGHT TUBES

To be Built by Chicago Packer

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—J. Ogden Armour, the Chicago financier, is behind the scheme to build a freight subway system in New York city. The plan is to construct tubes under the Hudson and East rivers from New Jersey they render a number of new and catchy prices. Douglas A. Flint, prince of light comedians, and a selected company, will present the sparkling one-act comedy, "The Mixers," by Herbert Hall Winslow. The plot related to various phases, which the Mixers and a friend of the family become involved, and abounds in bright lines and absurdly comic situations. At York is an extra on the boarding wire, and his exhibition of skill will afford one of the most remarkable and interesting performances of the kind ever seen at the theatre. The Mixers, Thompson & Co. are a merry coterie who offer a laughable skill, the characters in which are a telegraphic operator in a railroad station, his chum, and a dork who is waiting for a train. The station is supposed to be haunted, and the operator and his friend play upon the dork's superstitious fears with comical results. The blackface member's grimaces are a study in expression; and several good songs help out the bright dialogue. Stuart and Keely, a man and woman, who make a novel and original pastime in a practical automobile, offer a really merry dialogue, singing and dancing. The usual series of up-to-date moving pictures closes the bill.

STAR THEATRE

Much for little, vaudeville, motion pictures and illustrated songs are in the program at the Star theatre, where the admission of five cents allows a seat. These pictures will be seen here for the first time. The baseball pictures will be but one feature of the regular program consisting of two vaudeville acts, illustrated songs, moving pictures and views of the world.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the addition of the Pittsburgh-Detroit baseball pictures to the regular bill at the Theatre Voyons makes it a notable one. These pictures are the best ever taken of an athletic event and are remarkably clear and distinct. One of the features of the bill will be the splendid dramatic subject "A Change of Heart" and it will prove very interesting. There are two excellent comedies "Too Many on the Job" and "Liquid Air," and several other subjects besides the illustrated songs.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Bruce Price, a resident of Tuxedo park and widow of a New York architect, was killed, and Mrs. Chas. J. Coulter, was injured in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon on the road from Tuxedo to Arden. Mrs. Coulter's 15-year-old son, who was in the machine, and the chauffeur, were unhurt.

The car, owned by Mrs. Coulter, was going north on the main road on the Hartman estate, near Arden station, when the chauffeur pulled out the one side to pass a car ahead. The machine skidded into the brush on the side of the road throwing Mrs. Price against a tree, killing her almost instantly.

CONFERENCE SERMON FOUND DYING IN STREET

Preached by Rev. S. R. Chubb
at P. M. Church

The conference sermon of the sixth quadrennial conference of the Primitive Methodist church of America, was preached at the Primitive Methodist church in Gorham street, Sunday-morning. The preacher was Rev. S. R. Chubb, of Kewanee, Ill., a delegate to the conference, and he found his inspiration in the Second Chronicles, third chapter and sixth verse: "And he garnished the house with precious stones for beauty; and the gold was gold of Parvaim." In part, he said: "The man who builds worthy things has his own self respect. Wherever or in whatever circumstances we live or die, God grant that we have our own self respect. I would rather go down into my grave respecting myself than have a monument a mile high erected through the love and respect of others. "We hear a good deal about the self-made man. There is no such thing as the self-made man. If I should see one, I shouldn't want to look at him twice. We inherit. We are instructed. We learn this or that from another. God is the greatest architect in the world, and he instructed Solomon how to build the temple. God lays the foundations and his handiwork is used by man. In the magnificent Garden of the Gods the great spirit and plan are God's work.

HON. WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

W. I. Buchanan Probably a Victim of Apoplexy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Wm. I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., American ex-minister to the Argentine Republic and Panama, who has been closely identified with several important American diplomatic missions, was found lying on a sidewalk in Park lane, near the American embassy, in a dying condition a few minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night, was carried to St. George's hospital a short distance away, but life was extinct when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The cause of death is not known, but it is supposed that it resulted from heart disease or apoplexy. There were no marks of violence on the body nor had robbery been committed.

The identity of the dead man was discovered yesterday afternoon through inquiries sent out by the management of the hotel where Mr. Buchanan was staying.

On Venezuelan Mission
Mr. Buchanan, who had come to London on a mission for the U. S. government in connection with the Venezuelan claims, had been here several weeks. He previously had visited Berlin and Paris. He took up quarters at Claridge's hotel, one of the most fashionable in the city, which is about half a mile from Park lane. He left the hotel Saturday night for dinner early in the evening, still in evening dress. No one has yet been found who knows where he spent the evening, but it is supposed that he was walking home when stricken.

Park lane is a particularly quiet street on Saturday nights when most of the residents are out of town. A passerby found the diplomat lying on the sidewalk. A policeman was summoned, and he quickly called an ambulance, but it was too late for medical aid.

American Embassy Identifies
The name "W. I. Buchanan" was found on the clothing which was recognized to be of American make and his initials were engraved on the jewelry. There was no other means of identification. The police circulated these particulars and the manager of the hotel and officials from the American embassy called at the hospital and identified the body.

The American embassy and the coroner look charge of Mr. Buchanan's effects at the hotel, which are supposed to include papers of great value. It is customary in such cases in England to perform an autopsy, but the American embassy has requested that this be waived.

The hotel management says that Mr. Buchanan usually dined out, frequently returning at midnight or later. Therefore, his failure to return was not noticed until yesterday morning.

A CHEMIST'S DISCOVERY

A New Drug for All Forms of Eczema and Other Skin Troubles

The most remarkable feature about Cadum, the new remedy for skin diseases, is that its beneficial action is seen in every case where it is applied. So far not a single instance has been found where it failed to stop the terrible itching of eczema at once. Persons who have been afflicted with eczema for years, and have tried everything they heard of without being relieved, should take fresh courage, for this new remedy, Cadum, is altogether different from all other so-called skin cures. It is the discovery of a chemist, who felt for years that the world needed a cure for eczema and other skin diseases, and as a result of his studies and experiments Cadum was the outcome. It is reassuring to be told that this new preparation, while possessing such remarkable powers in overcoming all forms of skin troubles, contains no dangerous ingredients. When applied over unsightly sores on the face and hands it forms a thin, almost invisible coating, so that the disease is covered up while the healing process is going on. The 10c size is intended for trial purposes by those who wish to test its wonderful virtues. It contains a sufficient quantity of the new remedy to treat minor skin troubles, such as itching, rash, pimples, eruptions, itch, ringworm, scaly skin, acne, herpes, psoriasis, etc. It should always be borne in mind that Cadum is an entirely new remedy. Nothing like it was ever before offered to the public. Cadum has so thoroughly demonstrated that eczema is now a curable disease that there is no excuse whatever for any man, woman or child suffering from it. The discovery of this new remedy is surely one of the great achievements of the century. Cadum is sold by druggists at 10c and 25c a box.

A SALE OF SEPARATE WALKING SKIRTS Values up to $10 now $8.95 Values up to $15 now $5.95

Every lucky woman who picks the skirt she likes from this fine collection will have more than the proverbial period of self congratulation over her purchase. These sharp reductions should attract many skirt buyers Monday and Tuesday. They were made to sell for much more, all of them like this:

The $5.95 Skirts were selling at $7.50 to $10.00
The $8.95 Skirts were selling at $10.00 to $15.00
We have also grouped a small lot at $3.95 that we're selling at $5.95

They include fine chiffon Panama cloths in black, blue and brown, unlined voiles and a few mannish stripe and cheek mixtures, broadcloth and taffeta silks. Some plaited from deep or graduated yokes, finished with strappings or pipings, others with embroidered panels or plaited in clusters. A splendid collection for such extremely low prices in sizes to fit every woman, large or small, today, though the early buyer, of course, has the best selection.

A SALE OF BLACK SILK PETTICOATS With Our Guarantee of Satisfactory Wear. Value up to $8.00 AT $3.95

The styles without exception are those most in demand. The qualities throughout conform to our usual exacting standard for wear and distinctiveness.

We will not attempt a description of the many models in dressy and tailored effects of silks, allover nets and fine linens to be found in the collection.

Better include this reliable store on your shopping lists for Monday and Tuesday this week. Come early and inspect these splendid saving opportunities at the

Town Treasurer's Office Placed Under Police Guard

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 18.—Confronted with two notes for $25,000 each, one held by a Boston savings bank and the other by a trust company, both of which are purported to have been drawn by John B. Lombard, town treasurer, and purporting also to be approved and countersigned by William H. Walsh, chairman, and Frank E. Stockwell, a second member of the board of selectmen of last year, issued on October 29, 1908, and maturing last Friday, the present board of selectmen, William H. Walsh, Roger H. O'Brien and Herbert W. Damon, held a long session in the town officers' rooms Saturday night, after which a policeman was ordered to duty in the town treasurer's office to guard the books, papers and other documents of the town.

In addition the town officials have been informed that a Boston national bank also holds a like note for $25,000, making a total of $75,000 worth of alleged unauthorized paper outstanding.

The neighborhood of the Lombard home, corner of Clinton and Freeman streets has been patrolled by a policeman, while Mr. Lombard has been in a physical and mental collapse, according to his physician, since Sept. 20.

On a certificate signed by Dr. Lewis M. Palmer, Mr. Lombard's physician, certifying that Mr. Lombard was unable either physically or mentally to discharge the duties of town treasurer further, the selectmen before adjourning, voted to appoint temporarily Arthur M. Flitts town treasurer, and he has accepted and will enter upon the duties today.

HYLAN IS WINNER

Lowell Boy Carried Off the Honors at Golf

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—John B. Hylan, the young Vesper Country club golfer, came through the final match yesterday for the Country Club cup in sectional golf. He defeated P. W. Whittemore, the crack Country club player, by 1 up, after having eliminated Walter J. Travis of Garden City in the semi-finals by 2 up. Both defeated golfers were favorites over the young finalist, and to have disposed of two such players not only recorded the most surprising chapter in Clyde Park open amateur tournaments, but was glory enough for any American amateur in one day.

Travis went into the semi-finals with the halo of a glorious past, and three times has Whittemore won Country Club cups in such events. Hylan never before has occupied any such prominent position in Country Club meetings. That Hylan was a player of splendid possibilities every one admitted, but in the same breath his most conservative critic would add that his command of his strokes was anything but precise.

A large gallery was on hand to watch the final. Hylan was at least 20 yards away on the drive to the first hole, Whittemore having got a perfect tee shot for distance and being straight for the pin. The Country Club player made a dismal failure of his second for distance, having topped, and took three to the green. Hylan was at the right of the green in two and 10 feet from the cup in three. He needed the putt to win the hole, and he got it down. Hylan might have won the second, for the same thing happened to Whittemore's second going to that hole, but ordinary approaching gave him a half in five. Hylan took the third hole, Whittemore having grabbed his second, and the fourth was squared in bogey fours. Hylan was on the fifth green in two, Whittemore in three, and the Vesper player got a four for the hole, winning it. At the sixth Hylan had a perfect three, one under bogey, and won the hole. The short seventh Hylan was on the green on his tee shot, about 25 feet from the cup. It was a most difficult putt to get down, but the ball went straight for the cup, and the win of the hole gave the Vesper player a lead of 5 up and a medal of one under fours for seven holes.

They halved the eighth in 5s, and poor putting cost Hylan the long ninth, the first hole thus far in the match won by Whittemore. With a 6 for his hole, Hylan was out in 38. At the 10th Whittemore was lucky to get a half in 4 after his tee shot failed to reach the green. Hylan was on from the tee and looked a sure winner, but three putts was the best he could do. Hylan put his drive out of bounds, going to the 11th, and his second was sliced so badly that he was barely out of the woods in 3. He took 4 to the green and Whittemore, who played his tee shot as long and as straight as a die, was on in 2, whereupon Hylan gave up the hole. Hylan was in trouble at the 12th, having over-approached and took 6 to the green, and the win of the

LETTER CARRIER

Entertained Friends in the Post Office

Letter Carrier John P. Sheehan, of the local postoffice, who was recently married, entertained the employees of the office in Foresters' hall, Saturday night. Almost every employee was present during the evening and a jolly good time was had. A varied program of vocal, instrumental and literary selections was carried out.

Letter Carrier George L. Adams called to order about 8:30 o'clock and after stating the purpose of the occasion the host of the evening was introduced. After a neat speech Mr. Sheehan invited the guests to repair to the refreshment room and get acquainted with the committees in charge, which consisted of James W. Maguire, John J. Harrington and David A. Mahoney.

An excellent program was then carried out, the numbers being as follows: Piano solo, "Sousa's Bride March," Robert E. Fay; solo, "Constance," Fred Campbell; "Garden of Roses," Wm. M. Burns; "Silver Threads Among the Gold," Thomas F. Meagher, also "Sue's Song," "That Sweet Refrain," "I Love a Lassie," "What Makes the World Go Round," Charles Austin Carey, also "Molly Lee," "King of the Winds," David A. Mahoney also "Song of the Foam," duet, "There Never Was a Girl Like You," David Dwyer and Fred Campbell; humorous recitations, John P. Harrington; cake walk and grotesque dancing, William H. Whitson; duet, "Because You're You," C. Austin Carey and Wm. M. Burns; "In the Shade of the Palm," Fred Campbell. As a grand finale Blanche King's latest song hit from the Minkie Sars, "Put on Your Ring on My Fingers," was given by Charles A. Carey.

Played a Tie Game With Boston Latin School Eleven

By playing a tie game with the Boston Latin eleven Saturday afternoon at Spalding park the Lowell High school football team showed that hereafter it has got to be classed in the same category as are the crack school teams in Greater Boston. That the game, ended with a score of 5 to 5 demonstrated the fact that the local team has shown wonderful improvement and those who thought that they would get trounced Saturday are now willing to acknowledge that there is splendid timber in the lineup and that under the careful direction of the coaches the team should give an excellent account of itself before the close of the season.

The work of the Lowells both on the offense and defense, came as a surprise to the followers of the game, and the visitors, who thought that they were going to have an easy time in capturing the game, showed their discomfiture and surprise before the game had progressed many minutes.

The game started with Lowell kicking to Boston, but the latter failed to make the required ten yards and had to resort to a punt. Lowell then with the ball worked down towards Boston's goal. Forced to punt, Lowell lost the ball to the visitors. By means of outside kicks and forward passes the Latin school men at last obtained possession of the ball on Lowell's 25 yard line.

Logan, the Boston quarterback, then threw a forward pass. McMahon, the high end, instead of blocking the Boston man and allowing the ball to fall to the ground, tried to catch the ball and just touched it. The ball fell into the arms of Gorman, who hastened across the line for the first score of the game. Pendegast failed to kick the goal, and the half ended soon after.

When Lowell came onto the field in the second half it secured possession of the ball. Gargan carried the ball nearly the length of the field, but lost it when near the Latin goal line. A kick sent it out of danger, and again Lowell started her second march down the field.

With good team work and line plunges by Gargan, Canney and Donovan, the ball was carried to Boston's five yard line. Here the visitors put up a strenuous battle and on the first down but one yard was gained. The ball was pushed two yards nearer the goal on the next down. On this down there was an awful scrimmage. Gargan was on top of the ball, while 21 players were going their best to keep on top of Gargan.

When the referee pulled the players off, the ball was resting on the right side of the goal line and Lowell had scored a touchdown and tied the score. Rooney missed the kick for the goal.

The lineup of the teams was as follows:

THE PRESIDENT COKE

Says We Cannot Afford to Reduce Army

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18.—President Taft last night dedicated a new chapel at Fort Sam Houston. Speaking of the army and religion, he said:

"I would desire to say that an exceptional circumstance has contributed toward the erection of the army post here and one that speaks wonders to the people of San Antonio and for the army of the United States stationed in this beautiful city. It has not always been so at every post as it is here where you love the army and where the army loves you."

At this point the chair in which Mayor Callaghan was seated broke with a crash, the mayor narrowly missing a fall to the floor. Turning quickly when he heard the noise and seeing the cause, President Taft smiled and remarked:

"I am delighted, my friends, that I am standing at this time."

"Under our constitution we do not unite the church and the state. Some say this is a coldness on the part of our government toward religion. You know and I know that such is not the condition. The government encourages morality and religion in every department of its people."

"To house, clothe and discipline from 60,000 to 100,000 men is a great task, and certain restrictions must be thrown around them. In order that the men may have the opportunity to worship God, the government employs chaplains at salaries paid by the government."

"The army has not received the praise it deserves. Sometimes certain people at Washington take what you call a fall out of the army."

"The supporters of the army do not come quick enough or often enough to the defense of the attacks. They do not defend that army of devoted men as they should."

"I do not think we can afford to reduce the army at all. Some statesmen see a threat when the talk is made to increase the army. I will leave it to the people of San Antonio to say if they fear that the free institutions of our country are endangered by an efficient army of 100,000."

LAWRENCE, Oct. 18.—The observance of the 50th anniversary of the coming of the sisters of Notre Dame to this city began yesterday, when a mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in St. Mary's church in the morning and a parade of Catholic societies held in the afternoon, followed by religious services.

There were about 3000 in line in the parade, which was made up of three divisions. Rev. James T. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Mary's church, under whose direction, assisted by the officers of St. Mary's school alumni association, the celebration was arranged, was chief marshal.

As the procession passed St. Mary's church selections were played on the chimes. From the convent the paraders were reviewed by the sisters. A number of business houses, St. Mary's parochial residence, the convent, St. Mary's school buildings and Hilberian hall were decorated in honor of the occasion.

Rev. Fr. O'Reilly, O. S. A., was celebrant of the mass, which was attended by the sisters and members of the religious communities. He was assisted by Rev. Daniel J. Kelleher, pastor of St. Peter's church, Lowell, as deacon and Rev. Eugene Dorgan, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. Rev. John A. Whelan, O. S. A., was master of ceremonies.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas J. Gannon, S. J., president of Boston college. He spoke of the efficient work of the sisters and commented upon the foresight of Rev. Fr. O'Donnell, through whose efforts the first group was sent to this city, in appreciating the possibilities of the growing community as a parochial school field.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man and Woman Were Found Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Surrounded by broken furniture and smashed crockery that the couple evidently had thrown at each other while a quarrel was in progress, the bodies of Mrs. Maurice Harpham, 42 years, and her husband, aged 44, were found by the police "yesterday" morning in their home, 3447 North Hutchinson street.

In the right hand of the woman was a revolver. Two bullet wounds were in the man's chest, and lying beside him, shot through the head, was the wife. The police believe that the woman killed her husband and then turned the weapon on herself. Harpham was a son of Police Sergeant Harpham.

Neighbors say a fearful struggle took place. Several times men aroused by the sounds of breaking glass and the smashing of a chair went to the front door of the Harpham home and rang the bell. No attention was paid to the summons, but each time the interruption came the couple quieted down to renew their fight later.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 18.—Three excellent training flights were made at dawn today by Wilbur Wright and his two army aviation students. The weather conditions were ideal and the aviators behaved well. Lieut. Humphreys accompanied Mr. Wright on two of the flights and Lieut. Lahm was the passenger on the other trip. It was not so cold at the army aviation field this morning and the aviators displayed more enthusiasm than they had during the past few days.

SUIT DROPPED

DEATH ENDS TURNER LIBEL CASE

The suit for libel brought against the Boston Herald by the late John Turner has been discontinued on account of the death of the plaintiff. The action was brought as the result of the publication of a letter signed by the mayor asking for the resignation of the alderman.

THE NEW PASTOR

Preached First Sermon at Paige St. Churche

Large congregations gathered at the Paige Street Free Baptist church Sunday morning and evening to listen to the sermonizing of the new pastor, Rev. B. B. Harris. In the evening he spoke from the fifth chapter of Kings II, telling the story of Naaman, who was cleansed of leprosy by Elisha the prophet. He said that Naaman was in a high position and had been rewarded by his king again and again for victories, but he was a leper, and accordingly his attainments were valueless. He had to face the fact that he had the terrible disease, leprosy.

Accordingly in every day life it is possible to say that a man is a good fellow—but he is a sinner unless he has confessed Christ and been baptized into the faith. Mr. Harris said that he did not believe in secret Christianity, and that there could not be any secret Christian, for to be a Christian the act must be avowed.

SAN FRANCISCO'S PORTOLA FESTIVAL

NICHOLAS A. COVARRUBIAS.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE NEW SAN FRANCISCO.

VIRGILIA BOGUE.

It is a year of pageants. The next United States event in this line is the Portola festival. It opens in San Francisco Tuesday, Oct. 19, and closes on the Saturday following. It is to commemorate the discovery of San Francisco harbor by Don Gaspar de Portola, the first Spanish governor of California, in 1768, and the rebuilding of San Francisco three years after it was made desolate by earthquake and incidental calamities.

President Taft will be there. England, Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Mexico, China and Japan will be represented. An American fleet of cruisers, torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers and monitors, and cruisers from China and Japan, on which will be princes of those empires, bearing messages of good will and peace from their sovereigns to the people of the United States, and San Francisco in particular, will maneuver and anchor in the bay as the occasion calls for. They will be welcomed by the great guns that guard the Golden Gate. The pageantry in the city will be accentuated by the appearance of picked divisions and squadrons of United States infantry and cavalry.

The initial number of the series of events will occur on the opening day, when President Taft will propose a toast to San Francisco. Following that, other toasts will be given by the representatives of the crowns of Europe and President Diaz of Mexico. By a clever contrivance of telegraphy the school children of the United States will tender a salute to San Francisco. Then the festival proper will be declared open.

The first vista of pageantry will be the entrance into the city of Don Gaspar de Portola, as king, and his queen. The king will be impersonated by Nicholas Covarrubias of Santa Maria, Cal., and the queen by Miss Virgilia Bogue, daughter of Virgil Bogue, chief engineer and vice president of the Western Pacific. Miss Bogue is one of the beauties of the Pacific slope. She will be accompanied by a number of young women of San Francisco, who will be arrayed in befitting manner. These maidens of honor have been selected from the wealthy families of the west on account of their social standing and acknowledged comeliness and grace.

The king and queen attendants will be escorted by the Portola dragoons. The organization comprises representative young business men of the city. They will be uniformed in the correct costumes of the period at the time Portola first saw the bay. Each dragoon will have for his mount a fine specimen of black horse drawn from the United States cavalry service. This escort will consist of a hundred, each six feet in his boots, and will carry glittering Damascus blades. The trappings will be unique and carry the spectator back to the days of knight hood.

The escort will also be the bodyguard of President Taft while he is in the city. In the days of old the monarchs chose for their personal guard the handsomest and most loyal members of the nobility. The idea will be carried out by the king of the Portola festival. For a week at least the dragoons will be princes of the blood.

Following closely upon the heels of this cavalcade will be the flower of the army and navy, of the California military divisions and the jockies of all the foreign navies represented. Uniformed branches of all the civic societies of the state, including the crack drill teams of each, will have their place in the line. All these will welcome Portola to the city. Other parades will occur during the week, and they will illustrate the civic, industrial, state and international phases of life. Every city and town in California will be represented in some, if not all, of these parades.

Decorations and Color Scheme.

Nearly all the buildings of San Francisco are fresh from the hands of the artisan, and this fact will enhance the beauty of the decorations which have been put in place by the generosity of the men of the city who within three years have transformed the western metropolis of the continent from smoldering ruins into a city of marble and splendor. Descriptions of these decorations warrant the statement that they will be entirely different from anything of the kind ever attempted by any composite of wealth and pride.

The night spectacle of the festival promises to surpass all other attempts in that line. The topography of the city, the formations of the bay and its picturesque contour lend to any plan of magnificence undertaken by man. More money will be expended on the night spectacle than on any other for this reason.

A striking feature of the Portola festival will consist of a color scheme to be observed by the citizens. Every man, woman and child of the rebuilt city will wear a decoration of red and yellow—carnival colors—in order that they may be identified with the affair and thus invite visitors to apply to them for any information concerning the festival or the history of the city. In order to perfect this plan a school of instruction was opened by the city for its inhabitants wherein they learned the story of the discovery by the first Spanish governor of California and the losses entailed by the last earthquake and the rebuilding of the city.

Spanish dress and mannerisms figured in the early history of San Francisco, and it has been suggested that as far as possible there shall be some reproduction of the customs and habits of the early settlers. The dress of Spanish women was particularly picturesque in the olden times, and the women of San Francisco will contribute as much as possible to a reproduction of the Spanish atmosphere. This will bring in the sombrero, the jaunty mantilla, the corbata and any other touch of Spanish days that will add to the spirit of the occasion which the festival will represent. Such a scheme will make the theater particularly impressive and add to the gaiety of the streets.

In order that foreigners who are not able to be present during the festival may have some conception of the extent of the affair illuminated posters giving details of the event have been sent broadcast over the world. Some of these have been duly forwarded to all potentates, and one was sent to President Roosevelt. The posters are twenty-seven inches long and if placed end to end would form a ribbon twenty-one inches wide that would, if one were placed every quarter of a mile, encircle the globe.

Athletics, Aeroplanes and Motorcars.

While the festival will represent these touches of days that are gone, it will embrace all the modern phases in the line of athletics and games of every description. Champions of these games will be present from every quarter. There will be sport for every lover of sports, from the regatta to the foot race, and boxing and wrestling matches will occur at stated times, at which "classy talent" will appear. Of course the automobile feature will be a telling event, for every model known will be represented both for exhibition and for speed.

Finally, visitors will have an opportunity of witnessing aeroplane flights.

To this end all of the noted aviators of the world have received special invitations to be present, and some have signified their intention of being at the festival for the purpose of exhibiting the various types of flying machines.

In order that the scope of the event might be correctly understood abroad Charles C. Moore, formerly president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, visited other countries, armed with credentials from the state department at Washington. Not only was he cordially received, but wherever he explained the object of his visit he received assurances that all the countries that heard him would be represented in some capacity in the unique spectacle.

The Rehabilitated City by the Sea.

Unfortunately there is little in the San Francisco of today to suggest to the visitor the devastation that befell it in the spring of 1906, but it is not out of place to recapitulate briefly the extent of that disaster and that which has grown up in its path in the last three years.

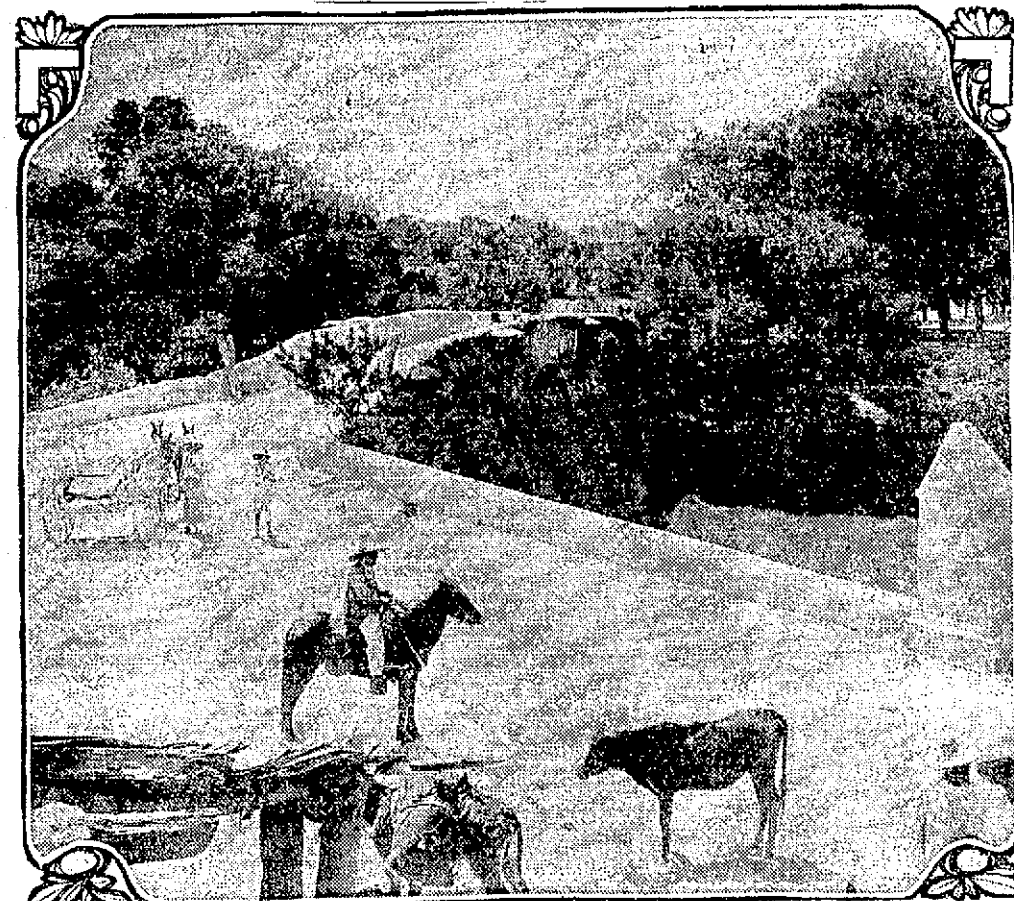

Three thousand acres of the business center of the city was a smoldering ruin after the awful earthquake grappled it, ruined its commerce and left desolate thousands of its inhabitants. Twenty-eight thousand buildings were laid level or thrown upon the other in twisted heaps, the loss being reckoned at $300,000,000. There were no churches, no schools, no public buildings. The courts met in private residences that were outside of the belt of ruin, and ministers stood up in whatever vacant places they could find, knee deep in the ashes and dust of the squares and parks. Most of the money was in vaults that were heaped over with hot earth and debris, so that it was useless. There was no merchandise, and there were no buildings in which to place it if there had been. As is always the case in such conditions, ghoulies in human shape pillaged and plundered day and night. People accustomed to plenty, nearly starved, and women and children as well as men shivered from cold because of lack of clothes.

But there was one thing which the calamity did not touch—the indomitable spirit of the people. All sorts and conditions stood shoulder to shoulder in the work of making streets and erecting temporary shelters and establishing and maintaining order. The work went on every hour. This is literally true, for torches and the few electric lights that could be arranged lightened the darkness so that the work of the day went on without interruption.

In forty months the earthquake was a recollection. The city emerged from the downfall and took its place as the metropolis of the western continent. The building permits show that structures have been erected costing more than $50,000,000 in excess of the total value of the buildings destroyed.

SCENE ON A PICTURESQUE MEXICAN HIGHWAY.

TAFT AND DIAZ IN TEXAS AND MEXICO

Military and Civic Jubilee and Banquet to Mark the Meeting of the Two Presidents in El Paso and Juarez.

THE only international incident in the 13,000 mile journey of President Taft will occur Saturday, Oct. 16, when the president of the United States and President Diaz of Mexico will exchange courtesies in El Paso, Tex., and in Ciudad Juarez, across the Rio Grande from Texas.

This is the program: President Diaz will meet President Taft in front of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce and extend the good wishes of Mexico. President Taft will return the call in Juarez. This will be followed by an automobile tour of the Mexican city and its places of interest by the two chief executives and invited guests. President Taft will return to El Paso shortly after noon and review the military, civic, fraternal organization and school parades. Immediately after President Taft will be received at the Chamber of Commerce by the Ohio society and by the Yale alumni. Time, weather and inclination permitting, the president will inspect the El Paso golf course. At 5:30 he will return to Juarez as the guest of President Diaz, who will accompany the banquet. President Taft and his party will return to El Paso at 8 o'clock and at once begin the trip through Texas, and President Diaz will start at the same hour for his return to his capital.

This is only a flash of the program of the day. The incidents that will crowd the occasion will make the event one never to be forgotten by those who will be there and form a bit of international history for all time.

When the grizzled chief of Mexico pays his respects to the president of the United States in El Paso 3,000

United States troops will be drawn up in line. The gorgeously arrayed and famous military band from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., will be there, mounted on iron gray horses that have been so trained that they wear no bridles. The bands of the Ninth and Nineteenth regiments of infantry will play their part. The army will be represented by the Third cavalry, the Ninth infantry and three batteries from Fort Sam Houston, augmented by the first battalion of the Nineteenth infantry under command of Colonel J. E. Houston. All will be under the command of General Albert A. Myer of the department of Texas.

Mexico will be represented by a regiment of cavalry, a regiment of infantry, three batteries and three bands, including the band of President Diaz and the bodyguard of the Mexican president. After the formal greeting between the presidents the military and civic societies will accompany them through the streets of El Paso to the international bridge spanning the Rio Grande. At the Texas end of the bridge the United States escort will halt. The two executives will cross the bridge without any escort except the mayor of El Paso and the mayor of Juarez. On the Mexican side the Mexican troops will be in line and proceed the presidents to the federal building, where the president of the United States will become the guest of the president of Mexico.

After the exchange of greetings in Juarez the two presidents and their respective parties will be driven about the city in automobiles, visiting the ancient edifice of the Church of Guadalupe, erected in 1649, and the little churchyard in which repose the ashes of the padres who administered to the parish in other times. A visit will be made to the barracks of the Mexican troops and to the agricultural college. At the latter place more than a hundred students will receive the presidents.

President Taft will return to El Paso shortly after noon. As he crosses the international bridge a salute will be fired, while the military and civic societies and the school children of El Paso will await the president at the other end of the bridge. The parade will then move through decorated streets to Cleveland square, where the president will review the line. Cleveland square takes its name from the late President Cleveland because the property was given to the city of El Paso by the government during his administration. It was formerly known as "Bad Man's Hurling Ground."

Back to the Banquet.

After the parade is over President Taft will be escorted to the Chamber of Commerce, where he will be the guest of the Ohio Society of Texas and the Yale alumni. When this is over President Taft will again cross the international bridge and be the guest at the banquet to be given by President Diaz. President Taft will be accompanied by several members of his cabinet and Mr. John Hay Hammond. Military officers from the armies of both republics and state officials from Texas and Mexico will also be guests at the banquet.

The banquet hall for this occasion has been erected by the citizens of Juarez and other near municipalities at a cost of $50,000. The little city has decorated itself according to the Mexican idea, and many of the older buildings have been painted, and other improvements have been made, which give it an up to date appearance.

One of the streets, that over which the American president will be taken, has been entirely repaved—quite an innovation for a Mexican town.

While President Taft is being entertained in El Paso in the afternoon the people of Juarez will entertain President Diaz and his party, and the unveiling of a monument to the memory of Benito Juarez, liberator of Mexico, will take place.

New Mexico is also ready for a demonstration on the side which will have for its principal feature a parade in which the youth will carry banners on which will be inscribed, "We Want to Vote for President." This will be New Mexico's way of calling the attention of President Taft to the fact that the people want statehood.

To Remove Corks Easily.

Every one knows the inconvenience of getting corks from glass or cement bottles even after they have been opened. After many tribulations with broken bottles one woman invented the plan of rubbing the cork with vasoline before inserting it.

The corks were easily removed, and the glass remained liquid. Later she applied the greasing plan to glass stoppers that fitted too tightly. It seemed to prevent the swelling that unkes bottle opening such a trial at times.

HARRY WHITNEY, GENTLEMAN SPORT

Sudden Publicity of a Hitherto Unknown Young Man Caused by the North Pole Controversy Between Peary and Cook

WHEN Harry Whitney sailed from New Bedford with Peary on the Roosevelt July 9, 1908, to hunt polar bears and any other game in which he might become interested he did not foresee that he would become a factor in the story of the dash for the north pole. Had he done so he would have saved a whole lot of people considerable trouble, for in that case he would have left some records about himself that would be interesting reading matter just now.

But Harry Whitney at the time of his departure never thought he would be "wanted" as a writeup. He was what thousands of other young men of rich families are. He was out for a good time in the line of sport—a "good fellow" in a certain set, with enough wanderlust in his nature to send him scurrying hither and yon by land and sea, with no definite goal on his gridiron of expectation.

For awhile after Peary had sailed Whitney was lost to the world. As soon as Dr. Cook returned he put Whitney on the map; then Peary, back from his discovery, put northern lights about the young man from New Haven, Conn. The discussion as to who found the pole first was temporarily hung up to await the coming of Harry Whitney from his bear hunt. "Wait for Whitney" was passed along the wires and through the air. Well, Whitney is back from the chase, and what he has said has not settled the controversy.

Ranchman and Sport.

The Whitney family record containing the birth of the young man who has been thrust into the light of publicity has not been opened to the public. It is known, however, that he is the elder of the two sons of Stephen Whitney of New Haven, Conn. He is still a young man. His brother was graduated from Yale only last June. The statement has been made that Harry Whitney received considerable property from the late Bradish Johnson, his grandfather, a rich man of New York city. Harry is not college bred. When he left high school he went at once to learn the copper manufacturing business. After three years at this in Andover, Conn., he quit and sailed from New York city for Australia and engaged in raising sheep. He was not successful in this venture. He returned to this country and bought a ranch in Arizona.

He divided his time between the ranch and prospecting, and while engaged in the latter he nearly found his fish. While riding a mustang a winged insect peculiar to that country flew into his ear. He was unable to remove it. He was a hundred miles from the nearest town, but he put spurs to his mount and reached Tucson. When he arrived he was raving mad. Fortunately for him, he wore the insignia of the Elks, and members of that order went to his aid and had him removed to a hospital, where he obtained relief. After his recovery he went on a hunt, for that was always his ambition. He was noted for it when he lived in New Haven. He went to Colorado, and one of the results of his expedition was the killing of one of the biggest silver tip grizzlies of that section. He remained in the west indefinitely and returned east about the time that Peary was preparing for his last dash for the pole. He became interested in the project while visiting a club in New York city, not because he cared anything about the pole, but because he learned that there was an opportunity of trapping game in the far north. A number of young men at the club where Whitney became an enthusiast agreed to go with him. One of these was a nephew of Andrew Carnegie. When the expedition was ready to start Whitney was the only one of the club coterie that went with it. In fact, he preceded Peary to New Bedford, and while waiting there for the explorer he superintended the building of two power boats of the whaleboat model, and these he presented to Peary on the latter's arrival at New Bedford. The first picture of Whitney that the public saw was the one taken of him while he was standing in one of these boats.

He has the distinction of being the first young American to go to the far north in search of game. He spent the long winter night in that remote land in sledding, and when he returned to civilization he had twenty-one musk oxen and arctic deer to his credit, but the polar bear had kept out of his range.

Harry Whitney inherited his love of sport from his father, who was known in New York city and in New Haven as a "thoroughbred." The elder Whitney was a splendid type of the sport loving gentleman. The family consists of two sons and two daughters. The latter are Mrs. Charles Dickey of New York city and Mrs. William Blodgett of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. Harry's mother was the daughter of Bradish Johnson of New York city and Long Island, and he was a country gentleman of distinction and wealth. The father and mother of Harry Whitney are dead, but his stepmother is still living.

The young man who has been shoved into notoriety without any effort of his own fills the definition of all round sport. He has the spirit of adventure and has the faculty of recording what he sees and hears in a happy vein, for he loves to write. He has a quiet vein of humor and tells a story well.

RED FLAG RAISED

London Police Drove Back Mob Moving on Spanish Embassy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The red flag was raised in London yesterday afternoon, and a large mob moved upon the Spanish embassy to make a demonstration of its disapproval of the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the convicted revolutionary, at Barcelona, a few days ago.

Several bodies of police were stationed at the approaches to the embassy and they drove off the crowd. But considerable excitement and uneasiness pervaded the neighborhood.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Williamstown, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETNA DONOVAN, Box 292, Williamstown, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and no woman owes it to herself to neglect the system. It is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

KING ALFONSO AND HEIR TO THRONE.

The trouble began with a mass meeting in Trafalgar square, which was organized by several socialist and labor bodies. Several hundred of the members of these organizations marched to the square carrying red flags draped with crepe and bearing inscriptions denouncing King Alfonso. A black-bordered banner was held against the Spanish column, with big letters that could be read from afar: "To Hell with the Murderer Alfonso!"

After J. P. Green, secretary of the "Friends of Russian Freedom," called the meeting to order, he read a "telegram from the Countess of Warwick," saying:

"No words are too strong to express Europe's horror at the murder of Ferrer."

Several labor members of parliament delivered strong orations. Victor Guesen of Manchester, the socialist member declared that if the head of every king of Europe was torn from his body it would not pay half the price of Ferrer's life. He called the Russian emperor "a dirty monster," and said that King Edward, who could have prevented the execution, was responsible for whatever might happen in England as a result of it. He demanded the expulsion of the Spanish ambassador.

Strong resolutions were adopted before the meeting ended. Several thousand persons met in the square, most of them attracted by the same curiosity that would take them to the suffragette demonstrations. The socialist societies, carrying their banners, then marched in good order to the Spanish embassy, singing revolutionary songs and hooting King Alfonso. A great rabble accompanied them, filling the streets.

It was dark when they reached the open square in front of the embassy, and they found that the square was filled with platoons of police. The embassy windows were dark, and there was no sign of life there. The police would not let the procession enter the square or even stop. The crowds were turned back and kept moving up Victoria street toward the parliament building, singing about and greeting the reserves were then brought up, and they drove the mob into the side streets dispersing it without serious trouble.

RED FLAGS

WERE CARRIED BY MOB IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 18.—A disorderly mob of several thousand, including a majority of the university students and many Spaniards, made a demonstration yesterday afternoon in honor of Francisco Ferrer. They marched in procession through the principal streets of the city, carrying red flags and cheering for an anarchy.

Two outdoor meetings were held, at which violent orations were made by Maj. Gen. Enrique Loynaz Del Castillo, who recently was appointed envoy extraordinary to the South American republics; Jose Pinar, and other extremists. Resolutions were passed to boycott all Spanish goods and to accept the offer of the Stevedores union to refuse to unload Spanish ships until Spain rescinds the order confiscating Ferrer's estate.

The mob attempted to approach the Spanish consulate and the bishop's palace, but was driven back by the police. The line of march was then taken up to the church, which was assailed with showers of stones, on which the police charged the rioters. A sharp fight ensued and several of the police and many of the rioters were hurt. A large number of men were arrested.

The men then started to attack the offices of the Diario de la Marina, but were again driven back by the police and mounted rural guards, the latter using the flats of their machetes. The mob was speedily dispersed and there was no further disorder.

A REVOLUTION

IS PREDICTED BY CHIEF OF REPUBLICANS

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Alenadre Lerroux, chief of the republicans at Barcelona, who is now in Paris, in an interview yesterday predicted a revolution in Spain and the establishment of a republic. He considered the execution of Ferrer the outcome of the personal vengeance of King Alfonso, who, he said, always was convinced of Ferrer's complicity in the outrage against the king on his wedding day.

followers that returned to the radical library, but when they started the meeting, the police again interfered and compelled the people to leave the building.

During the afternoon a meeting was held in a hall in the Italian section of the city. About 600 people heard addresses by Ben Reisman, editor of the "Frer Arbeiter Stimme," and Voltaire DeClare, a "monograph" by Emma Goldman, an appreciation of Ferrer and his work and a relation of those responsible for his death was also read.

CHURCH WINDOWS SMASHED

BRUSSELS, Oct. 18.—Big Ferrer demonstrations were held in the principal cities of Belgium yesterday. At Liege rowdies smashed the windows of churches and religious establishments.

FREE MASONS

SAID TO BE DIRECTING ANTI-CLERICAL CAMPAIGN

ROME, Oct. 18.—All indications point to the extremists in Italy being determined on an anti-clerical campaign more vigorous even than that in France. This is being directed by the Free Masons, whose grand master has issued a most violent manifesto in behalf of Ferrer, recently executed, and against the church.

CARICATURE OF KING

GENOA, Oct. 18.—A pro-Ferrer procession, in which many of the marchers carried flags draped with crepe, one of them having a caricature of King Alfonso with the inscription "Alfonso is a Monster," caused a fight with the police yesterday. The police succeeded in capturing the offending flag, but little injury was done on either side. The procession was prevented from approaching the Spanish consulate.

STONED SPANISH FLAG

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 18.—Ten thousand people gathered yesterday in one of the public squares and stoned the Spanish flag and portraits of King Alfonso. Resolutions were carried, a boycott on Spanish products was adopted. Similar meetings were held in many of the towns in the interior.

EXPLORERS' CLUB

To Investigate Ascent of Mt. McKinley

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, by request, appeared yesterday before a special committee of the Explorers' club, of which he is a member. The club is conducting an investigation of his ascent of Mount McKinley. He was accompanied by his lawyer. The committee informed him that no charges had been preferred against him by the club, but that the investigation was undertaken only to put his ascent of Mount McKinley officially on the records and to do this a thorough inquiry was deemed best.

Dr. Cook considered this fair, but explained that he was leaving town last night, and he said he would return to the city within 10 days when a date for his appearance before the committee could be fixed. This was agreed upon.

Anthony Flata, who was a member of the committee, took occasion yesterday formally to decline Dr. Cook's invitation to participate in an expedition to recover the records said to have been left on Mount McKinley's summit by Dr. Cook. Flata explained that he was not an experienced mountain climber. Prof. H. C. Parker, of Columbia university, who received a similar request, was also present yesterday. He too formally declined the invitation, saying that he was going to try to scale the peak himself next spring with Belmont Browne.

FIRE ON WARE ST.

Caused Alarm From Box 82 Early This Morning

A fire, the origin of which is unknown, was discovered shortly before 7.30 o'clock this morning in the rear of a double tenement house in Ware street belonging to Dan Smith. Though the blaze was put out soon after the fire department arrived on the scene the oil of the house was quite badly burned.

The fire started on the first floor under a flight of stairs which leads up to the back of the tenement on the second floor and was burning in a lively manner when discovered. An alarm was sent in from box 82 and the department was soon on the scene and with the assistance of extinguishers and the chemical, managed to quench the flames.

An investigation by Chief Hosmer showed that the space under the stairs where the fire started was used for storing coal, wood and rubbish, but he is unable to account for the fire. None of the occupants of the house can tell the origin of the fire.

Chief Hosmer has notified the office of the fire marshal in Boston asking that the fire be investigated.

Rubbish Fire
A still alarm at 5.10 o'clock yesterday afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a rubbish fire on the bank of the Merrimack river in Varnum avenue. The blaze was evidently started by boys.

Fire at Arlington Hotel
A fire started in a box of rags in the basement of the Arlington hotel in Central street yesterday morning. Word was sent to the protective house in Warren street and the blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

Slight Blaze
A still alarm shortly before seven o'clock yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze in a house at 3 George street. The woodwork around one of the cellar windows had rotted away and a cigar stub thrown against the window by a passerby caused the fire. The damage was slight.

Arrested Broker Big Celebration
In Connection With Discovery of Notes
BOSTON, Oct. 13.—D. S. Cummings, a broker of 45 Milk street, this city, was arrested today in connection with the discovery of notes of the town of Framingham bearing signatures alleged to have been forged which were discovered on Saturday.

LOMBARD SERIOUSLY ILL
FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 13.—Activity in the investigation surrounding the two notes of the town of Framingham aggregating $50,000 and which are alleged to have been forged, was transferred today from this town to Boston, where Cummings, Milk street broker, was arrested in connection with the matter. In this town the police had not taken any action up to 10 a. m. against Town Treasurer Lombard, who is dangerously ill at his home although the board of selectmen of Framingham and Town Council Walker Adams, who on Saturday appointed A. M. Fitts temporary town treasurer in Lombard's place, today met and formally ratified Mr. Fitts' appointment. It became known today that the selectmen and town council went over to Somerville last night and held council with J. J. Higgins, district attorney of Middlesex county. What was ordered upon at this conference could not be learned today. The notes in question were issued to two Boston banking institutions, the Franklin Savings bank and the Commonwealth Trust company and were for $25,000 each. Each note bears the purported endorsement of Chairman William H. Walsh and J. P. Stockwell of the board of selectmen whose terms expired last year. Messrs. Walsh and Stockwell, however, have denied their signatures and a careful examination of the town accounts has failed to disclose any trace of the notes. Persons familiar with the signatures of Messrs. Walsh and Stockwell have also expressed their opinion that the signatures were not genuine.

Inasmuch as there is no record of the disputed notes in the town accounts, the selectmen and town council have taken the stand that the town is not in any way liable for whatever loss may accrue through the issuance of the notes. Their contention is that Lombard's town accounts appear to be regular in every way and that if he has been guilty of any irregularities it has not been in connection with his town accounts.

They also express the belief that the company which furnished Lombard's bond to the town should be held to account for any discrepancies. Inasmuch as he was bonded only so far as his town accounts were concerned and not for any irregularities that might occur outside of his official position. During the forenoon the selectmen and town council went into Boston to investigate the handwriting of the notes which were issued.

ROOSEVELT TRIP
Will Cost $25,000 it is Believed
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The donors of the fund which is paying the cost of the Roosevelt African expedition are still unmoved and Sec. Chas. D. Walcott of the Smithsonian institution said last night that the charges would not be made public.

The Roosevelt expedition will cost about $25,000 before it is ended. According to the statements of Sec. Walcott and ex-President Roosevelt, the former president will pay the expenses of himself and son, Kermit, who is the official photographer. The party consists of five persons and the expenses are supposed to be for a year. This will make the Smithsonian institution pay 60 per cent. of the $25,000, or $15,000, and the Roosevelts $10,000. The money of the institution is being disbursed by Lieut. Col. Mearns, a retired U. S. army surgeon, who is attached to the expedition as zoologist and biologist for the Smithsonian institution.

The arrival of the Roosevelt spoils at the hunt at first created great excitement in the institution, but now the clerks have become so used to the "P. R." boxes that they pay little attention to them. The last shipment of 20 cases of skins and bones packed in salt have not been opened yet because of the pressure of other business.

CHIEF GETTEMY
To Name Census Enumerators Here
BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Charles F. Gettemy, head of the state bureau of statistics and labor, who is also supervisor for Massachusetts of the national census to be taken next year, is already busy at preliminary details of the enterprise. It is expected that he will have the heaviest task of any of the 331 supervisors in the United States as at the last census, in 1905, this district included 3,003,650 persons, as compared with 2,442,320 comprising the next largest district, New York county, N. Y., and it is supposed that Massachusetts has maintained its position in the matter of population.

In the last census 1600 enumerators were employed in this district, but with a view to pushing the work next year it is understood that 1000 more enumerators than were employed last time will be required; which will put upon Mr. Gettemy the task of selecting 2600 men for the work. Entirely distinct from the census of population there will be this year a quinquennial census of manufactures, to be made by a different force of men altogether from that employed in obtaining data on population.

Mr. Gettemy has had various applications for clerical positions in connection with the census, with which he has nothing to do, and a statement just issued by him with reference to applications for census positions contains as its first clause information for candidates laboring under the misapprehension just referred to.

ARRESTED BROKER BIG CELEBRATION

To be Held at Yorktown, Va.

YORKTOWN, Va., Oct. 13.—Harking back to the stirring scenes of the revolutionary war, the people of Yorktown are now ready for a rousing celebration of the 128th anniversary of the surrender of the British forces under Lord Cornwallis to Gen. George Washington, Oct. 19, 1781. Various places of interest in connection with this historic event which took place here have been marked, and the gathering throng is kept busy viewing the scenes made notable during that great national drama.

Many patriotic societies, prominent among which are the Yorktown Historical society of the United States and the Society of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, have joined forces to make this patriotic rally worthy of the victory for the American arms. A strong sentiment has been developed among members of patriotic societies in favor of setting apart these historic places forever as one of the nation's sacred resorts, as has been done with Yorktown and other localities associated with American independence. This little town of two hundred people has suffered such slight change after this lapse of time that it is possible to see the field over which the British troops marched to slack their arms and to surrender. The British headquarters are here and Lafayette's march with his light infantry to storm the works of the enemy can be traced in detail as the course traversed by Alexander Hamilton in making his famous bayonet attack. The house in which the terms of capitulation were signed is also here with no important change, and is the centre of attraction on the part of the pilgrims.

In front of the famous home of Thomas Nelson, Jr., a signer of the Declaration of Independence and governor of Virginia during the revolutionary period, a stage has been erected from which many of the famous historic spots can be seen. It is here that the extensive program for the celebration of these events will be carried out tomorrow. On that occasion Henry Norris, president of the Descendants of the Signers, will call the assemblage to order and will deliver an address. Col. Oswald Thigmon of Maryland, first vice president of the Yorktown Historical society and president of the American Society of Cincinnati, will read the correspondence between Lord Cornwallis and Gen. Washington, relating to the capitulation of Yorktown and the surrender of the British forces. Representative J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, president of the Atlantic Seaside Waikarua association, will deliver an oration. Among the picturesque features of the occasion will be the singing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," by the school children of York county. These children will also strew flowers upon the grave of Thomas Nelson, Jr. In the great parade which has been

John E. Redmond Pushing the Issue

LONDON, Oct. 13.—After a week's full house of commons will reassemble today for the final stages of the finance bill. A critical week will begin early in November, when the bill reaches the house of lords. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish party, is now engaged in actively stamping the country, speaking from liberal and radical platforms, as well as at Irish meetings, and is showing a strong determination to force home rule to the front in what he believed to be an inevitable appeal to the country.

A special meeting of the fire district will be held at the town hall this evening to see if the district will rescind the vote to extend the water mains up the Tyngsboro road as far as the cross road.

The question changing the date of the district taxes from Oct. 1, to Nov. 1 each year will also come before this meeting.

MATHEW MOTION PICTURES
The Mathews are to give as an added feature today, Tuesday and Wednesday evening of this week the complete pictures of the world's championship series between Detroit and Pittsburgh. These pictures are of great interest to every baseball lover in Lowell, and give an opportunity of closely studying the great games of the series in Lowell at an expenditure of but five cents. The baseball fan can by seeing this picture form an idea of how the championship of the world was won. It should be borne in mind that this great feature is to be given in addition to the regular bill. The choice program of well shown motion pictures and finely sung illustrated songs offered by the Mathews is a big attraction in itself, and with the baseball pictures added it makes a program unequalled for the money.

FELL FROM SCAFFOLD IN WEST-FORD
Richard Shea, employed at the J. V. Fletcher farm at Westford Depot, fell from a scaffold and broke his leg above the knee Saturday. He was feeding the stock when he in some unaccountable manner slipped off the scaffold to the barn floor, a distance of about 20 feet.

Dr. O. V. Wells was called and after attending to the man, ordered him removed to the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston.

WINTER CHANGES
CANADIAN PACIFIC CURTAILS SAILING OF STEAMERS
ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 13.—Important changes in the winter service between this port and Europe have been announced by the steamship companies. The Canadian Pacific railroad has curtailed the sailings of its steamers from here but this will be offset by the increased service which will be given by the Allan line while the Thompson line will put a new boat this winter to ply between this port and the Mediterranean.

An immense business is done every winter from this port and Halifax in the transportation of wheat and grain after the shipping from Montreal has been brought to an end by the closing of the St. Lawrence river to navigation. It is expected that the shipments this season will be very heavy.

After the departure of the Empress of Ireland on Dec. 17 there will be no sailing of the Canadian Pacific railroad steamers until that of the Empress of Britain on Feb. 11. The intervening dates will be taken by the Allan line.

WOMAN'S APPEAL FATHER KILLED
Caused Burglar to Return Goods
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—By a simple, earnest appeal to a burglar as she sat up in bed in the semi-gloom created by a night lamp, Mrs. Beulah Coleman of Ferguson reached his better nature and caused him, with lowered head and sinking steps, to return the money and jewelry he had taken and to depart silently.

"You're a burglar, aren't you?" she asked.

"I'm not going to take you to task for that. My husband is an invalid and I am trying to support this family. I know you need the money or you wouldn't be here, but I probably need it more than you. You see, these children are dependent upon me, a woman. You are a man. It is for you to decide who needs the money most."

The thief had not answered, but his drooping head told that the appeal had reached his heart.

He tossed her husband's pocketbook to the foot of the bed, slid the jewelry out of his pockets to the dresser near at hand and disappeared.

DIED IN CHURCH
Lynn Woman a Victim of Apoplexy
BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Catherine T. Curry, widow of Capt. Patrick S. Curry of Lynn, died at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Union street, Lynn, yesterday forenoon while attending the 11 o'clock mass. Mrs. Curry was seated beside her daughter, Miss Fanny P. Curry, when she suddenly became unconscious. She was carried into the vestry of the church and a physician pronounced that death had occurred almost instantly. It was due to apoplexy.

Mrs. Curry's husband, who died three years ago, was a captain in the Third Massachusetts Cavalry during the civil war, and at the time of his death was United States Inspector of federal buildings. Mrs. Curry was 65 years old and lived with her daughter at 8 Stephen street. She had been in good health, but yesterday morning complained of not feeling quite so well as usual.

MAN ARRESTED
Husband and Wife Were Stabbed
BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Saverio Spinozola of 23 Cleveland place ran amuck in the North End last night about 8 o'clock and wound up, it is alleged, by stabbing Raffaele Marotta, 23 years old, and his wife Albina, 24, who live at 20 Cleveland place. Both received 20 wounds about the arms. They were treated at the relief hospital.

The trouble started when Spinozola broke a pane of glass in the tenement occupied by Marotta. The latter ran out, followed by his wife, and demanded that Spinozola pay for the damage. The men engaged in an argument and it is alleged that Spinozola pulled a knife and stabbed the Marottas. Spinozola was locked up at division 1 on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

EXTRA COL. ROOSEVELT STOLEN PROPERTY Was Quickly Recovered by the Local Police

The system of tracing stolen and pawned watches as kept by Lieut. John Freeman at the local police station results in many stolen watches being recovered.

A short time ago a man threw a stone through the plate glass window of a Fall River jewelry store and stole about twenty watches. Word was sent to this city and in the course of a week or more one of the watches was recovered.

A Lowell man got "touched" for a watch a week ago Friday, but instead of reporting the matter to the police at once, as he should have done, he did not report the larceny until this morning. This afternoon the timepiece was recovered in a local pawnshop.

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGED

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—Dr. George Fritch was arraigned today on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Maybelle Millman whose dismembered body was found in cement sacks in Ecorse creek. Dr. Fritch stood mute when Justice Jeffries asked him to plead to the charge. Bail was fixed at $15,000 with two sureties and the physician was remanded to the county jail. His examination was set for October 22.

SUPREME COURT P. O'LOUGHLIN

To Review Findings of Lower Courts Has Been Appointed a Probationary Fireman

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The supreme court today announced its determination to review the findings of the lower courts in the case of McCue vs. the Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. This case involves the question as to whether the ordinary life insurance policy insures against hanging under sentence of the law. McCue is one of the heirs of the late Mayor McCue of Charlottesville, Va., who was hanged a few years ago on the charge of murdering his wife. The insurance company refused to make payment on a policy amounting to $15,000. The United States circuit court for the western district of Virginia decided in favor of the company, holding that death on the gallows was not one of the risks against which McCue was insured, but the court of appeals for the fourth circuit reversed the finding and held in favor of the McCue policy. The supreme court will go over the entire record and decide the case upon its merits.

SENSATIONAL FLIGHT
PARIS, Oct. 18.—Count Delambert, the French aviator, made a remarkable and sensational flight in a Wright biplane this afternoon. Leaving the Juvisy aviation field he flew to Paris, circled about the Eiffel tower, at times reaching a height of about 1000 feet above the city and then returned to Juvisy.

COL. ROOSEVELT Had a Narrow Escape From Being Killed by Elephant

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Friday, Sept. 15.—Mr. Cresswell, a government engineer in the public works department at Nieri, came into Nairobi today and brought word that Mr. Roosevelt had a very narrow escape when shooting his first elephant bull. When shooting elephants it is often necessary to creep into the herd and shoot the selected bull at a range of from 15 to 20 yards.

Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Mr. Cunningham, followed this procedure and killed his elephant at the second shot. Suddenly before Mr. Roosevelt could reload, another elephant charged him at close range from the herd. Both Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Roosevelt got behind trees and Mr. Cunningham fired, turning the bull from Mr. Roosevelt, just in time. Other reliable sources confirm the account of Mr. Roosevelt's narrow escape.

LARCENY CHARGE WHO PAYS COUNSEL

Against Boys Arrested in This City In Case of Reinstated Police and License Board?

The three boys who were arrested in Palmer street, Friday afternoon and sent to the police station on suspicion that they had committed larceny and who were sent back to Manchester Saturday were wanted in that city for the larceny of $42 in money from a house about six miles outside of Manchester.

The boys when brought to the local station gave their names as 255 and 256 and 257, and their addresses as Donald Dupont, 16, 55 Pearl street; Arthur Houle, 14, 408 Cartier street and Lester Pineault, 14, of 13 Hollow street, Manchester. They said that after drawing their pay they went to Nashua and later came to this city for the purpose of spending the money.

The Manchester police were notified and an inspector came to Lowell and took the boys back to Manchester. This morning the local police were informed that the boys were wanted in the Queen City for larceny.

The archbishop was readily recognized and was kept busy acknowledging the salutes of passersby along the sidewalks.

THE DICK LAW

Worked Well According to Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—January 21 next will be a critical date in the history of the national guard, for thereafter no portion of the money appropriated by congress for the support of the militia can be paid to any organization which fails to conform to the standards of the regular army.

The Dick law of 1903 originally prescribed a period of five years for bringing about the considerable changes necessary to place the guardsmen in uniformity of organization and equipment with the regular soldier. But as that time limit approached it was found that very few of the states had been able to conform and an extension was granted until Jan. 21, 1910.

Through its system of inspection of militia organizations by regular officers the war department is in possession of information regarding conditions. The detailed results will be made public in the forthcoming annual report of Colonel F. M. Weaver chief of the division of militia affairs.

On the whole, the war department expresses great satisfaction in the prospect, and the apparent success of the workings of the Dick law. Next year for the first time in its history, the militia or as much of it as remains under the captain of the national guard, will be found armed with the latest pattern of military rifles, clothed from head to foot in regular army gear, supplied with all regular equipment and with ranks filled to the requirements of the law.

PETITION IS DENIED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The petition of the Delaware & Hudson R. R. Co. for a writ of certiorari bringing to the supreme court of the United States for review the case of the Albany & Susquehanna railroad company vs. the Delaware company, was denied today by the supreme court of the United States.

SHOE WORKERS MEET

Employees Were Addressed by Organizer Robinson and Supt. Shanahan on Federal Company Difficulty—Organization Will be Perfected at Meeting Friday Night

A meeting of the masters of the Federal Shoe company, together with representatives of all the different departments of the shoe shops in Lowell, was held at Leather Workers' hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a branch of the shoe workers' union, the total number of shoe workers in this city being 2300. There were about 50 present and they were addressed by Organizer Robinson of Lynn, who spoke on the benefits of organization, and stated that on Friday another meeting will be held for the purpose of perfecting the organization.

The differences at the Federal Shoe Co. were then discussed and Supt. Daniel Shanahan of the local branch of the company, who was present on invitation, was given the floor. Mr. Shanahan addressed the gathering on the situation as far as the employers' side of the case was concerned and when he had finished, Organizer Robinson suggested that the matter be taken before the state board of arbitration, for a settlement. Mr. Shanahan stated that there was nothing in the case that called for arbitration, and the suggestion was not adopted.

The local plant of the Federal company opened in all departments at the usual hour this morning. Mr. King, general manager of the company, made the following statement to a reporter of The Sun: "Everything is running smoothly at the plant today, though of course, not exactly as a few days before. We have filled the places of most of the lasters who are not working, but have not filled all. The situation is peculiar. It is not exactly a strike and I think the state statistician might call it a lock-out, though it is hardly that. We are paying our help more than any other shoe shop in Lowell is paying for the same class of work and that is not all, but our help are earning more than the employees in other local shops on the same class of work. We are not only paying the price, but we are giving our employees a chance to earn money. Now when we suddenly received a demand for more pay from the lasters we shut down for two days to think the matter over. Suppose in your business you were paying your compositors more than any other Lowell newspaper, and they should come to you with a demand for more pay, you would immediately stop and think it over. After two days' shut down we announced that we would reopen at the same rate of wages, regretting that we could not grant what they demanded. The lasters did not return and we started to fill their places. That is the situation. We cannot do differently."

KING ALFONSO

Said to Have Had Violent Quarrel With Spanish Premier

PARIS, Oct. 18.—A special from Madrid says that King Alfonso has had a violent quarrel with the premier because of the latter's failure to give his majesty an opportunity to exercise the royal prerogative of pardon in the case of Ferrer. The despatch says that the unpleasant interview followed when the king learned of the tompeuts that had been raised abroad by Ferrer's death.

FALL OF PREMIER PREDICTED

MADRID, Oct. 18.—The fall of Premier Maura is anticipated if former Premier Morot announces in the chamber of deputies today, as an article in the Diario Universal intimates that he will do, that the liberal party must be newly constituted. The Diario Universal makes a sensational attack upon the government in an article headed: "Not one hour longer."

THEODORE RIZZO

Charged With Murdering Two Children

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The trial of Theodore Rizzo, on the charge of murdering two Italian children in the eastern part of this city on Sept. 13, was begun today before Justice Rogers. Although the prisoner was surrounded by deputies and policemen, the mother of Theresa Procopio, the murdered girl, darted past the officers and dealt Rizzo a stinging blow on the head. As she was being led away her sister-in-law also dashed for the prisoner, but she did not get in a blow. Each woman held a baby on her arm or they might have caused more trouble.

WOMAN MORTALLY WOUNDED

JUVISY, France, Oct. 18.—A few minutes before Count Delambert returned to the aviation field here from his flight to Paris, Alfred M. Blanc, the French aeronaut, attempted his first flight in a Blériot machine. Shortly after ascending the monoplane, as the result of a false shift of the rudder, turned into the tribune and fell, mortally wounding a woman and injuring a dozen other persons.

18 WERE ARRESTED

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Socialist and radical demonstrators against Spain following three meetings held in different sections of the city today attempted a march upon the Spanish embassy. AMERICAN ICE CO.

Placed on Trial on Charges of Illegal Monopoly

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The American Ice Co., which is said to control half of the ice trade in New York and vicinity, and its officers, were on trial today on charges of illegal monopoly. The result of this case, according to its own lawyers, means life or death to the corporation. After many days, an investigation, begun by State Attorney General Jackson nearly two years ago, culminated in this trial before Supreme Court Justice Wheeler of Buffalo, specially assigned, and a special jury. The ice company was allowed this jury a week ago because its attorneys pleaded that the public mind was so inflamed against the corporation that a jury chosen in the ordinary way could not render justice.

The action is on four indictments found against the company in 1908. They charge that the company sought to prevent competition in the sale of ice and violated the so-called Donnelly anti-trust act.

Deputy Attorney General Osborne, who has charge of the prosecution, said that the state could prove its case by documentary evidence. But attorneys for the ice company declared that the points of law involved are intricate and that the decision will be important to every corporation in the state.

It is probable that most of today's session will be taken by the selection of a jury from the special panel of one hundred talesmen.

THE MORSE CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Martin Littleton said that the application to the United States supreme court for a writ reviewing the decision of the lower federal court sentencing Charles W. Morse, the former banker, to fifteen years' imprisonment probably would be made within two or three days. When Mr. Morse's sentence was sustained a week ago by the United States circuit court his attorneys secured a stay of forty days in which to make this final appeal.

TWO CAPTAINS KILLED

MELILLA, Oct. 12.—Three regiments and a mounted battery of the Spanish forces while reconnoitering yesterday west of Nador engaged and defeated the enemy. The Spanish then retired, having lost a commander and two captains killed and fourteen men wounded. The Moorish losses were heavy.

PUBLIC PROTEST ENTERED

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—A public protest against the execution of Ferrer and which it is designed to transmit to the Spanish government at Madrid is being circulated here. The paper expresses horror at what is termed "a legal murder," and among the signers are Prof. Harekell, the author and naturalist, formerly a member of the faculty at Jena university; Gerhardt Hauptmann, Max Lieberman and Richard Dehmel.

U. S. OFFICIALS

Watching Progress of Nicaragua Revolution

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The progress of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua is being watched with keen interest by this government. The officials of the department of state declined to discuss the situation and present an attitude of diplomatically correct neutrality, but it is nevertheless well understood here that this government record is in full sympathy with the Estrada movement against the Zelaya government. Those familiar with the government records regarding Central American affairs with the monopolies by which it is alleged President Zelaya has for years crippled the commerce of his country with the intrigues which have kept all Central America in a ferment and practically stifled republican institutions in Nicaragua and with Zelaya's evidence of disregard for the Washington convention could not but assume that foreign governments and foreign public opinion would welcome any change in Nicaragua. This would be especially true, it was said today by persons familiar with conditions, if the movement for a change were headed by a man like Juan Estrada, who has a reputation here crediting him with qualities of justice and character.

The following statement was issued today by the state department: "The leader of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua, Juan J. Estrada, has addressed the secretary of state announcing that he is holding the Atlantic coast from Grayton to Cape Gracias a Dios and has assumed the provisional presidency of the republic and asking recognition. He has also announced his appointment of Dr. Salvador Castro, Jr., as agent to the government of the United States, and requested that this government in turn accord a diplomatic representative. "It is understood that the usage of the United States government for many years has been to withhold recognition from the revolutionary government in foreign countries unless they have practical control of the machinery of government of the state, admitting its laws in orderly fashion, and the confidence of the people and a position to fulfill responsibly all obligations of treaty and international law toward foreign powers. When that condition exists de facto recognition is usually accomplished by accrediting a diplomatic agent to the new government and receiving its envoy. "Unless and until the events call for the adoption of such a course the attitude of the United States government is necessarily of a neutral spectator, except when interests of American citizens are menaced, in which case the resident agents of the United States in that country or in case of need the naval commanders may demand protection or redress from the local de facto power, whether the particular locality be controlled by the titular government of the state or by its revolutionary opponents. In the latter case such a demand does not imply recognition of the legality of the authority to which the demand is addressed. "These considerations make sufficiently clear what must be the attitude of the government of the United States in the present posture of affairs in accordance with the technicalities of international law and practice."

TWO MILITANT ENGLISH SUFFRAGISTS WHO COME TO AID CAUSE IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—All American woman suffragists who are really interested in the cause are looking forward to the coming of Mrs. Emmeline G. Pankhurst, the militant English suffragette, who is to lecture and otherwise spread the propaganda in the United States and Canada. She is militant in every sense of the term. She is a brave woman of large mold, a born leader and gifted with powers of oratory that any stump speaker would be proud to possess. Her able second and lieutenant is her daughter, Christabel, who bears the distinction of being one of the first women sent to prison in England for the cause of equal suffrage. The young woman was taken to jail six years ago for asking Sir Edward Grey what he intended to do about the suffrage movement. Mrs. Pankhurst will preside at a big suffrage meeting in Brooklyn, after which she will go to Troy to the suffrage convention. Then she probably will tour the country.

RIVALS CLASH

In Matter of Aviation Dates

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Oct. 12.—The fifteenth century rivalry which made York and Lancaster historic names seems to have been revived by the clash of aviation meeting dates here and at Doncaster and the gratification of Lancastrians at the somewhat depressive opening of the Yorkshire events, is poorly disguised. Certainly the conditions here and the presence of a number of the more famous flying men promises something nearer to the spectacular exhibition witnessed at Rheims than Doncaster offers and a large portion of the public interested in aviation has arrived here. The French aviators Farman, Paulhan, Roulier and LeBlanc are here while Latham, Pomeroy and Fernandez are on their way. The rush of English competitors has surprised everyone as it was not realized that so many were prepared to attempt flight. No fewer than fourteen entrants are announced for the opening competition. All the machines are monoplanes with the exception of two biplanes and one triplane. Today's competition will consist of a long distance flight with a first prize of $10,000, a speed contest for three circuits about the aerodrome with a first prize of $2,000 and a special novel prize of $1,000 for the aviator taking the longest time to circle the course.

COAL SHORTAGE

May be Caused by the Strike

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 12.—The protracted strike of the Cape Breton coal miners is beginning to show its effect on the coal supply in the maritime provinces. The dealers say there is every likelihood of a shortage on the Atlantic coast for the local mines and are making large importations from the mines of the United States and Scotland to meet their demands. Prices are also going up and it is claimed that Scotch coal can be sold here almost as cheaply as the Nova Scotia product. Record shipments are arriving all the time from the United States.

BANK CASHIER KILLED HIMSELF

MINERAL POINT, Wis., Oct. 12.—F. E. Hanscomb, cashier of the wrecked First National bank of Mineral Point, shot and killed himself at 10 o'clock last night. Hanscomb's body was removed to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Grey, and at sight of the body Mrs. Grey dropped dead. Since the failure of the bank Hanscomb has been working night and day and was despondent.

BATONYI TRIAL FIRE DEPARTMENT

Began in New York City Today Ald. Adams Favors Important Changes

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The second trial of Mrs. Francis Burke Roche Batonyi's divorce against Aurel Batonyi, the noted whip, began here today. In outlining her case Mrs. Batonyi's attorney told the judge that two of the questions to be decided related to the defendant's alleged unfaithfulness. Batonyi was on hand when the case was called, but his wife had not appeared by the time a jury was obtained. Mrs. Batonyi's first suit was discontinued last June when her attorney walked out of court after failing to get a delay to secure important witnesses. The hearman pressed his counter suit for a separation and won it, but his victory did not interfere with the present action.

Four women were mentioned in Mrs. Batonyi's complaint, but her counsel announced today that the charges involving two of them would be withdrawn. The first witness was Eugene Arcourt, a chauffeur. He said that in March, 1908, he drove Batonyi and a woman whom he did not name in his taxicab as far north as 155th street and then they returned. The taxi trip is the basis of one of Mrs. Batonyi's charges. Arcourt said that he did not see anything wrong in the actions of the defendant or his companion that night.

Miss Florence Gillette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gillette, and niece of the late Bishop Delaney, and Miss Alice Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Sullivan, have gone to Trinity college, Washington.

Miss Anna Bayez, daughter of Mrs. Bayez of Wilton street, has gone to Constant Station, N. J., to complete her studies at St. Elizabeth's convent, where her sister is one of the community.

BIG FIRE WAGON

Fell Through a Bridge While Responding to an Alarm

BROCKTON, Oct. 12.—While responding to an alarm of fire from box 430 at 11.45 last night the aerial truck which was recently purchased for the fire department plunged through the East Ashland street bridge to Trout creek, ten feet below, injuring Driver Harris R. Weatherbee so severely that he is not expected to live and breaking several ribs and the right foot of John Casey, a call man.

The alarm was rung in for a fire in the barn of Walter Pratt on North Quincy street, which resulted in the loss of a horse and cow and a total loss of the barn.

The truck, with Driver Weatherbee leaning far out, the three horse hitch pounding along at full speed, swung around the corner of East Ashland street. There is a fair piece of road and Weatherbee urged his horses to a still faster clip to take advantage of the good ground.

He knew that the East Ashland street bridge was in the course of construction, but saw the red light and a clear lane on one side. A few feet from the bridge Weatherbee saw where the boards ought to be a black gap yawning in front of him. He jammed the brake and threw himself back on the reins, but the momentum of the huge truck was too great, and without a perceptible slackening of speed, horses, truck and men plunged headlong into the gulf.

Weatherbee was hurled head first under the horses, which, frightened into a fury, thrashed about in the shallow creek, their hoofs striking the prostrate man. The other four men were hurled into the stream and Casey sustained several broken ribs and his right foot was broken.

It was a tangled mass of horses, men and harness that confronted Chief Harry L. Marston, who was closely following the truck to the fire.

Leaping out of his automobile and disregarding the fire for the more pressing work of rescue, Chief Marston succeeded with the aid of the uninjured men in extricating Weatherbee from the horses and harness. Placing the driver and Casey in his automobile the chief hustled them to the hospital, where after examinations it was found that Weatherbee was hurt so badly that he is not expected to recover.

The horses were taken out of the creek later, and were found to be badly bruised, scratched and stiff from their awful plunge. The truck was wrecked and will have to be entirely renovated before it is fit for further use.

Chief Marston learned that whoever left the red light burning placed it on the wrong side of the bridge and led Driver Weatherbee into the trap.

SAILOR SAVED

By Means of a Novel Air Chamber

CRISFIELD, Md., Oct. 12.—One of the most remarkable escapes from death in marine annals is that of James O'Donnell, one of the crew of the schooner George W. Collier, which was wrecked in Chesapeake Bay on Friday.

When the George W. Collier was wrecked it turned turtle. O'Donnell was caught in the forepeak of the vessel, and the rest of the crew supposed he was drowned. They were rescued after clinging for hours to the upturned boat.

When a big wave hit the schooner

broadside she rolled heavily, and before she had time to recover another roller sent her over. O'Donnell was below and did not have time to get out. The other men and Captain Webster leaped into the water and grasped the side of the craft.

Just before morning broke the steamship Virginia picked up the crew, and Capt. Webster and his men were put ashore at Deal Island. When the boat turned turtle there was a rush of water which swept him far into the forepeak. Then the sailor found that his body was submerged in the chilling water; his head and shoulders were in a sort of air chamber. This compressed air not only kept him alive, but served to hold up the schooner.

Captain Webster, his strength renewed, gathered several of his men and started out to see what could be done with his craft about noon Saturday. O'Donnell had then been a prisoner over 18 hours. The schooner was towed into a shipyard and after considerable effort was turned over. To the amazement of the men, O'Donnell, barely conscious, rolled out.

SEVERAL LIVES SAVED

Yachts Were Disabled by the Brisk Gale

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—All day long yesterday, the United States lifesaving crew at Point Allerton were busy rescuing small fishermen, whose frail craft were overturned by the brisk gales that swept along the Hull shores, and towing disabled yachts to safety. The crew started in their work at 7 a. m., when they were notified of the capsizing of a small sloop.

Arthur, Mueller, Charles Johnson and William Jansen, all of Quincy, had started out for a small boat, when one of the men climbed the mast to adjust the sail. A sudden gust of wind sprang up, overturning the vessel. The sloop Lucy of South Boston, Capt. Wells, was passing at the time and dragged two of the men from the water, while the power boat of the life saving crew, under Capt. Sparrow, reached the scene in time to rescue the third.

The men had been in the water for forty minutes, and had nearly died from shock and exhaustion. The boat was sent to the station for medical supplies, but it was over an hour and a half before the men recovered. They were taken to their homes in Quincy.

On the return trip, the life saving crew noticed that the large sloop Capt. Jack Leary, of the Chelsea Yacht club, had lost a mast and was in trouble in the strong winds. They towed the sloop to harbor off Hull hill, where it anchored.

At 3 p. m., the crew noticed a small sloop going through Hull Gut at a fast clip, headed for the sea, although no sails were up. They started out after it and succeeded in getting a line to the boat. The yacht was the Agnes, in charge of its builder, A. E. Thayer of Quincy, employed by the Fore River Engine company. He had started for a sail, but finding the gale too strong for his frail craft had lowered his sails, but in spite of every effort the vessel was being carried out to sea by the strong winds.

While fishing for small off Winmore station, Hull Charles H. Paine, of Conwell avenue, West Somerville, left carrier at Medford, and William J. Blaisdell, a painter, of 25 1-2 Summer street, Somerville, were thrown into the water by the overturning of their boat. Blaisdell was hampered by his shoulder, and though the distance to the shore was not far, did not dare to hazard the swim, so Paine stayed with him.

Another boat, in which were two fishermen, rowed over and took Blaisdell to the shore, where he was unable to stand for some time on account of exhaustion and the shock of the icy water. Although there were a score of boats at hand, Paine was compelled to remain in the water for twenty minutes until another boat put out from the front and came to his assistance. Both men were provided with a change of clothing by a resident near the boat and went home. Neither suffered any ill effects from the accident.

IN POLICE COURT

Striking Object Lesson on Drunkenness

A living example of what liquor will do to wreck a man's life was witnessed in police court this morning in the person of Frank McCabe, a middle aged man, who appeared in a pitiable condition.

The man was sentenced to jail for 20 days, but while he was waiting to be taken downstairs he collapsed and was carried into one of the ante rooms, where after considerable difficulty he was revived.

As the man was being led downstairs Judge Hadley said: "That is a terrible object lesson. Few of us realize it, however, and still every day finds new recruits to the army, not the Salvation Army, but the army of desolation."

TAXICABS UPSET

And Their 10 Occupants Injured

APRONAUG, R. I., Oct. 15.—Two taxicabs were badly damaged and their 10 occupants injured, although not seriously, in two accidents on the Apronaug road, yesterday. The occupants of both machines formed one party, which was bound for East Greenwich from Providence. The leading machine became caught in the car tracks entering Apronaug road and was overturned down an embankment, being badly broken and precipitating those inside to the ground. The machine following, in order to avoid crashing into the overturned taxicab, was headed sharply to the left where it ran up an embankment and then down again, overturning like the other.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Bernard F. Roller, physician, wrestler, pugilist and all around athlete of Seattle, Wash., is now hot foot after the foreign mat artists who recently arrived in this country in search of fame and the coin. Roller says he is willing to take on any one of 'em—Pat Rooney, the Irish champion; Giovanni Rascovich, the Italian giant; or Zbyesco, the Polish mountain of flesh. The doctor also announces that he will bet anything from a toothpick up to a thousand simoleans that he can take the measure of any one of the foreign grapplers mentioned. Since his debut into the wrestling game several years ago Roller has met with considerable success, having only two defeats chalked up against him, those by Gatch, the world's champion. The latter stated some time ago that Roller gave him the hardest tussle of his career. It is more than likely that the doctor will tackle Rooney before one of the clubs in Kansas City, Mo., while in the next few weeks Roller recently tried his hand at the boxing game, but was anything but a success. While he had a good wallop, still he lacked speed when sparring. Some years ago while at Pennsylvania university he figured prominently in athletics. Illustration shows Roller endeavoring to break knee hold, opponent applying counter for same.

HEART FAILURE KILLED BY TRAIN

Caused the Death of The Victim a Former Buchanan Magazine Writer

LONDON, Oct. 15.—An inquest into the death of W. I. Buchanan, the American diplomat, whose body was found in Park lane late Sunday night, will be held on Wednesday. The official papers and personal property found in the rooms occupied by Mr. Buchanan at Claridge's hotel, have been turned over to the American embassy. Investigation thus far has failed to throw any light on the movements of the diplomat during the few hours preceding his death. Friends who had seen him during the day say that he appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. He left his hotel just before the dinner hour on Saturday, but where or with whom he dined, or how he spent the evening had not been learned today. There were no evidences upon the body of assault or robbery, and it is supposed that death was due to heart trouble or an apoplectic stroke. Mr. Buchanan was formerly American minister to Panama and later a special commissioner from the United States to Venezuela.

CHINESE POST

Has Been Offered to Stuyvesant Fish

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Stuyvesant Fish, when asked today about the report from Shanghai, that he is to become minister to China, said: "It is true that the Chinese mission was offered to me, but that happened last spring while I was in Europe. Needless to say, the offer was at once declined. I did not mention the fact then and should not do so now were it not for the persistence of the baseless rumors of my going there."

PRINCESS LOUISE

CONFIRMED IN THE CHURCH OF PEACE

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Princess Victoria Louise, daughter of the German emperor and empress, was confirmed today in the church of Peace at Potsdam. The ceremony which marks the separation of childhood from womanhood, was conducted by Dr. Dryander, the favorite court preacher.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

Because of Jack Johnson's Victory

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Jack Johnson, the fighter, has tied up traffic on the Mississippi river in this section. Big steamboats are docked at several ports owing to scarcity of labor with which to supply a crew and river men blame Johnson's victory over Getchel for prevailing conditions as all the roustabouts are celebrating. The James Lee, one of the largest Mississippi boats, is tied up here, although she was to leave Friday. Deckhands, picked up exclusively from the negro race, refused to enlist in order to remain ashore and hear the returns from the battle, and the festivities have continued since the victory of one of their race.

The toast will be pledged at the same minute in the European capitals, San Francisco time.

Many of the players who participated in the late national championships at Philadelphia were entered for today's events, including the British golfer, Miss Dorothy Campbell of North Berwick, who won the American championship and who carries the title across the water. Nearly all of the strongest local exponents of the game were also on the list, including two former champions, Miss Harriet and Miss Margaret Currie of the home club. Players were also expected from New York and Philadelphia.

SEARCH FOR HEAD

Of Murdered Girl Resumed by the Officials of Tiverton

FALL RIVER, Oct. 15.—Every bit of evidence possible is being gleaned by the police of this city today in an effort to strengthening their case against Wilfrid Thibault, the chauffeur, and "Prof." Frank Hill, the herb doctor, whom they charged murdered Miss Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R.I., and then distributed her body along the bigger main highway in the town of Tiverton, N. J.

Meanwhile, the Tiverton police authorities began another week by continuing their search for the head of the girl whose body was found in the ditch. They spent much of the day in the vicinity of Mill road, a short thoroughfare connecting Bulgermarsh and Fish roads.

It is the theory of Chief of Police Manchester that the torso found on Bulger marsh road near the head of Fish road was the last piece of the body thrown from the vehicle used in the distribution of the dismembered parts. This theory was materially strengthened yesterday when a box was found a short distance down Fish road with unmistakable signs of blood about it and with a round red ring on the inside of one end, indicating the place where the top of the neck of the dead girl rested. The torso measured 23 inches and the inside of the box 24.

The report of Prof. Whitney of the Harvard Medical school on the autopsy of the stomach of the Tiverton victim was eagerly awaited today by the officials of both Fall River and Tiverton. Prof. Whitney was also to report on the examination of the shoes of Thibault upon which the police of Fall River thought they noted blood stains.

The matter of just where the crime was committed had not been definitely settled when the wheels of the police department began to move this morning. One inspector expressed the theory on Saturday evening that when the operation upon the St. Jean girl was unsuccessful the body was taken to the shore of Mount Hope bay, dismembered and the head thrown into the water at that point on the shore. This would make the affair a Rhode Island crime. Another official thinks that the scene of the murder was right here in Fall River, while still another has a theory that the dismembering took place down on Bulgermarsh road.

Inspector Medley stated late this afternoon that he felt confident that the box found off Fish road yesterday afternoon came from the office of "Prof." Hill. A Greek who keeps a small store nearby was taken to the Tiverton police. He said he was almost positive that the box came from his store. A close inspection of the box today revealed the presence of several long hairs. This discovery strengthens greatly, the police say, the theory that the head was thrown away in the vicinity of the "Bee" road. A search from noon to the missing head had not been found, the detectives appeared to feel confident that it would be located before the day is over. Their opinion was that the arms and legs were packed in the telescope box and that the torso and head were put into the pine box. Either just before or after the torso was disposed of the head was thrown into the ditch.

The medical examiner of Tiverton came up to the city today and held a long conference with Acting City Marshal John Fiet at the local police station. Shortly after William E. Fuller, Jr., and William C. Gray, counsel for Thibault, went into an executive session with Justice John J. McDonough of the police court. The conference prolonged for over an hour.

It is the opinion of Mr. Fuller that his automobile could not have been taken to his garage during the night without his knowledge.

The indications of the speedometer and the quantity of the gasoline which he has noted carefully would also, he feels, dispel this theory advanced against Thibault.

POLICE FIND BOX

That Was Used in Hiding Murdered Girl's Body

FALL RIVER, Oct. 18.—The box in which the decapitated head or the discovered torso of the girl who figures in the Tiverton murder mystery was transported from the place where the body was found yesterday by Deputy Sheriff King of Newport. He discovered it on the Hamby farm, on the east side of the Fish road, some distance from the place where other searches had made finds.

In addition a handkerchief saturated with blood and perforated as if by the teeth of a saw was picked up by Mr. King off the road. The initial "T" appears in one corner.

The securing of the box was the most important incident of the day. It is of seven-eighths inch stock and its dimensions are 18x24x14. King took the box and handkerchief to the Tiverton police station.

Mrs. Lamoureux yesterday identified as those worn by her niece, Miss St. Jean, the corsets and a skirt which two weavers found several days ago at the end of Bay street. One of the weavers had taken them home, and they had been worn by his wife until yesterday.

Search Office of Hill

Inspector Medley last night made another visit to the office of "Prof. Hill" and took back to the station various articles. Among the effects secured were telescope bag, similar to that which contained parts of the murdered girl's body, a grape basket, a jack-knife, a corkscrew and a pair of pliers.

After yesterday's failure to find the head of the murdered girl, the police still more firmly believe that the head, the one means of positive identification of the mutilated body, lies at the bottom of Mt. Hope bay, is buried somewhere or has been burned.

Hundreds of people were out in both sections of the town yesterday, some inspired by the offer of $100 for the recovery of the missing head, and others animated solely by a generous desire to co-operate with the police in unraveling the puzzle of identity.

What the police believe is more evidence of the disappearance of Amelia St. Jean was found when a prayer book, printed in French, was picked up within a few feet of where police came upon clothing last week in the thick growth of trees and brush, off Bay street.

There is little doubt as to its former ownership, though no name is printed in the publication. On the inside of the cover are the numbers 1266-612. Evidently they stand for a telephone call. That system is not employed either here or New Bedford, while it is said to be in use in Providence.

Other articles, probably having no worth as evidence, comprised a pillow case nearly torn in twain, a part of a table cloth, a bunch of cloth, a black cloth belt and a miniature of a boy.

Wore Garments of Dead

Because of a story told by a weaver named James Burger of 260 Pleasant street, police inspectors called yesterday at a house in the eastern part of the city and secured a pair of corsets and a white undershirt of excellent material, which the man's wife had used.

Burger and one Adams had been "down the line" at the Bay street end on Saturday afternoon and were walking up the hill toward the main road when they came across the articles. The appearance of the things led Adams to conclude that they would be serviceable for his wife and he carried them home. Neither of the men was aware at that time that the skirt and the corsets were to figure in the tragedy.

As the finding of the apparel was on Saturday, it tends to disprove the idea that the dismemberment of the corpse if not the actual killing of the girl took place on Friday or possibly Thursday night.

Orders were issued yesterday by Marshal Fleet that every man should be on the alert for possible information. Anything bearing even remotely on the case was to be reported to the captains of the various stations, through whom it would be transmitted to the chief. Especially were the detectives busy.

Inspector Bartholomew Shea, who is responsible for the find that resulted in matching the pieces of a torn skirt completed his inventory of the Hill of Hope jail Saturday night. He saw enough to lead him to believe that, in addition to dealing in herbs and snake oil, the prisoner was well supplied with other appliances.

Murder Hearing Oct. 25

"Prof." Frank Hill and Wilfrid Tibbault spent their Sunday in cells at police headquarters. The police hope to secure more evidence to warrant the detention to which they have been subjected when the question of their connection with the murder is heard on Dec. 25.

The status of the matter of identifying the dismembered trunk and limbs as a complete body, minus the head, is still doubtful. While parents and relatives of Miss St. Jean state their belief that the body is here, an acquaintance of the missing girl has brought out strong points against this as a fact.

The identification of the clothes found several days ago was the principal factor in the original supposition that the body was Miss St. Jean's. It is possible that the body is that of another person.

The finding of the head, unless that much sought for portion of the body is very far advanced in decomposition, would definitely decide the identity of the victim and give the police a firm basis for their case.

That suppositions may greatly err is shown in the case of Miss Grace Edwards, who was originally thought to be the victim. That young woman has been located in Pittsburg, where formerly she lived.

IVINS ATTACKED

Statement Given Out by Henry George, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Taken from the graveyard of forgotten campaigns, a political skeleton covered with the dust of 23 years was rattled in New York last night, adding intensity to the three cornered struggle for the mayor's chair of Greater New York between William J. Gaynor, democrat; William R. Hearst, independent, and Otto T. Bannard, republican.

The nominees rested yesterday and last night, but the fight centered around Hearst produced a new issue of the campaign, the political record of William Ivins. Hearst's ardent republican supporter, albeit his opponent four years ago.

The fresh phase came in the form of a statement issued last night by Henry George, Jr., son and biographer of the famous single taxer, who charges in effect that Ivins went to his father in 1885 and offered him inducements to withdraw from the majority race against William R. Grace. As a matter of history, Mr. George refused to be sidetracked and entered the contest only to meet defeat.

In a formal statement given out on Saturday night, Ivins, apparently expecting an attack on his alleged connection with the George-Grace campaign, denied that he ever made any offer to Henry George to retire. As opposed to this, Henry George, Jr., said last night:

"In his prepared statement, published in the newspapers this morning, Mr. William M. Ivins denies a story that in behalf of Richard Croker he offered to Henry George, my father, $25,000 to withdraw from the majority contest in 1886.

"In response to a statement made in the newspapers by Abram S. Hewitt, relative to the 1886 campaign, my father toward the close of the 1887 campaign and just a few days before his death, issued a statement which, with the attendant circumstances, may be found on pages 462-3 of 'The Life of Henry George' by me. The statement is as follows:

"Before my nomination had formally taken place (in 1886) I received a request from Mr. William M. Ivins, then chamberlain of the city, and a close political friend and representative of Mr. Grace, to privately meet him. I do so at Seigristner's on Lafayette place. We sat down in a private room, unattended, and smoked some cigars together. Mr. Ivins stated that I could not possibly be elected mayor of New York, no matter how many people might vote for me; that the men who voted knew nothing of the real forces that dominated New York. He said that I could not possibly be counted on. He offered on behalf of Tammany Hall and the county democracy that if I would refuse the nomination for mayor they would run me for congress, select a city district in which nomination was equivalent to election; that I should be at no expense whatever, but might go to Europe or anywhere I wished, and when I came back should receive a certificate of election to the house of representatives. I said to him finally: 'You tell me I cannot possibly get the office. Why, then, if I cannot possibly get the office, do you want me to withdraw?'

"His reply was 'You cannot get elected, but your running will raise hell.' I said: 'You have relieved me of embarrassment. I do not want the responsibility and the work of the office of mayor of New York, but I do want to raise hell. I am decided and will run.'

In reply to Henry George, Jr., Ivins issued the following statement last night:

The quotations which Dr. Henry George, Jr., now makes is, if my recollection serves, taken from the xenoman's life of his father. My own memory is in no respect faulty with regard to my relations with Henry George, senior, but that is no issue in the present campaign.

"In 1897 I denied that I had ever offered Mr. George a nomination in behalf of Tammany Hall and I also denied that any such conversation as that here given took place between us; I still deny it. Mr. George is dead, and I care to say nothing further of the matter. Even the courts will not permit one to testify to a conversation with parties deceased.

"It will be noted that Mr. George does not repeat the accusation which was made yesterday, that I attempted to bribe his father."

MAY LOSE AN EYE

Hunter Victim of a Strange Accident

MARLBORO, Oct. 18.—Charles Clancy, about 20 years old, living on Devens street, this city, met with a serious accident under peculiar circumstances, while hunting in the Robin Hill district, about two miles out of town, Saturday, with two companions.

At noon the trio sat down to eat their lunch in the woods, two of the men depositing their guns on the ground, while Mr. Clancy propped his against a tree about 75 feet away.

While the men were eating, Mr. Clancy's dog, which was frolicking about, upset the gun that was leaning against the tree. It was discharged and the charge of shot went into Mr. Clancy's face, and it is feared destroyed the sight of one of his eyes.

He was taken by his companions to a doctor, and then sent to the Marlboro hospital. The doctors will not undertake to predict the outcome of the injury, beyond expressing fear that one eye is destroyed. Clancy is employed as a shoe cutter here.

THE PRESIDENT

Compliments Work of Regular Army

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 18.—President Taft's travels brought him to the far-south yesterday. After 21 hours of continuous journeying from El Paso, he arrived in San Antonio at 7:30 o'clock last night, and, despite the fact that it was Sunday, he received a cheering welcome.

A big crowd was gathered at the station and the streets leading to St. Anthony hotel were lined with people. After he was received by city officials, the president was driven to the hotel with an escort of cavalry.

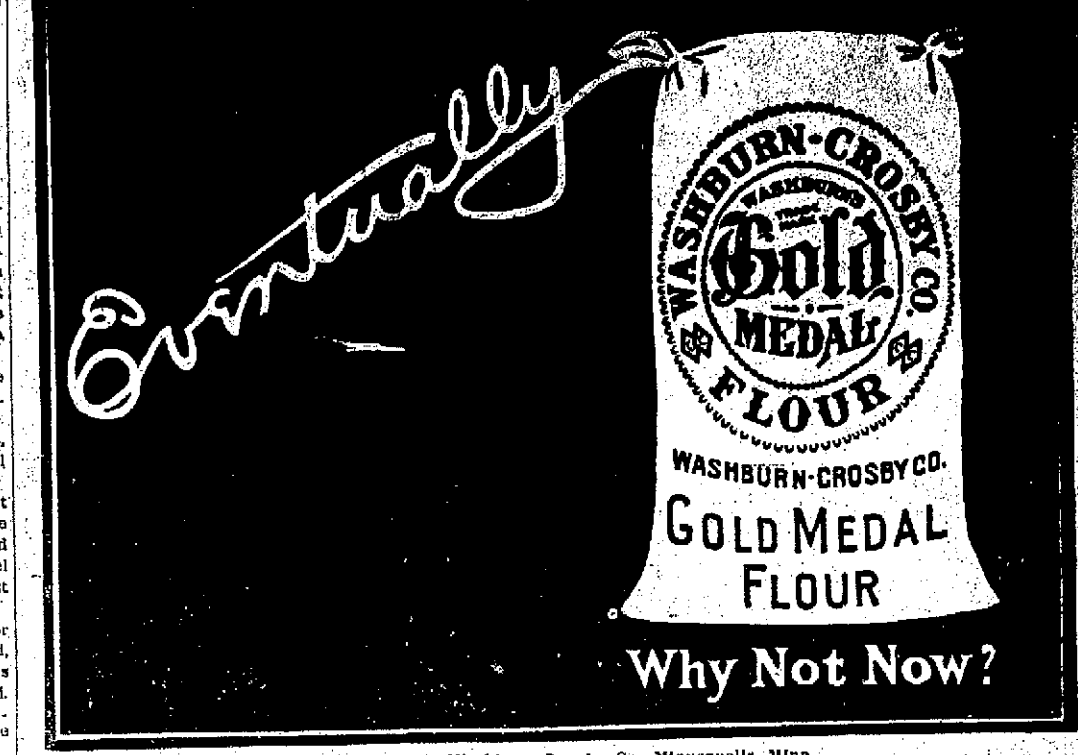

Later in the evening the president went to Fort Sam Houston, where he assisted in the dedication and accepted on behalf of the government a chapel erected at the famous old army post by the citizens of San Antonio.

He will leave this afternoon for Gregory, Texas, near Corpus Christi, to spend four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. The latter passed through San Antonio Saturday to prepare a welcome for the president.

The president's train yesterday passed through the thinly settled western part of Texas and made a few stops. At Del Rio, Sanderson and one or two places the president made brief speeches to station throngs which were made up in part of Mexicans, residents of the community and farmers who had driven many miles in their best Sunday clothes.

The sage brush and cactus gave way as the day advanced to mesquite bushes and finally to the pasture lands and cotton fields for which the state is famous. In some of the fields the decoy simple was breaking in white puffs from the bolls.

specials running into San Antonio 10 minutes apart yesterday. Most of the trains were filled with troops returning to Fort Sam Houston from duty at the meeting of Presidents Taft and Diaz church with her sister.

The president accepted and dedicated the chapel at Fort Sam Houston last night in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army. In doing so he preached his fourth sermon of the trip. Among those who participated in the ceremonies were Bishop Johnson of the Episcopal church, Bishop Forest of the Catholic church, Rabbi Samuel Marks and Rev. J. B. Cleaver, president of the Ministers' association at San Antonio.

The president took this as a further indication of the view he has repeated several times, that the churches of the country are growing closer together on the ground of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. The president also paid his compliments to the work of the regular army.

- 14 A thorough investigation of the finances of the state government.
- 15 Home rule for the cities of the Commonwealth.
- 16 The establishment of agricultural schools throughout the Commonwealth.

The democratic party is unalterably opposed to special privileges. It harbors no hostility to wealth, but demands equal opportunities for all; for the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and the consumer, freedom from unjust discrimination and the oppression of monopolies; for the working man, wages, conditions and hours of labor, and prices for the necessities of life, consistent with the development of facilities, the preservation of health, the maintenance and education of children, and the attainment of American ideals in citizenship.

The republican organization has placed itself in open antagonism to the most progressive elements of its own party. The democratic party thus becomes, by force of circumstances, the only means of expression of popular reform and of the enlightened sentiment of the people. Where there is identity of purpose there should be community of action; and all good citizens should regard it as their patriotic duty to subordinate party regularly to the public good.

COOK AND HIS CRITICS.

It seems that there were a great many people who did not see Dr. Cook reach the summit of Mt. McKinley. It remains for the doctor to find somebody besides himself who did see him. Otherwise the people who didn't see him will carry the day.

NEW BEAM HOUSE PROPOSITION.

Any attempt of the American Hide and Leather company to locate a beam house on Perry street will arouse more stubborn opposition than was shown to the Howe street plant. To locate such an industry there, would not only injure property in the vicinity but would drive out the Rogers Hall school and leave Fort Hill park deserted. We do not believe the board of health would permit such a state of affairs.

EXTEND THE SMOOTH PAVING OUTWARD.

When the Merrimack street paving job will have been finished that street will be an ideal thoroughfare. It will then be the duty of our city government to see that this form of paving is extended outward and to all streets whereon there is heavy traffic. By this means we should have in due time a majority of our streets not only smooth and clean but paved in a way that will last for a great many years.

CHAUFFEUR GOES TO PRISON.

Twelve months to prison for the involuntary manslaughter of a pedestrian is the sentence of a reckless chauffeur at Stamford, Conn. That will help to make others cautious; but as we have remarked before there will never be security from such accidents on the highways until the automobilists are made responsible for all accidents in which they appear, whether they are to blame or not.

BOX OF DYNAMITE FOR BAGGAGE.

The man who is found traveling with a box of dynamite as baggage should be punished as if he had attempted to wreck a train. As it was, the man found so equipped at the North station in Boston put the lives of between five hundred and six hundred passengers in jeopardy. The box containing a number of sticks of dynamite, a quantity of powder and other explosives broke open when banged among trunks and baggage of various kinds. It was really surprising that the dynamite did not explode, and there was enough of it to blow up the entire train. The owner was bound for Italy, and there is no telling whether he intended to blow up some building or to assassinate some of the sovereigns of Europe.

THE TIVERTON TRAGEDY.

The Tiverton murder mystery seems to be assuming a more serious aspect. The police authorities are now inclined to believe that two girls were murdered instead of one. The parents of one girl have identified the clothing as that of their daughter, but they have practically decided that the body found is not that of their daughter. They reached this conclusion from the absence of a scar that marked the left hand of their daughter and does not appear on the hand of the body found. Should this prove to be the case the tragedy is much more serious than at first supposed. The mystery probably will remain unsolved until the woman's head shall have been found. That will at least help to clear up the mystery so far as one woman is concerned.

THE CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

In the campaign now progressing Eugene N. Foss is presenting strong arguments, showing the need of reciprocity with Canada and exposing the defects in the tariff bill recently passed.

He emphasizes the necessity of more freedom in our intercourse with Canada for the exchange of products and particularly to secure the advantage of Canadian lumber which could be had at such a moderate price if the tariff were removed. Mr. Foss shows that many important items in the necessities of life could be had more cheaply if we were free to purchase them from Canada or if Canada were allowed to compete in the American market.

Mr. Vahey is exposing in a forcible manner the extravagance of the republican administration in this state while at the same time showing that republican legislation at the state house is dominated by the lobby which the democratic party would abolish.

The underground work of Senator Lodge as supreme boss of the party in Massachusetts is also being exposed and many measures introduced in the legislature as necessary for the public welfare have been defeated through the influence of Senator Lodge on the ground that they would injure the republican party.

With the assistance of the labor unions of the state it seems that Messrs. Vahey and Foss should be able to overcome the republican majority. If the voters of this state were alive to their own interests they would elect the democratic ticket as a protest against the action of the republican party in breaking its pledges on the tariff, against the general policy of extravagance and against one domination of the legislature by Senator Lodge. The campaign now in progress is one of education in which the voters are being enlightened on how to protect their own interests. The election is, will get out of the rut and vote for a change in the administration.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

An interesting incident was incidentally thrown up by the methods of some titled fortune hunters in the recent announcement that two royal princes were about to set sail to lay their titles at the feet of George J. Gould's daughter.

Such expeditions in many cases, is that commercial "outfit" supplies the fortune hunter with an assortment of clothes and haberdashery on the basis of double the regular trade prices when the heiress is "landed." This form of industrial speculation must be very prevalent, for it is heralded as a radical departure from the usual thing that Prince Romanoff, one of the two modern Jansons who are building the golden one to be fleeced, actually paid $20,000, in cash for his "outfit." This statement created considerable of a sensation in interested quarters. All the leading makers of shirts, clothes, jewelry, hats, shoes, etc., were summoned to meet the prince at the Hotel Majestic, Paris hotel, and there they were given orders to make him a sartorial paragon whose suit or suits it would be hard to resist. Thus accoutred, he is now, the report goes, about to move on the son of the erstwhile wizard of Wall street and ask the hand of his daughter in marriage. George J. Gould has upheld most worthily the honor of the family, and has gained the respect of his fellow countrymen generally by his simple and unostentatious Americanism, says the Kansas City Journal.

He has had potent warnings in the domestic history of his house, both foreign and at home, but his own immediate family has been unimpaired thus far. It is his own business and that of the prospective bride whether the record shall stand, but it is generally hoped that he will kick the prince over the transom. In any event, none of the expeditions against American fortunes has been fitted out with quite the frank commercialism displayed by the suitors for the hand of the latest nominee for princely rank.

One of the prisoners at the prison at Telmsfors, Finland, has just been caught with a telephone in his cell. He connected it with some wires that passed his window in some unknown manner and had made all sorts of trouble for the prison authorities by calling them up at odd hours and sending them on wild goose chases.

Harry F. Lincoln, formerly of Denysville, Me., and a graduate of the University of Maine in the class of 1888, has the distinction of being superintendent of the $6,000,000 pulp manufacturing plant that has been established at Grand Falls, Newfoundland. In this connection the Bangor Commercial remarks that "all over this and other countries the University of Maine men are doing work that reflects most creditably upon the high standing of the institution at Orono, which from small beginnings now ranks in results achieved with any similar institution in the United States."

Miss Helen Gould has given $150,000 to the American College for Girls.

Why can't you eat as you used to? Simply because your liver doesn't do its work properly. Its business is to take bile out of the blood, which acts as Nature's cathartic, but your liver is sluggish and the bile accumulates too fast, and you feel worn out, tired and lifeless, and each succeeding day brings no relief. AUTO ACCIDENT

One Woman Killed and Another Injured

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Bruce Price, a resident of Tuxedo park and widow of a New York architect, was killed, and Mrs. Chas. J. Coulter's arm was broken and she was otherwise injured in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon on the road from Tuxedo to Arden. Mrs. Coulter's 12-year-old son, who was in the machine, and the chauffeur, were unhurt.

The car, owned by Mrs. Coulter, was going north on the main road on the Harriman estate, near Arden station, when the chauffeur pulled out the one side to pass a car ahead. The machine skidded into the brush on the side of the road throwing Mrs. Price against a tree, killing her almost instantly.

CONFERENCE SERMON FOUND DYING IN STREET

Preached by Rev. S. R. Chubb
at P. M. Church

The conference sermon of the sixth quadrennial conference of the Primitive Methodist church of America, was preached at the Primitive Methodist church in Gorham street, Sunday morning.

The preacher was Rev. S. R. Chubb of Keyauakee, Ill., a delegate to the conference, and he found his inspiration in the Second Chronicles, third chapter and sixth verse: "And he garnished the house with precious stones for beauty: and the gold was gold of Parvaim." In part he said: "The man who builds worthy things has his own self respect. Wherever or in whatever circumstances we live or die, God grant that we have our own self respect. I would rather go down into my grave respecting myself than have a monument a mile high erected through the love and respect of others."

"We hear a good deal about the self-made man. There is no such thing as the self-made man. If I should see one I shouldn't want to look at him twice. We inherit. We are instructed. We learn this or that from another. God is the greatest architect in the world, and he instructed Solomon how to build the temple. God lays the foundations and his handiwork is used by man. In the magnificent garden of the gods the great spirit and piles are God's work."

HON. WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

W. I. Buchanan Probably a Victim of Apoplexy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Wm. I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., American minister to the Argentine Republic and Panama, who has been closely identified with several important American diplomatic missions, was found lying on a sidewalk in Park lane, near the American embassy, in a dying condition a few minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night, was carried to St. George's hospital, a short distance away, but life was extinct when the ambulance reached the hospital.

The cause of death is not known, but it is supposed that it resulted from heart disease or apoplexy. There were no marks of violence on the body nor had robbery been committed.

The identity of the dead man was discovered yesterday afternoon through inquiries sent out by the management of the hotel where Mr. Buchanan was staying.

On Venezuelan Mission

Mr. Buchanan, who had come to London on a mission for the U. S. government in connection with the Venezuelan claims, had been here several weeks. He previously had visited Berlin and Paris. He took up quarters at Claridge's hotel, one of the most fashionable in the city, which is about half a mile from Park lane. He left the hotel Saturday night for dinner early in the evening, attired in evening dress. No one has yet been found who knows where he spent the evening, but it is supposed that he was walking home when stricken.

Park lane, is a particularly quiet street on Saturday nights when most of the residents are out of town. A passerby found the diplomat lying on the sidewalk. A policeman was summoned, and he quickly called an ambulance, but it was too late for medical aid.

American Embassy Identifies

The name "W. I. Buchanan" was found on the clothing which was recognized to be of American make and his initials were engraved on the jewelry. There was no other means of identification. The police means of these particulars and the manager of the hotel and officials from the American embassy called at the hospital and identified the body.

The American embassy and the coroner took charge of Mr. Buchanan's effects at the hotel, which are supposed to include papers of great value. It is customary in such cases in England to perform an autopsy, but the American embassy has requested that this be waived.

The hotel management says that Mr. Buchanan usually dined out, frequently returning at midnight or later. His failure to return was not noticed until yesterday morning.

In heaven who would wish for a little old log hut. They had better take their logs up with them. God has built a better and more beautiful than man can conceive. Shall it be a reproach then that these people here have erected a church to the worship of God as beautiful as this in which we meet? The hearts of the people who worked for it and saw that it was built and beautified, worked for God and with God."

There was a conference prayer meeting at a o'clock led by Rev. W. H. Holder of Westmorland City, Pa., and Rev. W. H. Shaw of New Bedford. The morning service began at 10:30. Conference communion was conducted at 9:30 by the delegates. Rev. H. G. Russell of Wilkesbarre, Pa., presided at the public service. Rev. James Foley of Pittsburg, Pa., offered the prayer and the others occupying seats on the pulpit platform were Rev. Elijah Humphries of Fall River, Hon. Robert Dudley of Irwin, Pa., and Rev. N. W. Matthews of Lowell. A chorus choir sang the magnificent "Gloria in Excelsis" by Mozart, and Mrs. J. W. Willman sang a solo. A baptism was a feature of the service.

A CHEMIST'S DISCOVERY

A New Drug for All Forms of Eczema and Other Skin Troubles

The most remarkable feature about Cadum, the new remedy for skin diseases, is that its beneficial action is seen in every case where it is applied. So far not a single instance has been found where it failed to stop the terrible itching of eczema at once. People who have been afflicted with eczema for years, and have tried everything they heard of without being relieved, should take fresh courage for this new remedy. Cadum is altogether different from all other so-called skin cures. It is the discovery of a chemist, who felt for years that the world needed a cure for eczema and other skin diseases, and as a result of his studies and experiments Cadum was the outcome. It is reassuring to be told that this new preparation, while possessing such remarkable powers in overcoming all forms of skin troubles, contains no dangerous ingredients. When applied over unsightly sores on the face and hands it forms a thin, almost invisible coating, so that the disease is covered up while the healing process is going on. The 10c size is intended for trial purposes by those who wish to test its wonderful virtues. It contains a sufficient quantity of the new remedy to treat minor skin troubles, such as tetter, rash, pimples, eruptions, itch, ringworm, scaly skin, acne, herpes, psoriasis, etc. It should always be borne in mind that Cadum is an entirely new remedy. Nothing like it was ever before offered to the public. Cadum has so thoroughly demonstrated that eczema is now a curable disease that there is no excuse whatever for any man, woman or child suffering from it. The discovery of this new remedy is surely one of the great achievements of the century. Cadum is sold by druggists at 10c and 25c a box.

Town Treasurer's Office Placed Under Police Guard

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 16.—Confronted with two notes for $25,000 each, one held by a Boston savings bank and the other by a trust company, both of which are purported to have been drawn by John B. Lombard, town treasurer, and purporting also to be approved and countersigned by William H. Walsh, chairman, and Frank B. Stockwell, a second member of the board of selectmen of last year, issued on October 29, 1933, and maturing last Friday, the present board of selectmen, William H. Walsh, Roger H. O'Brien and Herbert W. Damon, held a long session in the town officers' rooms Saturday night, after which a policeman was ordered to guard the town treasurer's office to guard the books, papers and other documents of the town.

In addition the town officials have been informed that a Boston national bank also holds a like note for $25,000, making a total of $75,000 worth of alleged unauthorized paper outstanding.

The neighborhood of the Lombard home, corner of Clinton and Freeman streets, has been patrolled by a policeman, while Mr. Lombard has been in a physical and mental collapse, according to his physician, since Sept. 20.

On a certificate signed by Dr. Lewis M. Palmer, Mr. Lombard's physician, certifying that Mr. Lombard was unable either physically or mentally to discharge the duties of town treasurer further, the selectmen before adjourning, voted to appoint temporarily Arthur M. Pitts town treasurer, and he has accepted and will enter upon the duties today.

HYLAN IS WINNER

Lowell Boy Carried Off the Honors at Golf

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—John B. Hylan, the young Vesper Country club golfer, came through the final match yesterday for the Country club cup in sensational golf. He defeated P. W. Whittemore, the crack Country club player, by 1 up, after having eliminated Walter J. Travis of Garden City in the semi-finals by 2 up. Both defeated golfers were favorites over the young finalist, and to have disposed of two such players not only recorded the most surprising chapter in Clyde Park Open amateur tournaments, but was glory enough for any American amateur in one day.

Travis went into the semi-finals with the halo of a glorious past, and three times has Whittemore won Country Club cups in such events. Hylan never before has occupied any such prominent position in Country Club meetings. That Hylan was a player of splendid possibilities every one admitted, but in the same breath his most conservative critic would add that his command of his strokes was anything but precise.

A large gallery was on hand to watch the final. Hylan was at least 20 yards away on the drive to the first hole, Whittemore having got a perfect tee shot for distance and being straight for the pin. The Country Club player made a dismal failure of his second for distance, having topped, and took three to the green. Hylan was at the right of the green in two and 10 feet from the cup in three. He needed the putt to win the hole, and he got it down. Hylan might have won the second, for the same thing happened to Whittemore's second going to that hole, but ordinary approaching gave him a half in five. Hylan took the third hole, Whittemore having flubbed his second, and the fourth was squared in bogey fours.

Hylan was on the fifth green in two, Whittemore in three, and the Vesper player got a four for the hole, winning it. At the sixth Hylan had a perfect three, one under bogey, and won the hole. The short seventh Hylan was on the green on his tee shot, about 25 feet from the cup. It was a most difficult putt to get down, but the ball went straight for the cup, and the win of the hole gave the Vesper player a lead of 5 up and a medal of one under four for seven holes.

They halved the eighth in 55, and poor putting cost Hylan the long ninth, the first hole thus far in the match won by Whittemore. With a 5 for his hole, Hylan was out in 38. At the 10th Whittemore was lucky to get a half in 4 after his tee shot failed to reach the green. Hylan was on from the tee and looked a sure winner, but three putts was the best he could do. Hylan put his drive out of bounds going to the 11th, and his second was sliced so badly that he was barely out of the woods in 3. He took 4 to the green and Whittemore, who played his tee shot as long and as straight as a die, was on in 2, whereupon Hylan gave up the hole. Hylan was in trouble at the 12th, having over-approached and took 6 to Whittemore's 5 and the win of the

By playing a tie game with the Boston Latin eleven Saturday afternoon at Spaulding park the Lowell High school football team showed that hereafter it has got to be classed in the same category as are the crack school teams in Greater Boston. That the game ended with a score of 5 to 5 demonstrated the fact that the local team has shown wonderful improvement and those who thought that they would get trounced Saturday are now willing to acknowledge that there is splendid timber in the lineup and that under the careful direction of the coaches the team should give an excellent account of itself before the close of the season.

The work of the Lowell team on the offense and defense, came as a surprise to the followers of the game, and the visitors, who thought that they were going to have an easy time in capturing the game, showed their discomfiture and surprise before the game had progressed many minutes.

The game started with Lowell kicking to Boston, but the latter failed to make the required ten yards and had to resort to a punt. Lowell then with the ball worked down towards Boston's goal. Forced to punt, Lowell lost the ball to the visitors. By means of a side kick and forward passes, the Latin school men at last obtained possession of the ball on Lowell's 25 yard line.

Logan, the Boston quarterback, then threw a forward pass. McMahon, the high end, instead of blocking the Boston man and allowing the ball to fall to the ground, tried to catch the loach, and just touched it. The ball fell into the arms of Gorman, who hastened across the line for the first score of the game. Pendegast failed to kick the goal, and the half ended soon after.

When Lowell came onto the field in the second half it secured possession of the ball. Gargan carried the ball nearly the length of the field, but lost it when near the Latin goal line. A kick sent it out of danger, and again Lowell started her second march down the field.

With good team work and line plunges by Gargan, Cannery and Donovan the ball was carried to Boston's five yard line. Here the visitors put up a strenuous battle and on the first down but one yard was gained. The ball was pushed two yards nearer the goal on the next down. On this down there was an awful scrimmage. Gargan was on top of the ball, while 21 players were doing their best to keep on top of Gargan.

When the referee pulled the players off, the ball was resting on the right side of the goal line and Lowell had scored a touchdown and tied the score. Rooney missed the kick for the goal.

THE PRESIDENT

Says We Cannot Afford to Reduce Army

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 16.—President Taft last night dedicated a new chapel at Fort Sam Houston. Speaking of the army and religion, he said:

"I would desire to say that an exceptional circumstance has contributed toward the erection of the army post here and one that speaks wonders to the people of San Antonio and for the army of the United States stationed in this beautiful city. It has not always been so at every post as it is here where you love the army and where the army loves you."

At this point the chair in which Mayor Callaghan was seated broke with a crash, the mayor narrowly missing a fall to the floor. Turning quickly when he heard the noise and seeing the cause, President Taft smiled and remarked:

"I am delighted, my friends, that I am standing at this time."

"Under our constitution we do not unite the church and the state. Some say this is a coldness on the part of our government toward religion. You know and I know that such is not the condition. The government encourages morality and religion in every department of its people."

"To house, clothe and discipline from 100,000 to 150,000 men is a great task, and certain restrictions must be thrown around them. In order that the men may have the opportunity to worship God, the government employs chaplains at salaries paid by the government."

"The army has not received the praise it deserves. Sometimes certain people at Washington think what you call a fall out of the army."

"The supporters of the army do not come quick enough or often enough to the defense of the attacks. They do not defend that army of devoted men as they should."

"I do not think we can afford to reduce the army at all. Some statesmen see a threat when the talk is made to increase the army. I will leave it to the people of San Antonio to say if they fear that the free institutions of our country are endangered by an efficient army of 100,000."

THE NEW PASTOR

Preached First Sermon at Paige St. Chuse

Large congregations gathered at the Paige Street Free Baptist church Sunday morning and evening to listen to the sermonizing of the new pastor, Rev. B. B. Harris. In the evening he spoke from the fifth chapter of Kings II, telling the story of Naaman, who was cleansed of leprosy by Elisha the prophet. He said that Naaman was in a high position and had been rewarded by his king again and again for victories, but he was a leper, and accordingly his attainments were valueless. He had to face the fact that he had the terrible disease, leprosy.

Accordingly in every day life it is possible to say that a man is a good fellow—but he is a sinner unless he has confessed Christ and been baptized into the faith. Mr. Harris said that he did not believe in secret Christianity, and that there could not be any secret Christian, for to be a Christian the act must be avowed.

Catholic Societies of Mrs. Robinson Author of Lawrence Parade Children's Stories

LAWRENCE, Oct. 16.—The observance of the 50th anniversary of the coming of the sisters of Notre Dame to this city began yesterday, when a mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in St. Mary's church in the morning and a parade of Catholic societies held in the afternoon, followed by religious services.

There were about 3000 in line in the parade, which was made up of three divisions. Rev. James T. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Mary's church, under whose direction, assisted by the officers of St. Mary's school alumni association, the celebration was arranged, was chief marshal.

As the procession passed St. Mary's church selections were played on the chimes. From the convent the paraders were reviewed by the sisters. A number of business houses, St. Mary's parochial residence, the convent, St. Mary's school buildings and Hibernian hall were decorated in honor of the occasion.

Rev. Fr. O'Reilly, O. S. A., was celebrant of the mass, which was attended by the sisters and members of the religious communities. He was assisted by Rev. Daniel J. Kelleher, pastor of St. Peter's church, Lowell, as deacon and Rev. Eugene Dorgan, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. Rev. John A. Whelan, O. S. A., was master of ceremonies. The sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas J. Gannon, S. J., president of Boston college. He spoke of the efficient work of the sisters and commented upon the foresight of Rev. Fr. O'Donnell, through whose efforts the first group was sent to this city, in appreciating the possibilities of the growing community as a parochial school.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man and Woman Were Found Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Surrounded by broken furniture and smashed crockery that the couple evidently had thrown at each other while a quarrel was in progress, the bodies of Mrs. Maurice Harpham, 42 years, and her husband, aged 44, were found by the police yesterday morning in their home, 2447 North Hutchinson street.

In the right hand of the woman was a revolver. Two bullet wounds were in the man's chest, and lying beside him, shot through the head, was the wife. The police believe that the woman killed her husband and then turned the weapon on herself. Harpham was a son of Police Sergeant Harpham.

Neighbors say a fearful struggle took place. Several times men aroused by the sounds of breaking glass and the smashing of a chair went to the front door of the Harpham home and rang the bell. No attention was paid to the summons, but each time the interruption came the couple quieted down to renew their fight later.

It was not so cold at the army aviation field this morning and the aviators displayed more enthusiasm than they had during the past few days.

NICHOLAS A. COVARRUBIAS.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE NEW SAN FRANCISCO.

VIRGILIA BOGUE.

It is a year of pageants. The next United States event in this line is the Portola festival. It opens in San Francisco Tuesday, Oct. 19, and closes on the Saturday following. It is to commemorate the discovery of San Francisco harbor by Don Gaspar de Portola, the first Spanish governor of California, in 1769, and the rebuilding of San Francisco three years after it was made desolate by earthquake and incidental calamities.

President Taft will be there. England, Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Mexico, China and Japan will be represented. An American fleet of cruisers, torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers and monitors, and cruisers from China and Japan, on which will be princes of those empires, bearing messages of good will and peace from their sovereigns to the people of the United States, and San Francisco in particular, will maneuver and anchor in the bay as the occasion calls for. They will be welcomed by the great guns that guard the Golden Gate. The pageantry in the city will be accentuated by the appearance of picked divisions and squadrons of United States Infantry and cavalry.

The initial number of the series of events will occur on the opening day, when President Taft will propose a toast to San Francisco. Following that, other toasts will be given by the representatives of the crowns of Europe and President Diaz of Mexico. By a clever contrivance of telegraphy the school children of the United States will tender a salute to San Francisco. When the festival proper will be declared open.

The first vista of pageantry will be the entrance into the city of Don Gaspar de Portola, as king, and his queen. The king will be impersonated by Nicholas Covarrubias of Santa Maria, Cal., and the queen by Miss Virgilia Bogue, daughter of Virgil Bogue, chief engineer and vice president of the Western Pacific. Miss Bogue is one of the beauties of the Pacific slope. She will be accompanied by a number of young women of San Francisco, who will be arrayed in befitting manner. These maids of honor have been selected from the wealthy families of the west on account of their social standing and acknowledged comeliness and grace.

The king and queen attendants will be escorted by the Portola dragoons. The organization comprises representative young business men of the city. They will be uniformed in the correct costumes of the period at the time Portola first saw the bay. Each dragoon will have for his mount a fine specimen of black horse drawn from the United States cavalry service. This escort will consist of a hundred, each six feet in his boots, and will carry glittering Damascus blades. The trappings will be unique and carry the spectator back to the days of knightlyhood.

The escort will also be the bodyguard of President Taft while he is in the city. In the days of old the monarchs chose for their personal guard the handsomest and most loyal members of the nobility. The idea will be carried out by the king of the Portola festival. For a week at least the dragoons will be princes of the blood.

Following closely upon the heels of this cavalcade will be the flower of the army and navy, of the California military divisions and the jacksies of all the foreign navies represented. Uniformed branches of all the civic societies of the state, including the crack drill teams of each, will have their place in the line. All these will welcome Portola to the city. Other parades will occur during the week, and they will illustrate the civic, industrial, state and international phases of life. Every city and town in California will be represented in some, if not all, of these parades.

Decorations and Color Scheme.

Nearly all the buildings of San Francisco are fresh from the hands of the artisan, and this fact will enhance the beauty of the decorations which have been put in place by the generosity of the men of the city who within three years have transformed the western metropolis of the continent from smoldering ruins into a city of marble and splendor. Descriptions of these decorations warrant the statement that they will be entirely different from anything of the kind ever attempted by any composite of wealth and pride.

The night spectacle of the festival promises to surpass all other attempts in that line. The topography of the city, the formations of the bay and its picturesque contour lend to any plan of magnificence undertaken by man. More money will be expended on the night spectacle than on any other for this reason.

A striking feature of the Portola festival will consist of a color scheme to be observed by the citizens. Every man, woman and child of the rebuilt city will wear a decoration of the rebuilt city may be identified with the affair and thus invite visitors to apply to them for any information concerning the festival or the history of the city. In order to perfect this plan a school of instruction was opened by the city for its inhabitants wherein they learned the story of the discovery by the first Spanish governor of California and the losses entailed by the last earthquake and the rebuilding of the city.

Spanish dress and mannerisms figured in the early history of San Francisco, and it has been suggested that as far as possible there shall be some reproduction of the customs and habits of the early settlers. The dress of Spanish women was particularly picturesque in the olden times, and the women of San Francisco will contribute as much as possible to a reproduction of the Spanish atmosphere. This will bring in the sombrero, the jaunty mantilla, the corbato and any other touch of Spanish days that will add to the spirit of the occasion which the festival will represent. Such a scheme will make the theater particularly impressive and add to the gaiety of the streets.

In order that foreigners who are not able to be present during the festival may have some conception of the extent of the affair illuminated posters giving details of the event have been sent broadcast over the world. Some of these have been duly forwarded to all potentates, and one was sent to President Roosevelt. The posters are twenty-seven inches long and if placed end to end would form a ribbon twenty-one inches wide that would, if one were placed every quarter of a mile, encircle the globe.

Athletics, Aeroplanes and Motorcars.

While the festival will represent these touches of days that are gone, it will embrace all the modern phases in the line of athletics and games of every description. Champions of these games will be present from every quarter. There will be sport for every lover of sports, from the regatta to the foot race, and boxing and wrestling matches will occur at stated times, at which "classy talent" will appear. Of course the automobile will figure in a telling event, for every model known will be represented both for exhibition and for speed.

Finally, visitors will have an opportunity of witnessing aeroplane flights.

To this end all of the noted aviators of the world have received special invitations to be present, and some have signified their intention of being at the festival for the purpose of exhibiting the various types of flying machines.

In order that the score of the event might be correctly understood abroad Charles C. Moore, formerly president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, visited other countries, armed with credentials from the state department at Washington. Not only was he cordially received, but wherever he explained the object of his visit he received assurances that all the countries that heard him would be represented in some capacity in the unique spectacle.

The Rehabilitated City by the Sea.

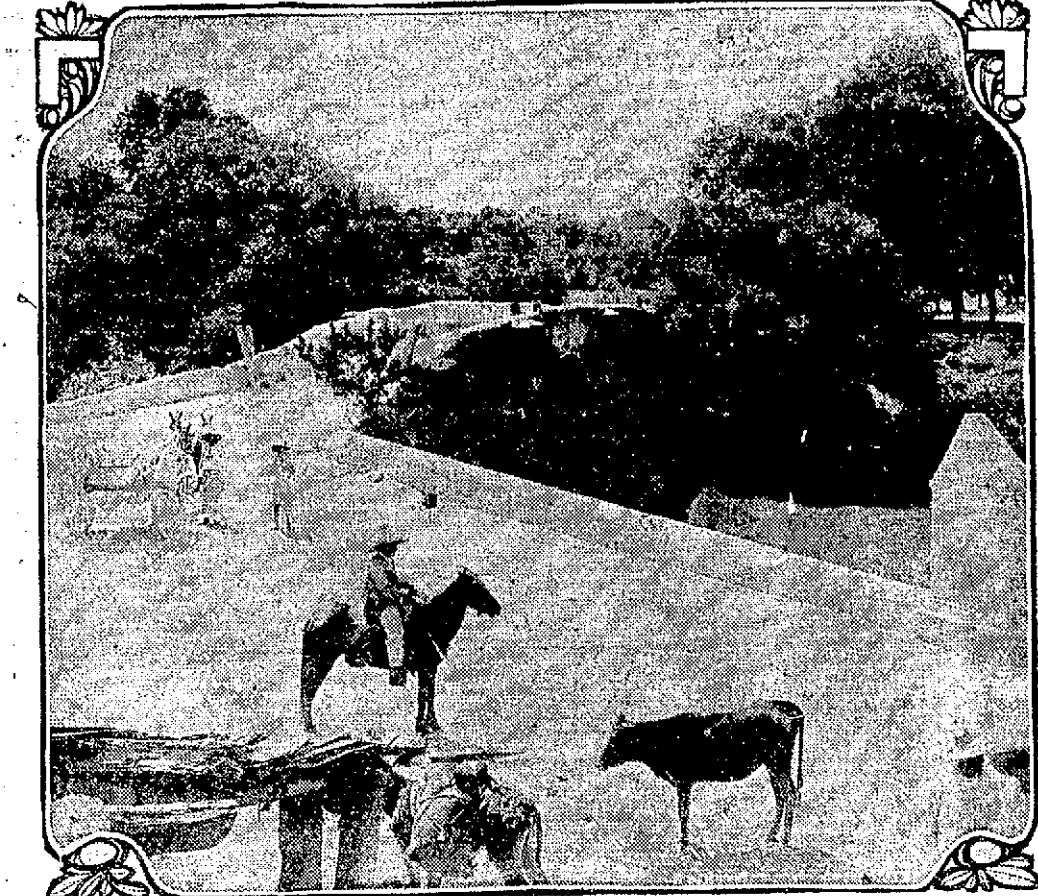

Fortunately there is little in the San Francisco of today to suggest to the visitor the devastation that befell it in the spring of 1906, but it is not out of place to recapitulate briefly the extent of that disaster and that which has grown up in its path in the last three years.

Three thousand acres of the business center of the city was a smoldering ruin after the awful earthquake grasp. It ruined its commerce and left desolate thousands of its inhabitants. Twenty-eight thousand buildings were laid level or thrown one upon the other in twisted heaps, the loss being reckoned at $300,000,000. There were no churches, no schools, no public buildings. The courts met in private residences that were outside of the belt of ruin, and ministers stood up in what- ever vacant places they could find, knees deep in the ashes and dust of the squares and parks. Most of the money was in vaults that were heaped over with hot earth and debris, so that it was useless. There was no merchandise, and there were no buildings in which to place it if there had been. As is always the case in such conditions, ghoulies in human shape pilaged and plundered day and night. People accustomed to plenty nearly starved, and women and children as well as men shivered from cold because of lack of clothes.

But there was one thing which the calamity did not touch—the indomitable spirit of the people. All sorts and conditions stood shoulder to shoulder in the work of making streets and erecting temporary shelters, and establishing and maintaining order. The work went on every hour. This is literally true, for torches and the few electric lights that could be arranged lightened the darkness so that the work of the day went on without interruption.

In forty months the earthquake was a recollection. The city emerged from the downfall and took its place as the metropolis of the western continent. The building permits show that structures have been erected costing more than $50,000,000 in excess of the total value of the buildings destroyed.

TAFT AND DIAZ IN TEXAS AND MEXICO

Military and Civic Jubilee and Banquet to Mark the Meeting of the Two Presidents in El Paso and Juarez.

His only international incident. In the 13,000 mile journey of President Taft will occur Saturday, Oct. 16, when the president of the United States and President Diaz of Mexico will exchange courtesies in El Paso, Tex., and in Ciudad Juarez, across the Rio Grande from Texas.

This is the program: President Diaz will meet President Taft in front of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce and extend the good wishes of Mexico. President Taft will return the call in Juarez. This will be followed by an automobile tour of the Mexican city and its places of interest by the two chief executives and invited guests. President Taft will return to El Paso shortly after noon and review the military, civic, fraternal organization and school parades. Immediately after

United States troops will be drawn up in line. The gorgeously arrayed and famous military band from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., will be there, mounted on iron gray horses that have been so trained that they wear no bridles. The bands of the Ninth and Nineteenth regiments of Infantry will play their part. The army will be represented by the Third cavalry, the Ninth Infantry and three batteries from Fort Sam Houston, augmented by the first battalion of the Nineteenth Infantry under command of Colonel J. F. Houston. All will be under the command of General Albert A. Myer of the department of Texas.

Mexico will be represented by a regiment of cavalry, a regiment of Infantry, three batteries and three bands, including the band of President Diaz and the bodyguard of the Mexican president. After the formal greetings between the presidents the military and civic societies will accompany them through the streets of El Paso to the International bridge spanning the Rio Grande. At the Texas end of the bridge the United States escort will halt. The two executives will cross the bridge without any escort except the mayor of El Paso and the mayor of Juarez. On the Mexican side the Mexican troops will be in line and precede the presidents to the federal building, where the president of the United States will become the guest of the president of Mexico.

HARRY WHITNEY, GENTLEMAN SPORT

Sudden Publicity of a Hitherto Unknown Young Man Caused by the North Pole Controversy Between Peary and Cook

WHEN Harry Whitney sailed from New Bedford for Peary on the Roosevelt July 9, 1908, to hunt polar bears and any other game in which he might become interested he did not foresee that he would become a factor in the story of the dash for the north pole. Had he done so he would have saved a whole lot of people considerable trouble, for in that case he would have left some records about himself that would be interesting reading matter just now.

But Harry Whitney at the time of his departure never thought he would be "wanted" as a writeup. He was what thousands of other young men of rich families are. He was out for a good time in the line of sport—a "good fellow" in a certain set, with enough wanderlust in his nature to send him scurrying hither and yon by land and sea, with no definite goal on his gridiron of expectation.

For awhile after Peary had sailed Whitney was lost to the world. As soon as Dr. Cook returned he put Whitney on the map; then Peary, back from his discovery, put northern lights about the young man from New Haven, Conn. The discussion as to who found the pole first was temporarily hung up to await the coming of Harry Whitney from his bear hunt. "Wait for Whitney" was passed along the wires and through the air. Well, Whitney is back from the chase, and what he has said has not settled the controversy.

Ranchman and Sport.

The Whitney family record containing the birth of the young man who has been thrust into the light of publicity has not been opened to the public. It is known, however, that he is the elder of the two sons of Stephen Whitney of New Haven, Conn. He is still a young man. His brother was graduated from Yale only last June. The statement has been made that Harry Whitney received considerable property from the late Bradish Johnson, his grandfather, a rich man of New York city. Harry is not college bred. When he left high school he went at once to learn the copper manufacturing business. After three years at this in Ansonia, Conn., he quit and sailed from New York city for Australia and engaged in riding sheep. He was not successful in this venture. He returned to this country and bought a ranch in Arizona.

He divided his time between the ranch and prospecting, and while engaged in the latter he nearly found his finish. While riding a mustang a winged insect peculiar to that country flew into his ear. He was unable to remove it. He was a hundred miles from the nearest town, but he put spurs to his mount and reached Tucson. When he arrived he was raving mad. Fortunately for him, he wore the insignia of the Elks, and members of while waiting there for the explorer he superintended the building of two power boats of the whaleboat model, and these he presented to Peary on the latter's arrival at New Bedford. The first picture of Whitney that the public saw was the one taken of him while he was standing in one of these boats.

He has the distinction of being the first young American to go to the far north in search of game. He spent the long winter night in that remote land in sledging, and when he returned to civilization he had twenty-one musk oxen and arctic deer to his credit, but the polar bear had kept out of his range.

Harry Whitney inherited his love of sport from his father, who was known in New York city and in New Haven as a "thoroughbred." The elder Whitney was a splendid type of the sport loving gentleman. The family consists of two sons and two daughters. The latter are Mrs. Charles Dickey of New York city and Mrs. William Blodgett of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson. Harry's mother was the daughter of Bradish Johnson of New York city and Long Island, and he was a country gentleman of distinction and wealth. The father and mother of Harry Whitney are dead, but his stepmother is still living.

The young man who has been shoved into notoriety without any effort of his own fills the definition of all round sport. He has the spirit of adventure and has the faculty of recording what he sees and hears in a happy vein, for he loves to write. He has a quiet vein of humor and tells a story well.

RED FLAG RAISED

London Police Drove Back Mob Moving on Spanish Embassy

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The red flag was raised in London yesterday afternoon, and a large mob moved upon the Spanish embassy to make a demonstration of its disapproval of the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the convicted revolutionist, at Barcelona, a few days ago.

Several bodies of police were stationed at the approaches to the embassy and they drove off the crowd. But considerable excitement and uneasiness pervaded the neighborhood.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Williamette, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, Box 229, Williamette, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

See thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and every woman owes it to herself to try it. It is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

KING ALFONSO AND HIS WIFE TO THRONE.

THE POLICE PREVENTED A FERRER MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 18.—Attempts to hold a monster memorial meeting in this city last night to protest against the recent execution in Spain of Ferrer were frustrated by the police. They refused to allow a large hall near the center of the city to be opened, although those in charge of the proposed meeting had paid the rent in advance and held a lease of the property. The speakers and many of their

After J. F. Green, secretary of the "Friends of Russian Freedom," called the meeting to order, he read a letter from the Countess of Warwick, saying:

"No words are too strong to express Europe's horror at the murder of Ferrer."

Several laborite members of parliament delivered strong orations. Victor Grayson of Manchester, the socialist member, declared that if the head of every king of Europe was torn from his body it would not pay half the price of Ferrer's life. He called the Russian emperor "a dirty monster," and said that King Edward, who could have prevented the execution, was responsible for whatever might happen in England as a result of it. He demanded the expulsion of the Spanish ambassador.

Strong resolutions were adopted before the meeting ended. Several thousand persons met in the square, most of them attracted by the same curiosity that would take them to the suffragette demonstrations. The socialist societies, carrying their banners, then marched in good order to the Spanish embassy, singing revolutionary songs and shouting King Alfonso. A great rabble accompanied them, filling the streets.

It was dark when they reached the open square in front of the embassy, and they found that the square was filled with platoons of police. The embassy windows were dark and there was no sign of life there. The police would not let the procession enter the square or even stop. The crowds were turned back and kept moving up Victoria street toward the parliament building, singing, shouting and groaning. The reserves were then brought up, and they drove the mob into the side street dispersing it without serious trouble.

RED FLAGS WERE CARRIED BY MOB IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 18.—A disorderly mob of several thousand, including a majority of the university students and many Spaniards, made a demonstration yesterday afternoon in honor of Francisco Ferrer. They marched in procession through the principal streets of the city, carrying red flags and cheering for an anarchy.

Two outdoor meetings were held, at which violent orations were made by Maj. Gen. Enrique Loynaz Del Castillo, who recently was appointed envoy extraordinary to the South American republics; Jose Pinar, and other extremists. Resolutions were passed to boycott all Spanish goods and to accept the offer of the Stevedores union to refuse to unload Spanish ships until Spain rescinds the order confiscating Ferrer's estate.

The mob attempted to approach the Spanish consulate and the bishop's palace, but was driven back by the police. The line of march was then taken up to the church, which was assailed with showers of stones, on which the police charged the rioters. A sharp fight ensued and several of the police and many of the rioters were hurt. A large number of men were arrested.

The men then started to attack the offices of the Diario de la Marina, but was again driven back by the police and mounted rural guards, the latter using the flats of their machetes. The mob was speedily dispersed and there was no further disorder.

A REVOLUTION IS PREDICTED BY CHIEF OF REPUBLICANS

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Alenandre Lerroux, chief of the republicans at Barcelona, who is now in Paris, in an interview yesterday predicted a revolution in Spain and the establishment of a republic. He considered the execution of Ferrer the outcome of the personal vengeance of King Alfonso, who, he said, always was convinced of Ferrer's complicity in the outrage against the king on his wedding day.

followers who responded to the radical library, but when they started the meeting the police again interfered and compelled them to leave the building.

During the night a meeting was held in a hall in the Italian section of the city. About 500 people heard addresses by Ben Reitzman, editor of the Free Arbiter Stimmer and Voltairine DeClerc. A monograph by Emma Goldman, an appreciation of Ferrer and his work, and a denunciation of those responsible for his death was also read.

CHURCH WINDOWS SMASHED

BRUSSELS, Oct. 18.—Big Ferrer demonstrations were held in the principal cities of Belgium yesterday. At Liege rowdies smashed the windows of churches and religious establishments.

FREE MASONS SAID TO BE DIRECTING ANTI-CLERICAL CAMPAIGN

ROME, Oct. 18.—All indications point to the extremists in Italy being determined on an anti-clerical campaign more vigorous even than that in France. This is being directed by the Free Masons, whose grand master has issued a most violent manifesto in behalf of Ferrer, recently executed, and against the church.

CARICATURE OF KING

GENOA, Oct. 18.—A pro-Ferrer procession, in which many of the marchers carried flags draped with crepe, one of them having a caricature of King Alfonso with the inscription "Alfonso is a Monster," caused a fight with the police yesterday. The police succeeded in capturing the offending flag, but little injury was done on either side. The procession was prevented from approaching the Spanish consulate.

STONED SPANISH FLAG

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 18.—Ten thousand people gathered yesterday in one of the public squares and stoned the Spanish flag and portraits of King Alfonso. Resolutions to carry out a boycott on Spanish products were adopted. Similar meetings were held in many of the towns in the interior.

EXPLORERS' CLUB

To Investigate Ascent of Mt. McKinley

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, by request, appeared yesterday before a special committee of the Explorers' club, of which he is a member. The club is conducting an investigation of his ascent of Mount McKinley. He was accompanied by his lawyer. The committee informed him that no charges had been preferred against him by the club, but that the investigation was undertaken only to put his ascent of Mount McKinley officially on the records and to do this a thorough inquiry was deemed best.

Dr. Cook considered this fair, but explained that he was leaving town last night. He said he would return to the city within 10 days when a date for his appearance before the committee could be fixed. This was agreed upon.

Anthony Miala, who was a member of the committee, took occasion yesterday formally to decline Dr. Cook's invitation to participate in an expedition to recover the records said to have been left on Mount McKinley's summit by Dr. Cook. Miala explained that he was not an experienced mountain climber. Prof. H. C. Parker, of Columbia university, who received a similar request, was also present yesterday. He, too, formally declined the invitation, saying that he was going to try to scale the peak himself next spring with Belmont Browne.

BUNTINGS' BANQUET

Large Gathering at Club House

Saturday Evening

Cricket Prizes Presented and Interesting Address Made by President Henry Robertshaw

The 16th annual banquet of the United States Bunting Cricket Club was held Saturday evening at the club house in South Lowell with an attendance of over 150 members and guests. The feast was held in the hall of the new club house, which is located on a knoll overlooking the bowling green. The Page company catered and the exercises were presided over by Henry Robertshaw, president of the club, who in opening the postprandial exercises made a speech of welcome and introduced as toastmaster Mr. Joseph Ellis. The latter then introduced the mayor, who spoke on "The City of Lowell."

Major Robert J. Crowley was next introduced and he gave an interesting sketch of the growth and development of the water department.

Hon. Joseph H. Hubbard responded to the toast "The Commonwealth," and Lawrence Cummings spoke on "The Press." George Binslie, president of the Merrimack Valley league, spoke for that organization. Other speakers were Henry J. Draper, Alderman John W. Wainwright, John W. Daly, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, Herbert L. Chapman, Thomas J. Fitzgerald and William Gath.

There were songs by Bert Ellis, Chas. Fairbrother and Thomas Poole. The address of the evening was made by President Robertshaw, who, in responding to the toast "The Bunting Club," spoke in part as follows:

"Every organization has an object. The striving for and the attainment of that object determines the value of the organization to its existence. And that is the standard by which the Bunting club should be measured. The club had its commencement in the different departments of the Bunting mills challenging each other to play a game, then challenging other local clubs, such as Forge Village and North Billerica. In 1891 the old Lowell club disbanded and the Buntings organized, taking their schedule, and played all their games and were so successful that the club gained a standing in cricket circles that it has maintained to the present time. Their object at this time was the promotion of cricket and other athletic games, such as bowling on the green, trap shooting, quoits, football, etc. In cricket we have won two pennants and held the Nicholson cup for one year, always having a team in the field; oftentimes two and if not winners have finished the season in a creditable position.

"From these being only one club in Lowell and vicinity there are now thirty. I think we have little to be proud of, and we are still entitled to your continued support and friendship. Three years ago last spring we decided to become incorporated and add another object to our organization, namely, to encourage social intercourse and improve the physical and moral qualities of the members. To accomplish that object we were confronted with the inadequate accommodations we had for the purpose and 18 months ago, with $200 in the treasury, we decided to build a new club house; and I wish you to take what we have done as a measure of what the Bunting club is capable of accomplishing when it starts to do anything. Your committee relying on the support and generosity of members and friends plunged boldly into debt. But as boldly determined to maintain the credit of the club. We have worked so that we now possess our present club house free from debt, and also have more than doubled our membership. We have improved its morale. This proves we are fulfilling a public need that it is not only legitimate, but beneficial, and the time is fast approaching if we have not already attained the position of Lowell's most representative club."

The cricket prizes were then presented. The first prize for batting was won by J. H. Lloyd, and the second prize for bowling was won by Hugh Rudden. The first prize for batting was won by Hugh Rudden. The first prize for bowling was won by Hugh Rudden. The first prize for batting was won by Hugh Rudden. ALIENS' PROTEST

Turks and Others Want to be Citizens

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The naturalization bureau of the department of commerce and labor is being flooded with protests from Massachusetts and other states against its ruling that Turks and other persons who were formerly able to become American citizens are no longer eligible for naturalization.

There are many thousands of persons throughout the country who are anxious about the department's decision and it will require the decision of the supreme court of the United States to settle the matter. There is a case now pending before the court involving the issue raised.

For years Turks and some Asiatics were naturalized by the courts. In some cases they are still being naturalized, a southern court having recently issued the necessary citizenship papers to 20 Chinese at one time. The naturalization bureau admits that these cases exist, but says the situation is due to ignorance of the law on the part of many judges.

"Thousands of aliens have been naturalized after reading here only three months," said Acting Chief Clerk of the bureau, "but that fact does not make their naturalization legal, nor is it to be accepted generally as the correct interpretation of the law."

"The naturalization law was passed in 1906 and since then an attempt has been made to construe it strictly. It is not our fault if the local courts issue naturalization papers to persons who are not entitled to them. If a district attorney is charged with the duty of appealing from the decisions of local courts which do not agree with the department's interpretation of the naturalization law."

Siberians are Eligible

Under the department's ruling no Asiatic can hope to become an American citizen unless he is a Siberian. The ruling goes even further than this. It excludes members of the Turkish race which has been established in Europe for 500 years. There the department ruling stops, however, for Finns, Hungarians and other Europeans whose races originated in Asia can become American citizens.

Hebrews, who are admittedly of Asiatic origin, can become naturalized, but Syrians and Armenians, who hail from the neighborhood of Palestine, cannot. Asked about these apparent discrepancies, Mr. Crist said:

"We are interpreting the law as it was meant to be interpreted. While a Turk may be a resident of Europe, he belongs to an Asiatic race. His ideals, religion, laws, politics and customs are Asiatic in character. He is not a white man in the general acceptance of that term."

"As for Hebrews, they have no nationality as such. They take the nationality of the country in which they reside."

"If the department went back far enough it would find that the European race originated in Asia, but Europeans have lived in Europe so long and have changed so greatly in character that practically speaking they now constitute a separate and distinct race. A Persian or a Hindu may be white in color, but that is his only resemblance as a race to the European."

MATHEW MOTION PICTURES

The Mathews are to give as an added feature today, Tuesday and Wednesday evening of this week the complete pictures of the world's championship series between Detroit and Pittsburgh. These pictures are of great interest to every baseball lover in Lowell, and give an opportunity of closely studying the great games of the series in Lowell at an expenditure of but five cents. The baseball fan can by seeing this picture form an idea of how the championship of the world was won. It should be borne in mind that this great feature is to be given in addition to the regular bill of choice program of well shown motion pictures and finely sung illustrations of songs offered by the Mathews is a big attraction in itself, and with the baseball pictures added it makes a program unequalled for the money.

WINTER CHANGES

CANADIAN PACIFIC CURTAILS SAILING OF STEAMERS

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 18.—Important changes in the winter service between this port and Europe have been announced by the steamship companies. The Canadian Pacific railroad has curtailed the sailings of its steamers from here but this will be offset by the increased service which will be given by the Allan line while the Thompson line will put on a new boat this winter to ply between this port and the Mediterranean.

An immense business is done every winter from this port and Halifax in the transportation of wheat and grain after the shipping from Montreal has been brought to an end by the closing of the St. Lawrence river to navigation. It is expected that the shipments this season will be very heavy.

After the departure of the Empress of Ireland on Dec. 17 there will be no sailing of the Canadian Pacific railroad steamers until that of the Empress of Britain on Feb. 11. The intervening dates will be taken by the Allan line.

FIRE ON WARE ST.

Caused Alarm From Box 82 Early This Morning

A fire, the origin of which is unknown, was discovered shortly before 7:30 o'clock this morning in the rear of a double tenement house in Ware street belonging to Dan Smith. Though the blaze was put out soon after the fire department arrived on the scene the ell of the house was quite badly burned.

The fire started on the first floor under a flight of stairs which leads up to the back of the tenement on the second floor and was burning in a lively manner when discovered.

An alarm was sent in from box 82 and the department was soon on the scene and with the assistance of extinguishers and the chemical, managed to quench the flames.

An investigation by Chief Hosmer showed that the space under the stairs where the fire started was used for storing coal, wood and rubbish, but he is unable to account for the fire. None of the occupants of the house can tell the origin of the fire.

Chief Hosmer has notified the office of the fire marshal in Boston asking that the fire be investigated.

Rubbish Fire

A still alarm at 5:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a rubbish fire on the bank of the Merrimack river in Varnum avenue. The blaze was evidently started by boys.

Set Leaves Afire

At 5:30 last night the members of Engine 4 in High street were called to Fort Hill park where boys had set fire to a pile of leaves collected by the park department.

Chimney Fire

At 6:10 o'clock last night word was sent to the central fire station that there was a fire in the Sirk block in Bridge street. A place of apparatus went to the scene and found that there was a fire in a chimney on the Sirk street side of the building.

A fire started in a box of rags in the basement of the Arlington hotel in Central street yesterday morning. Word was sent to the protective house in Warren street and the blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

Slight Blaze

A still alarm shortly before seven o'clock yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze in a house at 3 George street. The woodwork around one of the cellar windows had rotted away and a cigarette stub thrown against the window by a passerby caused the fire. The damage was slight.

ARREST BROKER BIG CELEBRATION

In Connection With Discovery of Notes

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—C. S. Cummings, a broker of 45 Milk street, this city, was arrested today in connection with the discovery of notes of the town of Framingham bearing signatures alleged to have been forged which were discovered on Saturday.

LOMBARD SERIOUSLY ILL

FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 18.—Activity in the investigation surrounding the two notes of the town of Framingham aggregating $50,000 and which are alleged to have been forged was transferred today from this town to Boston, where C. S. Cummings, a Milk street broker, was arrested in connection with the matter. In this town the police had not taken any action up to 10 a. m. against Town Treasurer Lombard, who is dangerously ill at his home although the board of selectmen of Framingham and Town Counsel Walter Adams, who on Saturday, appointed A. M. Pitts temporary town treasurer in Lombard's place, today met and formally ratified Mr. Pitts appointment. It became known today that the selectmen and town counsel went over to Framingham last night to confer with J. J. Higgins, district attorney of Middlesex county. What was ordered upon at this conference could not be learned today. The notes in question were issued to two Boston banking institutions, the Franklin Savings bank and the Commonwealth Trust company and were for $25,000 each. Each note bears the purported endorsement of Chairman William H. Walsh and F. P. Stockwell of the board of selectmen whose terms expired last year. Messrs. Walsh and Stockwell, however, have denied their signatures and a careful examination of the town accounts has failed to disclose any trace of the notes. Persons familiar with the signatures of Messrs. Walsh and Stockwell have also expressed their opinion that the signatures were not genuine.

Inasmuch as there is no record of the disputed notes in the town accounts, the selectmen and town counsel have taken the stand that the town is not in any way liable for whatever loss may accrue through the issuance of the notes. Their contention is that Lombard's town accounts appear to be regular in every way and that if he has been guilty of any irregularities it has not been in connection with his town accounts.

They also express the belief that the company which furnished Lombard's bond to the town cannot be held to account for any discrepancies. Inasmuch as he was bonded only so far as his town accounts were concerned and not for any irregularities that might occur outside of his official position.

During the forenoon the selectmen and town counsel went into Boston to investigate at the banks interested circumstances under which the disputed notes were issued.

ROOSEVELT TRIP

Will Cost $25,000 it is Believed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The donors of the fund which is paying the cost of the Roosevelt African expedition are still unnamed and Sec. Chas. D. Walcott of the Smithsonian institution said last night that the names would not be made public.

The Roosevelt expedition will cost about $25,000 before it is ended. According to the statements of Sec. Walcott and ex-President Roosevelt, the former president will pay the expenses of himself and son, Kermit, who is the official photographer. The party consists of five persons and the expenses are supposed to be prorated. This will make the Smithsonian institution pay 60 per cent. of the $25,000, or $15,000, and the Roosevelt $10,000. The money of the institution is being disbursed by Lieut. Col. Mearns, a retired U. S. army surgeon, who is attached to the expedition as zoologist and botanist for the Smithsonian institution.

The arrival of the Roosevelt spoils of the hunt at first created great excitement in the institution, but now the clerks have become so used to the "T. R." boxes that they pay little attention to them. The last shipment of 20 cases of skins and bones packed in salt have not been opened yet because of the pressure of other business.

CHIEF GETTEMY

To Name Census Enumerators Here

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Charles F. Gettemy, head of the state bureau of statistics and labor, who is also supervisor for Massachusetts of the national census to be taken next year, is already busy at preliminary details of the enterprise. It is expected that he will have the heaviest task of any of the 350 supervisors in the United States, as at the last census, in 1905, this district included 3,000,000 persons, as compared with 2,742,000 comprising the next largest district, New York county, N. Y., and it is supposed that Massachusetts has maintained its position in the matter of population.

In the last census 1500 enumerators were employed in this district, but with a view to making the count next year it is understood that 1000 more enumerators than were employed last time will be required; which will put upon Mr. Gettemy the task of selecting 2500 men for the work.

Entirely distinct from the census of population there will be this year the quinquennial census of manufacturers, to be made by a different form of men altogether from that employed in obtaining data on population.

Mr. Gettemy has had various applications for clerical positions in connection with the coming census, with which he has nothing to do and a statement just issued by him with reference to applications for census positions contains as its first clause information for candidates laboring under the misapprehension just referred to.

To be Held at Yorktown, Va.

YORKTOWN, Va., Oct. 18.—Harking back to the stirring scenes of the revolutionary war, the people of Yorktown are now ready for a rousing celebration of the 128th anniversary of the surrender of the British forces under Lord Cornwallis to Gen. George Washington, Oct. 19, 1781. Various places of interest in connection with this historic event which took place here have been marked, and the gathering throng is kept busy viewing the scenes made notable during that great national drama.

Many patriotic societies, prominent among which are the Yorktown Historical society of the United States and the Society of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, have joined forces to make this patriotic rally worthy of the victory for the American arms. A strong sentiment has been developed among members of patriotic societies in favor of setting apart these historic places forever as one of the nation's sacred resorts, as has been done with Yorktown and other localities associated with American independence. This idea of the Ocean, by the school children of the town of two hundred people has suffered such slight change after this lapse of time that it is possible to see the field over which the British troops marched to attack their arms and to surrender. The British intrenchments are here and Lafayette's march with his light infantry to storm the works of the enemy can be traced in detail as can the course followed by Alexander Hamilton in making his famous bayonet attack. The house in which the terms of capitulation were signed is also here with no important change, and is the centre of attraction on the part of the pilgrims.

In front of the famous home of Thomas Nelson, Jr., a signer of the Declaration of Independence and governor of Virginia during the revolutionary period, a stage has been erected from which many of the famous historic spots can be seen. It is here that the extensive program for the celebration of these events will be carried out tomorrow. On that occasion Henry Norris, president of the Signers of the Declaration, will call the assemblage to order and will deliver an address. Col. Oswald Tilghman of Maryland, first vice president of the Yorktown Historical society and president of the American Society of Cincinnati, will read the correspondence between Lord Cornwallis and Gen. Washington, relating to the capitulation of Yorktown and the surrender of the British forces. Representative J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, will deliver an oration. Among the picturesque features of the occasion will be the singing of the national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," by the school children of York county. These children will also strew flowers upon the grave of Thomas Nelson, Jr.

FOR HOME RULE

John E. Redmond Pushing the Issue

LONDON, Oct. 18.—After a week's full the house of commons will reassemble today for the final stages of the finance bill. A critical week will begin early in November, when the bill reaches the house of lords. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish party, is now engaged in actively stamping the country, speaking from liberal and radical platforms, as well as at Irish meetings, and is showing a strong determination to force home rule to the front in what he believed to be an inevitable appeal to the country.
